Big Changes Being Planned In Spacecraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Extensive changes costing $10 million to $15 million will be made to future Apollo spacecraft before men can be launched to the moon again, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today.

As one result, Apollo 14 will be launched no earlier than next Jan. 31, NASA Administrator Thomas O. Paine told the Senate space committee.

This marks a further delay of nearly two months for the Apollo 14 flight scheduled to land three men on the highlands of Fra Mauro. The flight, first was scheduled for October, then was postponed to Dec. 3.

Paine said the Apollo command service module systems will be modified to eliminate potential combustion hazards that caused the explosion on Apollo 13 in April, canceled the moon landing, and endangered the lives of three astronauts.

Third Tank

The major changes will be the addition of a third oxygen tank in the service module; removing unsealed fan motors from the tanks; and limiting electrical wiring within high pressure oxygen systems to stainless steel wire.

In addition, Paine said, "teflon, aluminum and other potentially reactive materials in the presence of high pressure oxygen will be used as little as possible and kept away from possible ignition sources."

He said warning systems on board the spacecraft and additional controls will be modified to provide more immediate and visible warnings of system breakdowns.

Also testifying before the committee today were Rocco Petrone, director of the Apollo program office, and Dr. Edgar M. Cortright who headed the Apollo 13 review board.

Paine said that the design changes were in line with recommendations by the review board.

"Reasonable time required for the design, fabrication and qualification testing of the modifications to the Apollo system," Paine said, "will permit us to launch Apollo 14 to the Fra Mauro region of the moon at the Jan. 31, 1971 launch opportunity."

He said this will also delay the planned launch date for Apollo 15 by several months to July or August, maintaining the six-month interval between launches on which the Apollo program now is based.

There had been speculation that the Apollo 15 mission would be scrapped entirely and that the equipment would be used during the skylab program in 1972.

On Schedule

However Paine's statement indicated that, for the present at least, Apollo 15 is still on the flight schedule.

Paine said a review is now under way of the contract with North American-Rockwell and Grumman, the builders of the command and service module, and the Lunar module, respectively.

"We have under way a review of the incentive provisions in their contracts to determine what steps should be taken by NASA in light of the accidents."

He said the failure of the oxygen system in the Apollo 13 service module will be taken into account in the case of North American-Rockwell in determining the amount of 1970 award fees to be paid.

"That fee will be determined in view of all activities during 1970," Paine said, "and thus will be based not only on the Apollo 13 accident but also on the effectiveness of the redesign and rebuilding activities in preparation for Apollo 14."

In the case of the Grumman lunar module, Paine said the contract provides only for fees in terms of performance during an actual lunar landing mission. There was no moon landing on the April mission of Apollo 13.

Americans of Italian Descent Stage Protest

Giant Gathering Claims It's Being Harassed by FBI

NEW YORK (AP) — Legions of Italian-Americans have rallied in Columbus Circle to protest alleged FBI harassment of their numbers.

The mostly peaceful demonstration Monday was marred when two policemen on crowd-control duty outside FBI headquarters were stabbed with ice-picks. No charges have been filed.

The officers were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

For two and a half hours the crowd waved small Italian and American flags as it listened to a stream of speakers assail the practice of equating Italians with criminals.

The most tumultuous applause came for Joseph Columbo, listed by the Justice Department as leader of one of six Mafia families in the city.

Scene of Picketing

After the rally ended, about 10,000 from the demonstration marched to FBI headquarters, scene of nightly picketing for the last two months by the Italian-American Civil Rights League.

Police barriers were knocked over and tempers ignited.

The crowd dispersed after one of Columbo's four sons, Anthony, mounted a police soundtruck and asked them to go home.

The elder Colombo and his son, along with 30 friends, organized the first protests outside FBI headquarters following the arrest of another son, Joseph Jr., on a conspiracy charge.

The league, which also sponsored Monday's rally, estimated 620,000 took part in the Columbus Circle demonstration. Police put the figure at 40,000.

Piers Idle

Most piers in New York harbor appeared idle and predominantly Italian neighborhoods in Brooklyn and Manhattan looked vacant as longshoremen and small businessmen left work to attend the rally, officially billed as Italian-American Unity Day.

The line of speakers generally supported the protest.

Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-Bronx, said of 22 million Italian-Americans in the country, only 5,000 were involved in organized crime.

U.S. Health Care Called 'Antiquated, Inaccessible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A task force commissioned by the Nixon administration has found the nation's health care system antiquated, inefficient, largely inaccessible to the poor and ripe for change.

As a first step, the blue ribbon panel says the administration should scrap the $6 billion-a-year medicaid program and substitute 100 per cent federally financed health insurance for up to 40 million poor persons. The yearly cost would range between $10 billion and $18 billion.

The task force also wants consumers to have greater voice in operating health institutions with the federal government more involved in developing a new medical care system.

The chairman of the advisory committee, Blue Cross President Walter McNerney, endorsed some form of universal national health insurance. But the panel suggested a second committee to consider possible national insurance legislation that could be introduced in 1971.

The administration already has incorporated some of the panel's recommendations in its own legislative proposals, notably, government support of prepaid group practice and a small-scale trial of federal health insurance for welfare recipients.

The President's plan unveiled three weeks ago substitutes contributory, federal insurance for medicaid assistance to the estimated 6 million families that would be eligible under the pending family assistance welfare reform proposal.

The McNerney panel, however, wants all poor people—married or single, with or without children—to have paid-up insurance.

The administration says its proposal would cover 20 million people for the same price as the federal share of the medicaid program operated by all 50 states and two territories—$2.8 billion.

The committee's proposal could double the number of eligible persons and multiply the cost more than six fold.

The task force concluded medicaid has failed its promise of financial aid for all the poor who need medical care because of stinginess by the states in setting eligibility requirements.

"Only about one-third of the 30 to 40 million of indigent and medically indigent who could potentially be covered ... will in fact receive services," the report said of medicaid.

The task force said consumers are now effectively shut out of policy making in hospitals, medical insurance companies and government health units.

Nixon Vows New Effort To End War

Cambodian Venture 'Success'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, reporting on the end of all U.S. ground operations in Cambodia, pledged today that "we shall renew our efforts" to end the war in all of Indochina.

Without elaborating, the President said he seeks "genuine negotiations both in Paris and for all of Indochina." The Paris talks involve only the Vietnam segment of the conflict and Nixon did not indicate what further steps he might take to seek an expanded settlement that would also embrace Cambodia and Laos.

The occasion for Nixon's pronouncement was passage of the deadline for the exit of all American troops from Cambodia.

Arguing that the controversial venture was a military success, Nixon declared that "we still face substantial problems, but the Cambodian operations will enable us to pursue our goals with greater confidence."

Looking ahead, he said in a 7,000-word statement: "With American ground operations in Cambodia ended, we shall move forward with our plan to end the war in Vietnam and to secure the just peace on which all Americans are united."

Nixon's lengthy explanation of his April 30 movement of what he said were 32,000 Americans into Cambodia contained no surprises. Instead, it was his most elaborate explanation to date of why he undertook the move even though, in his words, "we anticipated broad disagreement and dissent" on the home front.

Reporting that all U.S. ground forces and logistic and advisery personnel have been withdrawn, Nixon listed guidelines for "our future policy for Cambodia."

First of all, he said, "there will be no U.S. ground personnel in Cambodia except for the regular staff of our embassy in Phnom Penh." Also, he stated, there will be no American advisers with Cambodian units.

The President reported, too, that South Vietnamese forces remaining in Cambodia will conduct their operation without the assistance of U.S. advisers or American air or logistic support.

Air Action

In only one area did Nixon indicate continuing U.S. military involvement in Cambodia, saying: "We will conduct — with the approval of the Cambodian government — air interdiction missions against the enemy efforts to move supplies and personnel through Cambodia toward South Vietnam and to reestablish base areas relevant to the war in Vietnam. We do this to protect our forces in South Vietnam."

Nixon gave no specifics on how the United States would renew peace efforts but appealed to Hanoi "to join us at long last" in that effort.

"There is no military solution to this conflict," he stated. "Sooner or later peace must come. It can come now, through a negotiated settlement that is fair to both sides and humiliates neither. Or it can come months or years from now, with both sides having paid the further price of protracted struggle.

Cost of War

"We would hope that Hanoi would ponder seriously its choice, considering both the promise of an honorable peace and the cost of continued war."

Nixon said that "we have not raised the terms of a settlement as a result of our recent military successes." At the same time, he vowed that "we will not lower our minimum terms in response to enemy pressure."

Declaring that "all our pre-

Troops Withdrawn

Vacated Border Areas Bombarded

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes and artillery today pounded Cambodian border areas vacated by American ground troops as the last American advisers were pulling back into South Vietnam.

Military sources said some advisers were still with the South Vietnamese forces who are remaining in the neighboring country, but "all of the Americans will be out of Cambodia by midnight tonight."

The aircraft and artillery attacks were aimed at suspected supply dumps and base camps which American ground forces did not have time to explore before the June 30 deadline set by President Nixon for them to withdraw.

Support Troops

It was not clear whether the bombing and artillery would continue after midnight. The U.S. Command refused to discuss the possibility that big guns installed in a series of firebases along the border would be used in support of South Vietnamese troops operating in Cambodia.

South Vietnamese officials announced the withdrawal of some 5,000 of their troops, leaving 34,000 South Vietnamese troops still inside Cambodia. The Saigon government said the 5,000 troops were withdrawn after completion of two operations in which they killed 1,149 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and captured more than 1,800 weapons and 58 tons of munitions.

The U.S. Command reported the death of one American and the wounding of another in a Cobra helicopter gunship shot down over Cambodia Monday in the final hours of the withdrawal of U.S. combat troops.

Total of Casualties

Officials said this brought the total U.S. casualties in Cambodia to 338 killed and 1,529 wounded. It was the 36th helicopter lost in Cambodia, the command said.

U.S. officials also issued a report claiming that the "average daily results" in Cambodia from May 1 to June 23 in terms of enemy casualties and weapons and munitions seized was 10 times greater than the daily average in South Vietnam in the previous 12 months, while the cost in U.S. and South Vietnamese killed was about one twentieth.

It said 2½ times as many weapons and 15 times as much rice and ammunition were captured per day as in South Vietnam in the previous year. The ammunition was enough to supply all North Vietnamese and main force Viet Cong in three of South Vietnam's four military zones for about 16 months, it said.

Meanwhile, a military spokesman in Phnom Penh said Premier Lon Nol plans to try former chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk in absentia before a military court.

Charges Uncertain

The spokesman did not say what charges would be placed against Sihanouk, but presumably they will be similar to the accusations made publicly against him after Lon Nol's group deposed him March 18. He was accused then of allowing neutral Cambodia to fall under the domination of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong and other misdeeds.

Sihanouk is in Peking and has established a government-in-exile there.

The battlefields were reported generally quiet in South Vietnam and Cambodia today.

In South Vietnam, a government infantry battalion entered a North Vietnamese base camp in the jungle 31 miles southwest of Da Nang and reported finding the bodies of 47 of the enemy, 115 rifles, 30 light machine guns and three .51 caliber antiaircraft machine guns.

Praises From Peru

Pat Nixon Ends Quake Area Tour

U.S. Ambassador Taylor G. Belcher told newsmen the visit by the First Lady was "a tremendous success."

"I think this favorable reaction to Mrs. Nixon will carry on during and after earthquake reconstruction," he said.

President Juan Velasco said Mrs. Nixon's two-day visit went by "too fast." He said he would have liked her to stay longer to see what his country is doing and to get a better idea of "what we feel for your nation."

Velasco's secretary, Gustavo Silva, said the president was "very deeply touched by the gesture of President Nixon in sending his wife.

"If he could have sent the whole U.S. Air Force," he added, "it would not have meant as much as sending his wife."

Going into the heart of the "valley of death" Monday for a helicopter view, to walk in the rubble, meet the refugees and the rescuers, Mrs. Nixon won thanks and good will.

"The destruction was worse than we read about," she said after her five-hour visit to 86-mile-long Huaylas canyon, the area of worst devastation.

Mrs. Nixon hugged youngsters and talked to monks and missionaries, pilots and nurses, young and old.

"Brave and courageous," she called the people of the ill-fated valley. She said what she saw "makes me sad," but she reassured the inhabitants, "You'll have good times again."

Peru's First Lady, Consuelo Velasco, went along as head of her country's national relief organization. It was her first trip to the area since the earthquake May 31.

Award Winner Confident Fashion to Wear New Face

BY MARY WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

NEW YORK — Making the midi a household word adored by all and feared by none has been the name of the game here at the American Designer Showings in New York.

But Friday, the hemline was all but ignored when a pro in the business presented his version of fall fashion 1970 minus the all too familiar arguments in its defense

While other designers attempted to cajole or shame the press into unanimously accepting below-the-knee lengths, Bill Blass remained aloof from the bickering. Instead the superstar of American fashion let his clothes do the talking and the message came through loud and clear: knees should be covered rather than seen.

Exuding urbane confidence, this year's Coty Award winner began by predicting the acceptance of below the knee lengths by autumn A few women shook their heads in disagreement and considerably more were heard to gasp when Blass neatly disposed of pants in barely more than 25 words.

Of the one item of apparel that is being relied upon to provide a fashionable refuge from the hemline debate, Blass said, "Pants in the daytime are somewhat finished as far as I'm concerned They're marvelous in the summer for the transition, but I think you'll forget them come fall."

For those who took his comment as a blow to their plans, there was some consolation in knowing they would be saving money on what they couldn't afford in the first place, had Blass offered pantsuits in great quantities. At couture prices, only a tiny percentage of women will be directly affected by the whims of any one designer on Seventh Avenue come fall!

Hypersensitive to who has the buying power at a time when business has been off for everyone, Blass provided one answer to why fashion is taking its present course when he said, "For the first time the woman over 30 is being considered."

Elegant, well bred, sophisticated, Blass' collection played to the forgotten generations who've come to like their conservatism mixed with a liberal dose of imagination

The conservative element formed the basis of Blass' work in beautifully constructed and proportioned clothes with simple lines, fitted bodices, raised waists, long sleeve and gentle skirts descending to two inches below the knee

Making it all come alive were colors, fabrics and accessories. Boots and hats were staple ingredients for the totally covered up look, while belts defined the waist or hips whenever the ensemble allowed.

Colors ranged from solids — beginning with a beautiful bottle green and ending on a black note — to prints frequently in a repule or an Oriental mood.

Mixing and matching contrasting fabrics and prints proved to be one of Blass' more memorable touches this season for a look that was distinctly bright and fresh and unmistakably American.

Bill Blass isn't the only one to do the short jacket suit for fall, but of all the designers heralding its return, he does it with the most imagination. Above are two examples, both lessons in how to achieve the head-to-toe look by accessorizing. At left, Blass highlights diamond tweed in brown and beige with braid trim. Its companion suit is a black and white classic diamond tweed. Hats, scarves, earrings, gloves and boots complete the ensembles. At right, Blass mixes and matches prints for two unusual coats. Beige, black and brown are the colors of the printed wool coat at left worn with reptile boots. The coat at right is done in plush velvet of navy and beige, reminiscent of a Persian rug print.

Food Tricks, Shortcuts To be Given in Panel

Helen Robertson, home economist and food authority, and artist Mary Dunn have combined their talents to bring Post-Crescent readers food tricks and shortcuts in an illustrated panel "Thrifty Nifty," appearing on the women's pages beginning Wednesday.

Miss Robertson, author of several cookbooks and home economics editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, presents her ideas in a simple, 'straight-to-the-point" manner for both brides and experienced cooks.

Designed to be clipped from The Post-Crescent and added to the file recipes and household hints so common to all kitchens, "Thrifty Nifty," will bring housewives many new tricks to speed them through their daily meal preparations and to help guarantee success of every cooking project.

A graduate dietician and a member of the House of Delegates of the American Dietetic Association, Miss Robertson has spent the past several months testing her new feature to make sure that it fills the need of supplying important information so often left out of recipes and food articles.

In her pre-testing of the feature, Miss Robertson found it popular with mothers teaching their daughters to cook and with the mothers themselves who had forgotten or never had been taught many of the tricks Based both upon the shortcuts so common to and popular with their grandmothers and upon modern cooking utensils and ingredients, "Thrifty Nifty" will serve as a reminder and a teacher to young and old

Miss Robertson will welcome ideas from readers willing to share their own shortcuts and tricks with others Just send them to her, care of The Post-Crescent.

THE ACES ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Before Robert Hamman, formerly of Los Angeles, became the sixth member of The Aces, I, as the one who conceived the idea of a team living, practicing and discussing bridge together for the purpose of winning the world championship, played frequently with each of The Aces

With the addition of Hamman, there are now three fixed partnerships, and I play somewhat less frequently. Here, however, is a hand I played with The Aces recently.

As you might have guessed from the bidding diagram, I am the only member of The Aces who is not fined for violating our bidding system

(Part of The Aces' training program is to be fined for bad bids and plays, and rewarded for especially good ones.)

No other Ace would have dared to open the South hand with any other bid than one club. However, without the spade opening bid, there might not have been a story to tell

I found myself playing a very delicate four-spade contract — so delicate, in fact, that many experts, after looking at all four hands, have been unable to see how the hand can be made!

I was, however, helped by West, my opponent, who paused for several seconds before making the final "pass." I had to decide what the hesitation meant

Since West was known as an overbidder, the fact that he did not bid meant that he thought I would not make the contract. Thus, West must have at least four spades, plus good outside strength in addition to five hearts.

I decided to go for an end play that would put West in the lead at the end, forcing him to lead away from his hearts.

I won the spade opening in my hand and casually led the deuce of clubs. West played low, and I finessed the eight, which held the trick. Next came the master play of cashing the ace of diamonds, stripping West of his only diamond

Trumps were drawn and the ace of clubs was cashed, another club put West in the lead With nothing but hearts. West was forced to take his two high hearts and play a third heart to my queen I now cashed my remaining clubs to make my game

INTERIOR DECORATORS?

Many misinterpret the function of an interior designer or fail to see the need for professional help in determining their home decor.

Money, money, money Throw out everything. Styling not suited to the personality of the home owner are criticisms often heard of the interior designer.

Money? Yes, decorating is expensive and most of us find it physically and financially impossible to replace everything at one time. Here a designer can be invaluable, setting a plan that will enable you to invest wisely over a period of time towards the most attractive scheme.

Throw everything out? Sometimes it would be a true financial blunder to set a new scheme around an item that will have to be replaced in two years. However, Grandma's chair, a favorite picture, or any "personally yours" item should not only be kept, but most often is the inspiration for your new rooms.

If any couple were able to shop for 3 or 4 weeks 8 hours per day, they might get some idea of the tremendous selection available to them. Even then many would find it easier to use and "like" what they have seen used repeatedly in other homes.

Decorators break boring trends. Shoppers create them.

Some complaints toward the decorators may be justified, but please check the total story. Explain your likes and dislikes, your family needs, room activities, and above all be honest about the budget. And Your room or house will have personal style and originality, not merely a refurnished look, that could make your room the trend setter you are hoping for.

Use Cost Variations, Drifts to Beat Inflation

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Within the past 12 months our overall cost of living has jumped more than six per cent — an [illegible] rate of inflation [illegible] within that overall [illegible] are sharp [illegible] which you can [illegible] [illegible]

—Switching [illegible] expensive [illegible] goods and services.

—Shopping harder than ever [illegible] the best possible deal [illegible] items on which prices are soaring, but which you must have.

—Eliminating costly and ever more expensive items which are of no value and even are of harm to you.

For instance, the cost of food you eat at home is up a full seven per cent over a year ago; the cost of food you eat in restaurants is up more than [illegible] per cent — and climbing.

Porter

[illegible] that food category, the biggest increases [illegible] the Agriculture Department [illegible] are [illegible] up 29 cents a pound to an average of $2.19, pork chops up 12 cents a pound to an average $1.17, porterhouse steak up 11 cents to an average $1.6[illegible]. Note these are averages.

Obviously, you can substitute chicken or fish for steak and veal cutlets, choose a vegetable in season for one which isn't [illegible]

And you have great control over how much you eat out and even greater control over what you [illegible] when you are out.

Again to illustrate our overall transportation costs are up nearly five per cent — but prices of used cars actually have declined and prices of new [illegible] are up a tiny per cent. The [illegible] have been soaring auto insurance rates, parking charges and public transportation costs.

[illegible] insurance [illegible] and public transportation costs — and you can do plenty to curb your parking charges.

Once more, housing costs are up a painful seven and one-half per cent — and contributing most heavily have been the sharp increases in mortgage interest rates and in property taxes. But also big factors are the costs of repairing a furnace and repairing your living and dining room.

You may not be able to duck most of these costs, but you can go in for such budget savers as do-it-yourself repainting.

And I could go on and on. You can substitute other forms of entertainment for activities which are going out of sight. You can certainly save on cigarettes simply by cutting smoking. You have a wide variety of choices in the clothing field.

[illegible] can give you the basic guidance and [illegible] doing so [illegible] you can use your own imagination [illegible]

Following [illegible] some of the [illegible] cost of living [illegible] the actual importance of these items in your real-life spending patterns. It comes from Joel Popkin, asst. Bureau of Labor Statistics commissioner.

New Business

Mr. Jack Hetz, City Planner, discussed four plans which were on display for a school park and recreational area located on the Langedyke property. The proposed senior high school will occupy 31.2 acres of the 94 acre site. Mr. William Errington, Alderman of the 5th ward in which the property lies, spoke about the proposals and urged Board support of Plan 2 which consisted of two baseball diamonds. The appearance of Mr. Hetz and Mr. Errington to outline the plans was to request Board support of a plan before the Park and Recreation Commission submits its request to the Common Council. The joint development for a school park and recreation facility would [illegible] of the City of Appleton. Mr. Sager asked for a two week study of the plans by the Board's School Building and Site Selection Committee after which a recommendation will be made to the Board for its acceptance at the June 22 Board meeting.

Mr. Spears informed the Board that bid openings for the remodeling of and addition to Appleton High School West is scheduled for Thursday, July 30, 1970 at 2:00 P.M. in the Morgan Administration Building Auditorium. Revised plans and specifications will be ready for June 30, 1970.

Mr. Stevens moved that the Board recess into Executive Session to discuss the status of negotiations with the Appleton Public Schools Clerical Association. Mr. Walter Mumme, negotiator, was in attendance. Seconded by Mr. Becker and carried.

A motion was made by Mr. Stevens to reconvene the regular business session. Seconded by Mr. Buchanan and carried.

Mr. Buchanan moved adjournment [illegible] seconded by Mr. Stevens and carried.

To Your Good Health

Rapid Weight Loss Is Often Danger Signal

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr Thosteson When we were married seven months ago my husband weighed 187 he is 29 and 6 feet 3

Since then he has lost 30 pounds While I am not the greatest cook in the world I think I can be considered at least average and know the value of well-balanced meals

Dr Thosteson

[illegible] question of your cooking Something ails him either physically or psychologically

[illegible] Unless there is some severe [illegible] which doesn't sound [illegible] solely with well-balanced meals' [illegible] vitamin pills aren't a means of building up the appetite High-calorie foods or supplements will add weight — if he'll eat them But if he has a poor appetite, then what?

Have your husband see a doctor for a checkup, and make sure the doctor knows how much weight he has lost and how rapidly

Some chronic or unrecognized infection is only one of several things that may be causing this loss of weight

Dear Dr Thosteson I am a faithful and admiring reader I am starting a diet sensibly with the hope that I shall lose two pounds a week I have a few questions

Does drinking too much coffee in any way chemically prevent you from losing weight?

Does eating grapefruit after a sensible meal in any way chemically help you to lose weight?

Would the fact that I had my gall bladder removed nine years ago give me a tendency to gain weight quicker?

I am going to try to keep my calorie intake to about 1,200 a day —Mrs M R

If you stick to 1,200 calories a day and get adequate exercise, you'll lose. But try to lose two pounds a week is dreaming That's 104 pounds in a year, and who do you know that ever gained at that rate?

Coffee — if without sugar or cream — will not prevent you from losing weight Grapefruit after every meal will not help you lose Grapefruit is sour, but it still contains sugar—and calories. Your gall bladder does not in any way control your weight

For the reasons why "trick diets" and gimmicks won't work and for the reasons why a sensible reducing diet will work for anyone, I wish you would read my booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing" and you'll learn a lot of the pitfalls to avoid, and also find details on how to set up a 1,200-calorie diet For the booklet, send 35 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope

Dear Dr Thosteson My grandson had hydrocele He is 6 years old Will it disappear as he grows older or become worse? The doctor said to let it alone for now —Mrs F H D

The fluid probably will not disappear. However — just as your doctor said — there is no urgency for treatment If the swelling (due to more fluid) increases, then surgery would be in order to correct the situation If it is not increasing and is causing no discomfort, there's no need to be in a rush

(Removal of the fluid by aspiration — withdrawing it through a hollow needle — is possible, but usually is not successful, because more probably will accumulate Just thought I'd mention it)

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible

Alligator Back for Summer of Mooching

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Charlie the alligator is back.

Charlie has been living in the area of the battleship North Carolina since 1961, getting snacks from the spectators and pieces of chicken from the watchman The battleship is permanently moored at Wilmington as a tourist attraction

The 9-foot alligator returned Sunday for the 1970 summer session No one knows where he goes in the winter He has missed only the summer of 1968 in the last 10 years.

Today in History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, June 30, the 181st day of 1970 There are 184 days left in the year

Today's highlight in history

On this date in 1958, Gen Charles de Gaulle became premier of France.

On this date

In 1777, British forces in the Revolutionary War evacuated New Jersey and crossed to Staten Island

In 1834, the Indian territory was created by an act of Congress

In 1859, some 5,000 persons watched a French acrobat, Emile Blondin, cross Niagara Falls on a tightrope

In 1921, former President William Howard Taft was appointed chief justice of the United States.

In 1946, the third atomic bomb was dropped—in a test over ships anchored at Bikini in the Marshall Islands.

Ten years ago—Belgium proclaimed the independence of the Belgian Congo.

Five years ago—U.S. troops were taking part in their first major offensive of the Vietnam war in an attack against enemy forces about 20 miles northeast of Saigon

One year ago—Israeli jets strafed and bombed Arab guerrilla positions inside Jordan after a terrorist explosion in Tel Aviv.

Martin Urges Stiff Control of Motorcycle Gangs

EAU CLAIRE (AP) — State Rep David O Martin of Neenah urged today that the State Patrol and local authorities work together to curb motorcycle "gangs" in Wisconsin

Martin expressed concern over shooting incidents which marred a rock festival at Iola following the arrival of several groups of motorcyclists

"Wisconsin must not allow such gangs to roam the countryside, terrorizing innocent citizens with their clubs and chains," Martin said

"This kind of lawless, destructive behavior destroyed an otherwise peaceful gathering, and is all too reminiscent of the kind of trouble California has had with the Hell's Angels' and other groups in recent years," he said

Martin, the GOP-endorsed candidate for lieutenant governor, spoke with several area newspaper representatives, including editors of the Dunn County News and Chippewa Herald

Senate Voting on Bar to Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate headed today for approval of restrictions on future U.S. operations in Cambodia with Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield telling Nixon administration forces their delaying tactics have helped focus public attention on the issue.

"They just kept the issue alive by their tactics and kept it on the front burner when they could have got it done the first week," Mansfield told reporters.

Before a final vote, administration forces mounted a final assault on the restrictive Cooper-Church amendment with two amendments.

One, by assistant GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin, would make it possible for the United States to pay for troops and advisers from other Asian nations in Cambodia.

Revised

A second, by Sen Henry M Jackson, D-Wash., revised the amendment's provision barring direct U.S. air support of Cambodian forces.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., declaring he would support the Cooper-Church amendment, declared that the Vietnam issue has created a national credibility gap that "threatens the very fabric of our national life.

"Twist the Constitution a little bit here, wrench it little there, and before long all the safeguards which have served us so well will perish on the very eve of our 200th celebration of independence," Hollings said

Southern Moderate

Another Southern moderate, Democrat William Spong of Virginia, also said he would support the Cooper-Church proposal.

After the Senate finished work on the Cambodia proposals, the schedule called for final action on the foreign military sales bill, which Cooper-Church amended

Sen. Robert J Dole, R-Kan., a leading administration spokesman, conceded before today's vote there was little point in trying for outright defeat of the amendment sponsored by Sens. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., and Frank Church, D-Idaho.

Several Amendments

Dole said in an interview the amendment apparently would pass He said a big push for defeat might at best bring a close vote for passage that would "be blown up into a big victory for them and a defeat for the administration."

Dole said Cooper-Church had been made more palatable by several amendments approved since debate began shortly after President Nixon announced April 30 that U S troops were being sent into Cambodia

Republicans also succeeded in blocking passage of Cooper-Church until after the President finished removing all American troops from Cambodia Monday, one day before his promised deadline.

The end of the long debate coincided with Nixon's report on the Cambodian operation, which he said was intended to clean out enemy sanctuaries and speed withdrawal from Vietnam.

Griffin told the Senate Monday his amendment to permit U.S. support of foreign advisers in Cambodia "concerns the very heart of the Nixon doctrine."

"The purpose of this amendment is to make clear that the United States would not be enjoined by the Church-Cooper language from assisting non-Communist nations in Asia which stand prepared to cooperate in lending support to a neighboring country in dire need."

Cooper, however, said there was nothing in his amendment "that prohibits any other country, or any group of nationals of another country, going to the assistance of the present government of Cambodia, if they desire to do so."

"What is prohibited by the Cooper-Church amendment," he went on, "is the employment of other countries and their nationals by the United States for service in the war in Cambodia."

Horses Are Used at the Circus World Museum in Baraboo to load dozens of rare, wooden hand-carved circus wagons aboard train flatcars for their annual trip to Milwaukee for the Fourth of July Parade. The parade is one of the few occasions on which the wagons leave their shelter. (AP Wirephoto)

Ready for Parade

Circus Wagons on Trek Across State

MILWAUKEE (AP) — More than 60 pricless pieces of circus heritage ventured brightly today from a central Wisconsin museum in tribute to a tradition that refused to die.

It is annual circus time again for Milwaukee's Fourth of July weekend, and the Circus World Museum in little Baraboo is providing the center ring feature: a brace of hand-carved, wooden wagons culled from Ringling brothers barns, British pastures and forgotten carnivals.

The State Historical Society's museum staff was still applying final touches of paint and polish to the wagons Monday as elephants and draft horses hauled the wheeled antiques aboard flatcars of a 25-car train.

The 119-mile annual rail trip from Baraboo ends at a Lake Michigan park in Milwaukee where the wagons will be on display, waiting for the Fourth of July parade which traditionally attracts tens of thousands of spectators.

Joining the assortment of animal cages and calliopes for the first time are some of the eight wagons recovered recently in near ruin from a pasture near Tiffield, England, and valued at $100,000.

They represent efforts of the museum and its director, C. P. Fox, to collect and preserve circus gear, a project that began in 1959 in Baraboo where the Ringling family organized its famous circus in 1884.

It was in keeping with tradition that Fox's maintenance crew got one of the British wagons restored in time for the departure with only hours to spare.

"We cut it pretty close to the wire this year," he said.

The museum's Baraboo property includes a mammoth new shed for protecting the fleet of wagons, and some of the nine barns and other buildings that once served as the Ringlings' circus headquarters.

Milwaukee's use of the wagons for a Fourth of July parade began in 1963.

This year's week of circus has special significance for Wisconsin. The descendant Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus plans special weekend performances. Delavan, 40 miles southwest of Milwaukee, is celebrating the 100th anniversary of the founding of its P. T. Barnum Circus.

The Baraboo museum's stock grew rapidly after circus buffs learned of it. Fox received circus posters, steam-operated calliopes, performers' costumes and other discarded items.

In 1964, Walt Disney donated nine rare wagons appraised at $161,000.

Draft horses provide additional old-time flavor by pulling the parading wagons. There is never a shortage of volunteers willing to help hitch wagons to draft teams and water the elephants

One of them is the Rev John Callahan, a 66-year-old Roman Catholic priest from Milan, Ill., who arrived on schedule in Baraboo in work clothes to spend his annual vacation helping prepare the wagons for the parade.

It wouldn't be entirely inappropriate to say the museum's Fourth of July train set sail today.

Much of the hand-carved woodwork is the work of 19th century craftsmen who were hired by the circus industry after the New England ship building industry abandoned its use of expensive figureheads and other wooden trim.

The train, almost as much an attraction as the parade, is a crowd pleaser as it wanders 119 miles across the state to Milwaukee.

Laborites Re-Elect Wilson Party Chief

LONDON (AP) — Ex-Prime Minister Harold Wilson, whose Laborites were defeated in the June 18 election, has been re-elected leader of the party.

Wilson, unopposed at the meeting Monday, promised a full inquiry into the reasons why the party, which was heavily favored to win, was ousted from control of the government by the Conservatives.

United Kingdom

Britain Pledges More Support for Ulster

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — British Home Secretary Reginald Maudling pledged anew to Northern Ireland's Protestant majority today that their province will remain united with England, Scotland and Wales in the United Kingdom as long as they want.

Arriving from London, Maudling said Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservative government fully supports the "stirdy efforts" for peace being made by provincial Premier James Chichester-Clark.

Belfast was quiet as Maudling, the man in the British government with primary responsibility for Northern Ireland's affairs, began a two-day visit. Six persons were killed and hundreds injured in weekend rioting by Protestants and Roman Catholics in Belfast and Londonderry.

Maudling, 12 days in office, visited Northern Ireland with the same goals his Laborite predecessor, James Callaghan, had following communal disorders last year. At that time, Callaghan and Chichester-Clark won time by offering reforms to meet Catholic complaints of discrimination in jobs, housing and local voting regulations.

Militancy Strong

Now the reforms are on the law books but Catholic militancy remains strong, and Catholic-Protestant bitterness is growing.

"I reiterate the pledges given by previous governments that Northern Ireland will not cease to be part of the United Kingdom without the consent of the people," Maudling told newsmen.

"Those who are threatening law and order are placing in jeopardy both freedom and prosperity for all, of whatever background or persuasion."

Attempts to restore harmony at Belfast's shipyards, appeared partly sucessful. A number of Catholic workers were back on the job after threats from militant Protestants to "quit work or be shot" sent some 500 home at lunch Monday.

Biggest Industry

Representatives of management, labor and the provincial government issued appeals for calm in the yards, Northern Ireland's biggest industry, which had been untouched by the 1969 violence.

At the top of Maudling's agenda is expected to be discussions on whether to ban all the July parades by the militant Protestant Orange Order.

An Orange march last Saturday helped spark the weekend of terror, and after talks with Chichester - Clark, Monday the Orange men canceled 12 parades sheduled for the next two weeks. But these were minor local affairs, and a major march in Belfast Tuesday is still planned. This is regarded as dress rehearsal for the July 12 marches to celebrate the 17th century victory by Protestants over Catholics in the battle of the Boyne.

Nixon Vows Renewed Effort To End War in Indochina

vious proposals, public and private, remain on the conference table to be explored," Nixon said, "our objective remains a negotiated peace with justice for both sides, and which gives the people of South Vietnam the opportunity to shape their own future."

As in the past, Nixon stated, "we recognize that a fair political solution should reflect the existing relationship of political forces." This was a way of saying the United States would be prepared to give the Communists some role in a postwar South Vietnamese government.

Immediate Threat

Nixon contended that the Cambodian operation "eliminated an immediate threat to our forces and to the security of South Vietnam — and produced the prospect of fewer American casualties in the future."

He said "we have inflicted extensive casualties and very heavy losses in material on the enemy," have ended the concept of Communist sanctuaries immune from attack, dislocated enemy supply lines and "disrupted Hanoi's strategy in the Saigon area and the Mekong Delta."

He estimated that "the enemy capacity to mount a major offensive in this vital populated region of the south has been greatly diminished."

As he did on April 30 in announcing the operation, Nixon argued his decision will save American lives, "assure that the withdrawal of American troops from South Vietnam can proceed on schedule," and enable continuation of the Vietnamization program.

Better Prospects

In addition, he said, the intervention "should enhance the prospect for a just peace."

Nixon pictured the United States as having achieved "a record of restraint" in Southeast Asia since he took office. He added: "The response from the enemy over those same 17 months has been intransigence in Paris, belligerence in Hanoi and escalation of the war throughout Indochina."

Insisting that "it was North Vietnam—not we—which brought the Vietnam war into Cambodia," Nixon said a major expansion of enemy activity in that country "ultimately caused allied troops to end five years of restraint and attack Communist base areas."

He also argued that North Vietnam contributed to the March 18 overthrow of the former Cambodian chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk.

Sihanouk's Ouster

"It was the indignation of the Cambodian people against the presence of Vietnamese Communists in their country that led to riots in Phnom Penh which contributed to Prince Sihanouk's ouster — an ouster that surprised no nation more than the United States," he asserted.

The chief executive said increased Communist military activity in Cambodia during March and April left him three basic choices: First, to do nothing; second, to provide massive assistance to Cambodia—assistance he said the small army there could not effectively use, and third, to attack base areas occupied for five years by Communist forces.

In his outline of guidelines for future policy, Nixon said "we will encourage and support the efforts of third countries who wish to furnish Cambodia with troops or material." Both South Vietnam and Thailand have indicated they are prepared to do that.

Expressway Displacement Views Backed in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mayor Henry Maier's protests against expressway construction that deprives displaced low-income residents of adequate housing elsewhere received committee support Monday, and was submitted to the Common Council today.

Maier has not specified which of the city's proposed multilane highway projects he opposes, but has insisted construction be curtailed until a system is established that can guarantee suitable housing for residents whose quarters are pushed aside by concrete.

His demands won uanimous backing from members of several Common Council committee members after he told them the city should even consider injunctions as a means of safeguarding the peace of mind of displaced residents.

Robert Sukowski, a South Side alderman and a chief expressway backer, said he thought the resolution was worded too strongly. But he added: "You would have to be against motherhood to say you're against this housing."

Maier also asked that suburbs be requested to help consider the problem of finding low-cost housing for displaced persons.

The resolution submitted to the council requests a firm statement from the state concerning housing needs.

Sukowski said he was wary about the resolution because of work already underway on a multilane route from the South Side along the city's Lake Michigan front, including a high-level bridge acrosse the city's harbor mouth.

Maier has indicated he is chiefly concerned about proposed extension of the Stadium Freeway, which is to link Milwaukee County Stadium with an interstate highway that will run eventually to Green Bay

Sukowski said he too is not eager to see the Stadium Freeway extended because of the many North Side dwelling units that would be destroyed.

Attack by Bubolz Shrugged Off

Task Force Backs Three Districts

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MARINETTE — Members of the Reeve Task Force on regionalism shrugged off an attempt by Gordon A. Bubolz of Appleton to sidetrack them Monday and headed for a wind-up of their project in about two weeks.

The task force advisory committee also ignored a bitter attack in project leaders by Bubolz, chairman of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and adamant foe of Gov. Warren Knowles' plan to divide the state into administrative districts.

Task Force chairman John P. Reeve, Appleton industrialist, and Dr. Raymond Vlasin, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay vice chancellor and task force vice chairman, said they hope to deliver the final report to Knowles about July 13.

Three Districts

Based on executive committee recommendations unveiled to advisory committeemen Monday, the report will suggest three administrative districts in northeastern and east central Wisconsin.

Bubolz, who has described the task force as a scheme to tear apart his planning commission, tried in vain to convince other public officials on the advisory committee that the administrative districting plan will mean "substantial new costs to the taxpayer."

He proposed turning the project over to the Legislature's Interim Committee on Local Government for a cost analysis and recommendations.

The committee turned down the proposal on a 19-5 show of hands on whether to mail copies of the resolution to all members of the advisory committee for reactions.

Bubolz also claimed the technical study committee had "misrepresented" statements of local preference by omitting mention of his planning commission in summaries of local responses, and said Northeastern had been "by-passed in many ways" during the study.

Reeve disagreed with the cost predictions, saying flatly "I say it is" going to save tax dollars.

Reeve replied, though he began by saying "I heartily dislike this aspect" of the assignment. He told Bubolz he was "sorry we didn't give you the credit that you wanted given you" in summarizing the statements by local officials, and added that Northeastern was represented on the project by its technical director Charles Hervey.

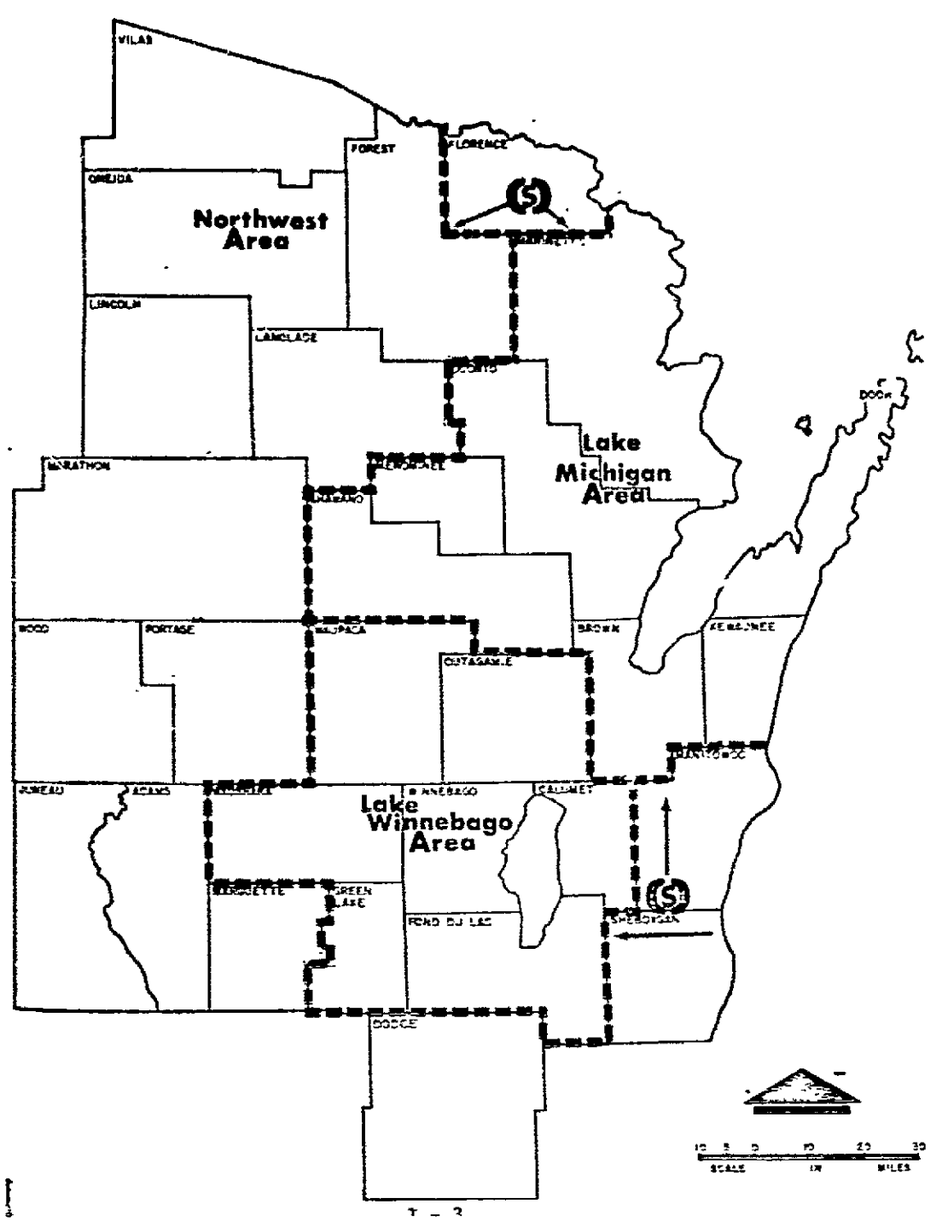
Reeve said Hervey was assigned job with Bubolz present.

Bubolz also stated that regional planning and state administration should be separated.

Dr. James Murray, UW-Green Bay economics professor on the technical panel, added that among the proposed recommendations is one that existing alliances between counties and regional planning agencies be continued without regard for administrative boundaries.

Reeve said Hervey was a member of the technical panel and in addition attended nearly every executive committee meeting.

Bubolz was not invited to serve on the executive committee, Reeve continued, because he made it apparent from the outset that he was "so much opposed" to the districting project — "you were so difficult to work with" — that the committee concluded it couldn't do its



The Reeve Task Force on Regionalism unveiled this map Monday showing in part the allignment of counties for state administrative purposes that probably will be recommended by Gov. Warren Knowles in about two weeks. Florence County and Manitowoc-Sheboygan County are shown as "swing" areas that could join either of two administrative districts. The southern boundary of Marathon County would probably be the North West district's south edge.

Task Force Propsals Get Support

MARINETTE — A six point proposal on establishing state administrative districts in Northeastern and East-Central Wisconsin received substantial support Monday from the advisory committee of the Reeve Task Force on Regionalism, and is expected to go virtually intact to Gov. Warren Knowles in mid-July.

About one-third of the 99-member advisory committee of public officials received a weighty report from the task force's technical study group along with the six proposed recommendations of the executive committee.

Among the recommendations are boundaries for three administrative districts, machinery for making changes and procedures for automatic review.

The executive committee repeatedly stressed the need for giving priority to local preferences and maintaining a strong local voice in maintaining or changing the alignments of counties in the districts.

In a move apparently designed to placate the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and its chairman, Gordon A. Bubolz of Appleton, the executive committee recommends permitting counties to continue their present alliances with regional planning agencies, even though the boundaries of Northeastern's territory overlap proposed administrative district lines.

Bubolz Voted Down

Bubolz, who views the districting proposal as a threat to his nine-county planning agency, which the report noted overlaps proposed boundaries, made a fist-pounding attempt to have the task force report referred to a legislative committee, but was voted down in a 19-5 show of hands.

The three districts being recommended include:

LAKE WINNEBAGO Outagamie, Calumet, Winnebago, Fond du Lac, Waupaca, Waushara and Green Lage counties.

NORTHWEST Vilas, Oneida, Lincoln, Langlade, Forest and Marathon.

In addition, the group identified two "swing" areas that could be attached to either of two of the districts. Manitowoc and Sheboygan counties are more closely allied with each other than with any of the counties to the north or west, and could swing either to the Lake Winnebago or Lake Michigan district, and Florence County could swing either to the Lake Michigan or Northwest district, the committees found.

The alignments were proposed on the basis of eight factors considered and studied in considerable depth by the technical group, which consists of 13 planners, citizens and technical personnel in local and state government.

They studied common interests among neighboring counties in the fields of transportation, natural resources, recreation, communications.

Buckley to Seek Referendum

Bus Line Remedies Endorsed

A long list of recommendations to ease the financial predicament of the Fox River Bus Lines, Inc., Monday night gained endorsement from the City Council Finance Committee and will be presented to the Council Wednesday night.

In a related action, Mayor George Buckley today announced he will request the council to put the question of whether to subsidize the bus line to a referendum next fall. He will suggest the finance committee decide whether it should be held in the September or November election.

A permanent subsidy might be an alternative to adjusting the operation of the bus company to bring it into the black through more efficient operation.

The Monday proposals, prepared by a study committee consisting of City Finance Director David Champion, City Auditor LeRoy Seifert and Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) Transportation Planner Jerome Starling, call for holding the current temporary monthly subsidy in abeyance until further study and for making several changes in the company's operation to effect more efficiency.

While it's only the bus company's six Appleton routes which are said to be in financial trouble, Champion said the committee felt that all aspects of public transportation, including school busing, should be studied before developing an areawide transportation program.

One recommendation is that the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin be asked to waive the public hearing and grant the recommendations, which cover several public transportation aspects. Champion and Seifert said they expected the commission would agree to this quickly, if it would solve the problem.

The recommendations are to:

— Consolidate the six Appleton bus lines into five, along routes outlined by Starling.

—Change from half hour to hourly service from mid-morning to mid-afternoon Monday through Friday and all hourly service on Saturday.

Fare Increases

—Hike adult fares from 25 cents to 30 cents and raise certain other fares.

—Operate on a closed door and open door policy for various interurban routes to allow effective operation of the proposed five-route system.

—Request the Public Service Commission to defer commencement of the Appleton City Transit, Inc., newly formed corporation which takes over the six city-route operation and other runs but under same ownership as Fox River, until the city agrees to or files a written protest against the purchase or lease cost of equipment to be assigned to the new corporation.

The recommendations also call for a full-time professional transportation planner for the school district; that the district negotiate one year school busing contracts for 1970-71, and that it consider revisions in its busing policy. It also urged forming an

Appleton Urged to Develop New Sanitary Landfill Site

BY BOB LAUX
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Public Works Director Robert G. Miller has advised that Appleton "get into the sanitary landfill business as soon as possible" by developing an 80-acre site next to the city limits for the fall of 1971.

Miller presented a report Monday on the prospects of Appleton's solid waste disposal program to Mayor George Buckley and the Street and Sanitation Committee.

It will go to the City Council at its next meeting.

Until a site is selected and purchased, Miller recommends that the city take over the operation of the Mackville site from Landwehr, Inc., a private contractor.

Appleton owns 120 acres at Mackville. The land was converted this year from a dump to a modified sanitary landfill in compliance with a state deadline which orders communities to run bona-fide landfills by Wednesday.

Ecology Danger

One-third of the area now is set to be used as a sanitary landfill, but Miller cautioned against exploiting the full 120 acres. If the whole site were converted, he said, it would destroy the ecological value of the swampland near Mackville.

For this reason, and to ward off hauling costs which are now running at $5,000 a year, he recommends that action be taken quickly to secure a new location.

Because the public demands pollution control, Miller said, there is no way to escape the costs of future programs. In the past, Appleton spent $15,000 a year for disposal of solid wastes. In 1970, the conversion of the Mackville dump added $50,000 to the expense.

Miller estimates that a sanitary landfill acceptable to the state and people in the community will cost upwards of $100,000 a year.

Miller posed two short-range alternatives to the problem. The first would call for a new contract with Landwehr, Inc. The present contract falls short of the amount needed to correctly operate the Mackville facility in conformance with state standards.

Until a new arrangement might be worked out, he said the existing contract should be extended on a monthly basis.

The second alternative would be for city personnel to operate the landfill. Miller favors this method, but it would require that a bulldozer be leased for the city to take over immediately.

The long-range solution calls for the purchase of an 80-acre site that would take care of solid waste disposal until 1985, according to a Council of Governments projection of need.

Could be Annexed

To avoid political entanglements and transport costs, the site should be located adjacent to the city limits so that it could be annexed. The completed landfill would be suitable for use as a park or tree nursery, for example.

The city could also "formally join forces with our neighbors and solicity proposals jointly for a contract with a private operator."

Miller predicts that purchase and development of the site would cost $17,000 per year until 1985. Along with an estimated operating expenditure of $84,000 annually, the yearly price tag would be $101,800.

Miller emphasizes that Appleton should not "go it alone" in the venture. A landfill developed by the city could be shared by other communities on a cost-sharing basis. Appleton should be willing to participate in any metropolitan system "which would provide better economy."

8 Illinois Cyclists Arraigned After Rock Fest Violence

STEVENS POINT — Eight person, including a 20-year-old woman, were arraigned Monday afternoon in Portage County Court on an array of charges stemming from incidents at the weekend rock fest near Iola where three persons were shot Sunday morning.

The eight, all from Illinois and apparently members of one or more motorcycle gangs, appeared before Judge Robert Jenkins on charges presented jointly by the district attorneys of Waupaca and Portage counties. The fest was held on the counties' borders.

Five persons, including a Chicago man charged with using a knife against a person for the purpose of stealing, were bound over to Circuit Court. Two pleaded innocent and were released on bails while one pleaded guilty.

Investigation Continues

Lt. Raymond Potocki, in charge of investigation for the Portage Sheriff's Department, said that investigation is continuing and that further charges may be pressed against some of these persons and others who were released for jail earlier this week. Twenty-six persons had been arrested.

The rock fest, hampered by poor sound systems, a lack of drinking water and poor swimming facilities and an influx of cycle gangs who intimidated the rock fans, reportedly drew about 50,000 fans but most had left Sunday following the confrontation between cycle gang members and fans about 7 a.m. Sunday. Three persons were shot, but are in satisfactory condition, and cycles were burned during the melee.

Potocki said that a few stragglers still were on the 200-acre scene northeast of Iola today.

Facing the most serious charge is Thomas J. Bell, Chicago, who is being held in lieu of a $20,000 bond for using the knife for stealing purposes. He also was charged with burglary, and armed robbery. The police report lists him as 25 years old, but Potocki estimated he is several years older.

Five Bound Over

Bell and four others were bound over to Circuit Court for preliminary examinations. The others are Paul Dees, 21, Rockford, Ill., charged with carrying a concealed weapon and possessing $750 worth of stolen property; Michael James, 24, Rockford, and Thomas Puckett, 18, Loves Park, Ill., each with endangering the safety of others by conduct regardless of life; Edward Walters, 20, Bensonville, Ill., possession of a dangerous drug; Paul MacDonald, 33, Roscoe, Ill., and Mrs. Laura Schoenher, 20, Justice, Ill., each with possession of marijuana;

Muggy Again

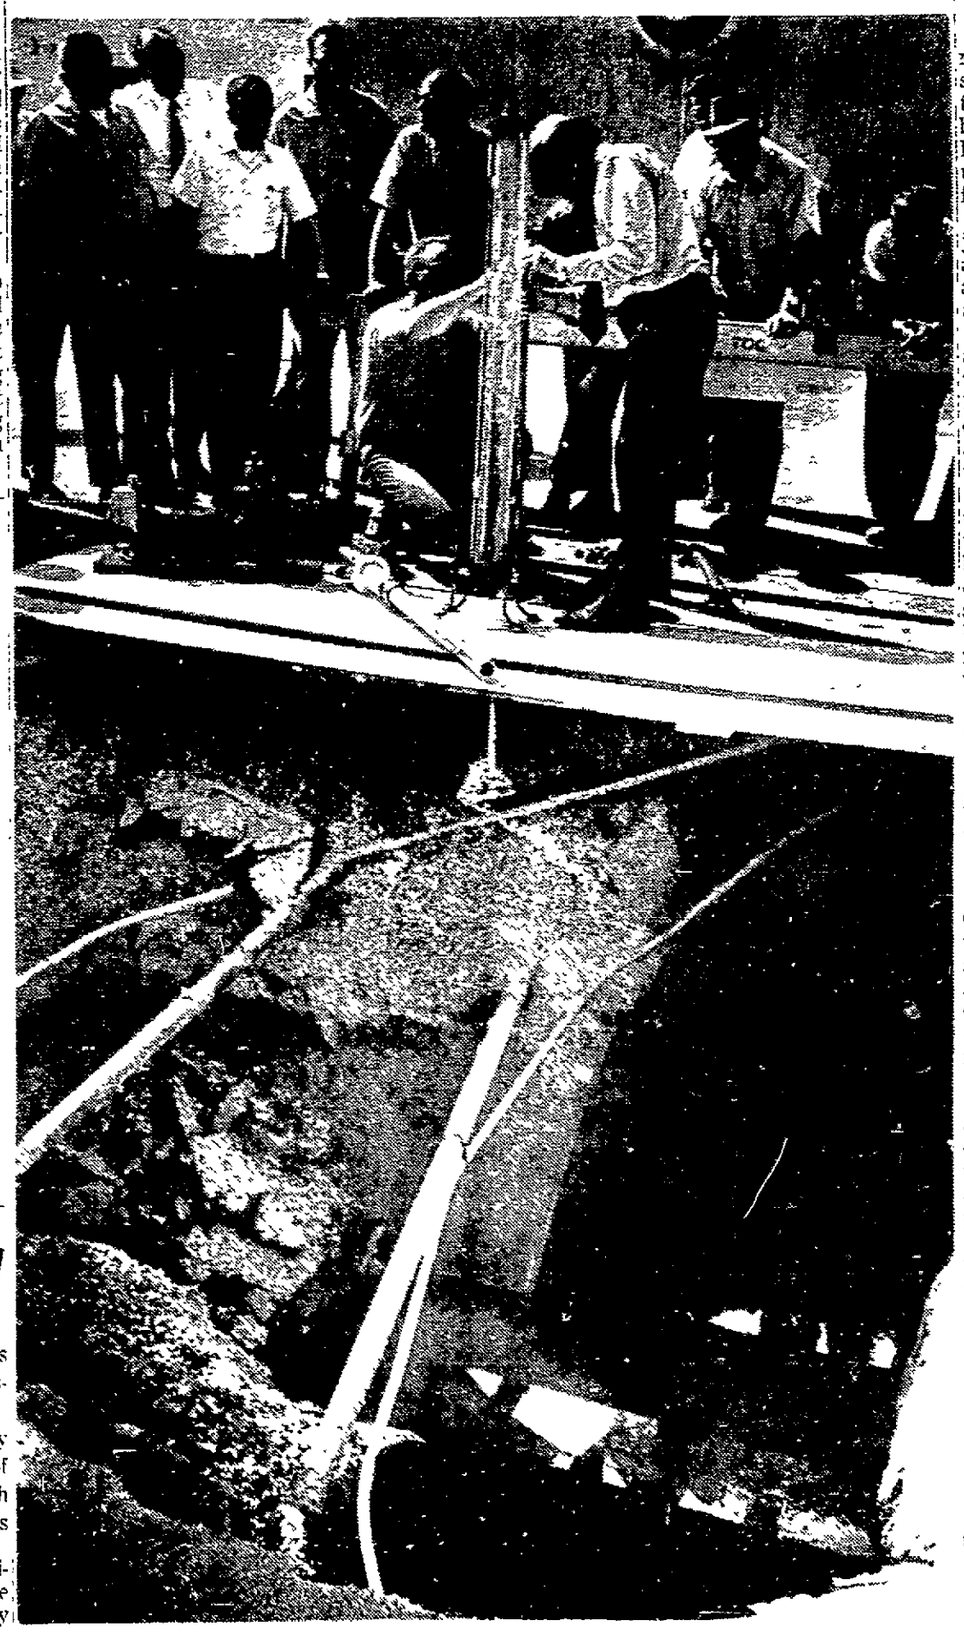
The Fox Valley steams its way through another hot, humid blistering day today, and it appears that more of the same is to come.

The temperature at high noon today hit 93, only three degrees away from the record high of 96 set back in 1931, and 46 degrees away from 1943's record low of 47 degrees.

Monday the thermometer at the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company climbed to 93 degrees, and sank only as far as 78 by midnight, leaving the Valley with its attic fans and air conditioners working through the night and its upstairs bedrooms empty in favor of cooler resting spots. Not a breath of relief wandered into open windows, as the wind died to a deathly calm.

Kids spent another day crowding Appleton's two municipal swimming pools, where gates admitted some 5,286 swimmers yesterday, or stayed home and tormented mom and enjoyed the air-conditioned advantages to be had. The streets were all but empty of bike riders and hopscotchers, and even cats and dogs preferred the relative cool of the indoors.

Residents of even numbered houses watched with jealousy as their odd-numbered neighbors sprinkled their kids and their lawns between five and eight last night. Tonight, however, the tables turn, and according to the water department decree, the even-numbered houses can douse droopy gardens and shower steamy offspring.



No, it Isn't an oversize thermometer to measure the heat readings on these blistering days. The glass tube is one part of a system designed to detect underground gasoline leaks. Fire chiefs from Appleton, Little Chute, Kaukauna, and Neenah were present at this morning's test being conducted on a gas tank owned by the Octopus Car Wash, 122 N. Richmond St. The instrument, which takes about five hours to register, purportedly can localize gas leaks in pumps, tanks or underground piping. Officials of the industrial and flammable liquids commissions, plus a representative from the Skelly Gas Co. were present. The device is manufactured by a Canadian firm.

City Board Backs County Waste Study

The Street and Sanitation Committee went along Monday with a proposal for a county study of solid waste disposal sites, after the Outagamie County Board tabled a resolution on the study earlier this month to wait for a survey of communities.

The group also approved policy guidelines for a recently enacted ordinance which requires solid waste collectors to obtain licenses in the city. The policy provides for permits and inspection of garbage vehicles to make sure they are leakproof, durable and clean.

Public Works Director Robert Miller had checked with the DNR on the policy, and said Appleton "apparently is one of the few communities in the state that are taking them seriously."

It was recommended that Morrison Street from College Avenue to Washington Street be included in the 1970 concrete paving program. Merchants in the area had expressed a desire to see the work done this year instead of in 1971, because the opening of Gimbels Department Store would conflict with the scheduled reconstruction.

A request by the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. for an easement across Water Department property was turned down because the underground transmission line would be blocked by many obstacles.

Green Bay Packing Plants Defended

Post Crescent Farm Editor

Rats, mice, peeling paint and metal saw shavings listed in a General Accounting Office report of packing plants do not exist in Green Bay packing houses.

Dr. C. H. Glotfelty, Wisconsin's coordinator of federal meat inspection, said today that meat packing plants at Green Bay are producing, "good, sound, wholesome products."

Armour and Co.; Liebmann Packing Co., and Reimer Meat Products, Inc., all of Green Bay were cited in a GAO report prepared last year and recently released.

Whitehall Packing Co., Whitehall, Wis., also was cited in the report.

After federal inspectors examined the Whitehall plant it was closed for a short time, but now is producing satisfactory products, said Glotfelty.

Clean, Wholesome

"We're quite confident that these plants that were cited in Wisconsin are producing clean, and wholesome products."

Glotfelty said today that he still has not seen the GAO report, but he believes all plants mentioned are producing satisfactory products. He was not contacted by GAO investigators who conducted the study. Dr. Paul Burkert, St. Paul, regional director, was contacted but also may lack a copy of the report.

At the present time an estimated 100 red meat and poultry plants are under federal inspection in Wisconsin. Federal inspection is required of any packing house engaged in interstate commerce.

Federal law passed in December, 1967, says plants not under federal inspection must meet state standards equal to federal requirements, said Glotfelty.

Wisconsin's meat inspection program, financed up to 50 per cent by federal funds, was launched in January, 1968.

Federal Inspection

When regulation became mandatory, many plants requested federal inspection to permit them to begin interstate commerce, Glotfelty said.

Dr. Edward Baker, Madison, is the administrator of the state program. Prior to the start of the joint program there was little inspection activity in Wisconsin.

"We really didn't have any law that required inspection of meat," said Baker, although packing plant inspection was required.

Although there were an estimated 450 plants under state inspection two years ago only 350 remain.

"We've had to close a few plants," said Baker. New standards may have also forced some packing plants to cease operation rather than to convert to new specifications.

At the present time plants in the state program are equal to federally inspected plants, said Baker.

Neenah Offers Rewards in Attack on Vandals

NEENAH — REWARD The city of Neenah will pay $25 to any person furnishing any information which leads to the apprehension of vandals

Faced with an increasing vandalism rate in city parks, the finance committee Monday night decided to follow the suggested route of Ald. Michael G Ellis and offer rewards to citizens who help police in capturing the vandals

$250 Fund

Ellis proposed establishing a $250 fund to pay the rewards "If we catch one punk who may have caused $300 damage the city is still $275 ahead" Ellis reasoned

He also suggested creating a civilian patrol force to keep an eye on all city parks between 9 a m and 1 p.m which, according to Ellis, is the critical time.

"I think we would see a dramatic reduction in the vandalism if the punks knew that citizens were watching for them," he said

Civilian Patrol

The committee, however, held off on the civilian patrol idea until William Miller, park and recreation superintendent, could compile statistics on how much the vandalism was costing the city in terms of money and man hours spent trying to repair the damage.

According to Miller, the hardest hit areas have been rest rooms. The vandalism since January has cost the city over $1,000

The next favorite target of the vandals, Miller explained were the water fountains "They fill the bubblers with dirt and stones and this requires dismantling the units to clean them out"

Paint Spray Cans

Paint spray cans are also popular vandal tools especially to inscribe messages on washroom and park shelter walls "This is especially difficult to remove from bricks because it usually requires sandblasting," Miller pointed out

Ald Walter "Doc" Loehning, Second Ward, suggested better lighting around city parks to deter vandalism

"Better lighting is good, but it's not the answer," Ellis pointed out

Ellis, who is the Neenah pool supervisor, cited an incident where vandals, in full light of the street, had climbed atop the recreation building and walked off with a $99 public address system speaker.

The police blotter is continuously filled with complaints about vandalism including an incident recently where someone had thrown fuel oil on a shelter at Douglas Park and ignited it, charring the wall

Dredging to Remove 4-Acre Sludge Bed

MENASHA — A 4 acre bed of sludge laid down on the bottom of Little Lake Butte des Morts is being removed.

Dredging operations began a bit more than a week ago, according to Bob Ulrich, Neenah contractor who has the job He expects to be at it a month or better, depending on the water depth

The blanket of fibre originally covered about 8 acres of lake bottom in front of the Lakeview Mill Dredging began five years ago on orders from the Corps of Engineers No work was done last year, and orders haven't been sent for three years, according to Richard Billings, of Kimberly-Clark Corp.

Water Conditions

Work has been delayed by water conditions. At the first of June, water was too deep; now it is almost too low. Ulrich said today the barge needed 22 inches of water to float, and that there was only 30 to 35 inches of water. Large rocks make things difficult by hanging up the barge, plugging the 8-inch hose and pulling apart the pipeline when the unit moves.

"It's getting pretty well clean," Ulrich said of the bottom. The wastes came from Lakeview originally — "They haven't put any in for a couple years," — and now washes in from around the corner on the other side of the lake Ulrich said some of it could even come from the slough

The sludge is pumped into two settling lagoons and dewatered. At the end of the process it has about 25 per cent solids and is used for land fill Billings said

A survey done in 1965 by the Corps of Engineers showed the bed as a cone-shaped layer of waste about 400 feet wide at the base tapering to 30 feet at the point. The whole thing was 1,200 feet long and laid from four feet to less than a foot deep on the bottom

Both Ulrich and Ross Plainse, district engineer for the corps, surmised that some of the wastes on the bottom were coming from the Bergstrom Paper Co. mill outfall pipe on the other side of the lake.

A spokesman for Bergstrom Paper Co. declined to make a statement "until someone approaches us from an official standpoint" on the possibility that some of the bottom solids were from its outfall pipe.

The Department of Natural Resources ordered Bergstrom to clean up by Dec. 31, 1972. Talks are going on between Bergstrom and the sewerage commission, according to reports given at commission meetings.

Town Awaits Sewage Plant Funds

MENASHA — Town of Menasha Chairman Roland Kampo "can't see how" federal funds can be withheld for construction of a $450,000 plus sewage treatment plant on the west side of Little Lake Butte des Morts in the Town of Menasha.

He said that after a meeting with water quality administration officials, sanitary district personnel and town officials Monday to review plans for the sewage plant in light of attempts to cut down on the number of separate treatment plants in the Valley

They reviewed plans prepared for the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG), that includes several proposals for cutting down the number of treatment plants in the Fox Cities area.

Kampo said the federal officials will "go back and analyze it and let us know shortly" on the fate of federal and state funding of up to 80 per cent of the cost for the west side treatment facility

"They asked about the plan COG had and I told them there was no adopted plan," Kampo said, noting that COG had not approved any of the proposed alternatives

Kampo believes that when a plan is adopted by COG, it will be the one calling for improvements to the eight existing plants rather than alternatives calling for four major plants or one massive facility to serve the entire area.

"We've studied this thing since 1966, and we're done studying," he said of the present town plans for treatment facilities on the west side. "We're ready to go"

He said the federal government had already given the go-ahead on letting bids for the project on May 15, and that he doesn't "see how anybody can change anyone's mind at this point."

He said he didn't "know what was behind" the June 25 letter from the water quality administration asking for the review of the plans

"Seems like someone was doing something in the dark," he said of the review called at this late date

"I don't see how we can pour sewage into the river for another 10 years while we wait for these plans (COG) to be approved," Kampo said, adding that other Fox Cities communities were facing similar orders to improve sewerage treatment facilities "We're sick of just sitting here and talking about this," he said

He said it would take years to get one of the COG alternatives approved and implemented. In the meantime, municipalities like the town, which have been ordered by the state to end pollution problems, would continue like they are now.

The town has already taken bids on the project and is only waiting for federal approval of funding before starting on the project.

The town's plans were approved by COG in 1967.

Neenah Committee Backs New Life for Housing Authority

NEENAH — Armed with the written support of Mayor Roman V. Hauser, the finance committee Monday recommended reviving the city housing authority to get a low-income housing project started in the city.

But action on two other recommendations of the community relations - social development commission, to hire a full time staff man for the authority and to pass a resolution citing a need for the housing in Neenah, were delayed until the housing authority is back in a functioning capacity

The triple recommendation came from the community relations — social development commission, which had completed its preliminary study of the needs for low-income and elderly housing developments in the city

A need for the housing was challenged by Ald. Michael G. Ellis who questioned if low-rent housing was the answer. "I don't think so," Ellis stated, "I think these people would rather live in their own homes if the city could offer them some tax relief."

Finance committee chairman Ald. Paul Mueller agreed with Ellis in part "I think the real answer to providing housing is through a combination of low rent housing and through tax relief"

"Our first step," Mueller said, is to revive the housing authority and then let them do the studies to see where the need lies We should also let the recommendations for a staff and the need for the housing come from the housing authority," he said

For the past 18 months, the community relations - social development commission, headed by Leo Pfister, has been studying the need for housing in Neenah, and the various approaches to providing the housing through federal aids and subsidies.

According to Hauser's letter, he intends to appoint a new housing authority to replace the one created four years ago by former mayor Carl Loehning

Mueller, who served on the original authority as the city council representative, said, "We met several times until Mayor Donald Hassler took office Then we did not meet any more

The recommendation will come before the city council Wednesday night

County Youths On Probation

Two Plead Guilty To Charges, Found Delinquent by Judge

Two 16-year-old Outagamie County boys, found delinquent after pleading guilty in theft and car theft cases before County Judge Raymond P Dorn in Juvenile Court Monday were placed on one year's probation to the County Department of Social Services

The youths were accused of taking an auto belonging to a Hortonville man without his consent on March 28, and going on a stealing spree March 31 during which they were said to have taken articles from Truedell's, the Variety Fair Shopping Center and the Nimrod Corp

County Judge Raymond P Dorn also ordered restitution of $140 for damage done to a car and a window breaker

A caseworker said that $797 45 worth of equipment taken from Truedell's has been returned as well as $256 81 worth of merchandise from the Co-op

A third youth, 15 year old Shawano, who previously appeared in Juvenile Court, was placed in the custody of the State Department of Health and Social Services until his 21st birthday

He presently is at the Wisconsin School for Boys, Wales The three juveniles were taken into custody in Shawano within a week after the events occurred

Eight Cyclists Charged With Fest Violence

and Joseph T Graceffa, 19, Rockford, battery and theft

Bonds ranged from $250 to $20,000

MacDonald pleaded guilty Schoenher pleaded innocent. Graceffa is free on bond, Potocki said.

Six women and 12 men were released

Most of those arrested reportedly are members of The Drifters, a Rockford motorcycle gang After fleeing during a battle with rock-throwing rock fans, several of those arrested were caught by Portage authorities trying to leave the area by car and truck

Sunday Confrontation

Most of the charges stem from the confrontation Sunday morning between the large group of fans on a hill and bikers who rode up the hill toward them The fans began pelting cyclers with rocks when they attacked a group of fans at the bottom of the hill by a barn

The fest reportedly started out on a peaceful note Friday but became violent Saturday when several cycle gangs moved in There were reports of rapes, robberies and beatings

Michael Gradford, 20 Evanston, Ill., who had been beaten with a chain, was reported in satisfactory condition today

Several persons also were treated for severe drug reactions.

Grand Chute Woman in Satisfactory Condition

A Grand Chute woman, who late Monday afternoon slashed herself 18 times with a razor blade on the scalp, neck and arms, is reported in satisfactory condition today at Appleton Memorial Hospital.

Outagamie County sheriff's investigators learned of the attempt Monday from the woman's pastor, who said she called him warning of her intentions.

She was transported to the hospital by Gold Cross ambulance.

Construction Halt of Nuclear Plant Sought

WASHINGTON, D C — Three conservation organizations have proposed amending Atomic Energy Commission regulations to halt construction of all nuclear plants in the nation, including two planned to serve the Fox Valley, until they conduct environmental studies required by the National Policy Act of 1970.

Involved are two nuclear plants at Point Beach near Two Rivers which the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co is planning to use in serving this area

Also included in the petition are 50 other nuclear power plants now in various stages of construction across the country

Leading the list is the Calvert Cliffs nuclear power plant currently under construction on Chesapeake Bay

The Calvert Cliffs Coordinating Committee (a coalition of Maryland organizations), the National Wildlife Federation and the Sierra Club asked the AEC Monday to apply the act to the Baltimore Gas & Electric Co 's plant and all others under construction.

Conservationists term the controversial Calvert Cliffs plant a classic example of how the electric power industry uses the nation's waterways to dispose of its hot water and radioactive discharges without using available techniques to prevent environmental degradation

Prior to passage of the act, the AEC consistently maintained it was responsible only for the health, safety and national security aspects of nuclear power plants, stating specifically that it had no responsibility for possible environmental impact of the plants.

According to AEC statistics recently released, 16 nuclear power plants now are operating in the United States, 52 are under construction, 37 are planned with reactors already ordered and another seven are planned but have yet to order reactors

As currently planned the majority of these plants, including Calvert Cliffs, will not utilize existing techniques to minimize thermal and radioactive pollution.

The Westinghouse Corp recently announced development of techniques that will virtually eliminate radioactive pollution from nuclear power plants The Federal Water Quality Administration long has held that virtual elimination of thermal pollution is desirable and technologically and economically feasible

Up-to-Date Techniques

Conservationists have been consistently thwarted in attempts to get industry to use the most up-to-date techniques to minimize thermal and radioactive pollution from nuclear power plants These failures were usually linked to the industry's claims that no one could prove how much damage there would be and the AEC's supporting claim that it could not consider environmental problems associated with the nuclear power plants it licenses

The petitioners claim the National Environmental Policy Act now requires detailed environmental studies be conducted by the AEC prior to issuing construction and operating permits and all feasible alternatives to the proposed action be explored

Also involved besides the 497-000-kilowatt capacity plants at Point Beach, one of which is expected to be ready this year and another in two years is the Kewaunee Nuclear Power Plant at Carlton a 527 000-kilowatt capacity project of the Wisconsin Public Service Corp

He said the company owners would have to determine "what is the best way to keep public transportation, if we need it." He predicted that the city would own the bus operation "one way or another unless you go to one bus line serving all."

He said the cmpany owners had agreed in principle with the recommendations, although no representative was present at the meeting. Several aldermen and school officials attended the informal session Monday night.

Several bus drivers also were there but many left before the session was adjourned.

Champion also said the three-man committee wasn't sold on the two-corporation idea, and he outlined how efficiencies could possibly be realized by altering

Illinois Man Drowns In Waupaca Accident

WAUPACA — A Rockford, Ill man drowned about noon Monday in Manomin Lake, the middle lake in the Upper Chain O' Lakes.

Alexander Cook Jr., 23, was visiting at the Robert Steuerwald cottage with two other men and three women. They had attended the rock festival at Iola, they told Waupaca County authorities.

Cook's companions told Capt John Penney, county traffic officer, that Cook went down to the dock and dived into the water When he started thrashing around they were unable to help him. They called the sheriff's department about 12:15 p.m

Skin diver Padraic Meighan, 19, Appleton, recovered the body from 30 feet of water within an hour.

Assisting in the rescue were Sgt. John Bonnell, Waupaca County traffic; Arthur Krueger, Chain O' Lakes patrolman, and the Waupaca and King fire departments.

Dr. Sam Salan, coroner, pronounced Cook dead from accidental drowning. The body was taken to the Holly Funeral Home.

DA Argues Boys, After Drinking Bout, Planned the Offense

After deliberating only an hour this morning, a Circuit Court jury found Ronald M. McKevitt, route 1, Fremont, and Jeffrey Thiel, rural Weyauwega, both 18, guilty of attempted armed robberty early the morning of March 5.

Circuit Judge Andrew W. Parnell ordered a presentence investigation for the pair, who lived in Appleton at the time of the offense. They are to be held in the Outagamie County jail without bond pending release from an agent of the State Department of Health and Social Services.

The state's chief witness in the trial which began Monday morning was Robert C. Kleinhans, 19, who testified that while he walked to his former apartment at 123½ W. College Ave. about 1 a.m., McKevitt and Thiel shoved him up against a wall in the back alley and held a can opener to his throat. He said McKevitt demanded "your money or your life."

Kleinhans said he pushed McKevitt aside and ran toward College Avenue, where he hailed two patrolmen. Thiel, who was still chasing him, was taken into custody at the scene. McKevitt was apprehended later. Thiel displayed a switchblade knife at the time, Kleinhans said he did not threaten him with it.

In his final arguments to the jury late Monday afternoon, Dist. Atty. James R. Long argued that even though the pair had been drinking prior to the incident, "they knew what they were doing." To bear out his statement he cited testimony that revealed they waited for someone to enter the alley while they waited, one across from the other, in darkened corners.

"They did what someone who wanted to rob him would do," Long said of the chase out of the alley.

The defense attorneys held that both boys were so intoxicated at the time that they didn't even recall the episode, and that the intent necessary to prove culpability for an accusation as bold as attempted armed robbery was lacking.

"Sometimes while you are drunk, you do things you didn't intend to do," one of the lawyers said.

No date was set for sentencing.

health, education, economic service areas and economic development areas

The six proposed recommendations include:

The administrative districts should reflect existing ties on the basis of the eight fields of interest studied — That current regional planning agencies and future multi-county planning efforts should be considered, by permitting current alignments to continue and by allowing local governments to determine the kind and amount of multi-county services to engage in.

— That the technical study group findings on existing county ties, including the recommendations for boundaries, "along with local preferences, be given strong weight" by Knowles in setting the district lines.

— "That priority be given to the preferences of a county for its own alignment over the preferences of other counties for it," since an individual county's preferences are "sometimes in conflict" with study group or other counties' proposals.

Future Changes

— That procedures be established for future alterations in boundaries, again laying heavy stress on the likelihood that local preferences might change in the future.

— That at the end of a three to five-year period, the technical study group be reactivated with similar personnel to evaluate the functioning of the districts and report its findings to the governor.

The Task Force chairman, John Reeve of Appleton, and the vice chairman, Dr. Raymond Vlasin, vice chancellor of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay, said July 13 is the target date for presenting the final recommendations to the governor.

In the meantime, Vlasin said, additional statements of local preferences will be assembled and placed in an addendum to the technical study. Reeve said that next week the final draft is expected to be virtually completed. The executive committee has a session slated for July 8 at Green Bay with the technical group to go over its recommendations a final time.

Of 32 advisory committee members present, all but one or two gave suport to each of the executive committee recommendations on questionnaires distributed prior to Monday's session.

The Task Force was appointed last October by Knowles after it became apparent that there was widespread disagreement at the county and community level with administrative lines he had previously proposed. Those lines would be changed extensively if he follows the Reeve recommendations, which he is expected to do.

The formation of the districts is expected to have far-reaching consequences both for the functioning of state government in the relations between its various bureaus and agencies and communities within the new districts, and in the handling by several of the state agencies of federal assistance funds and programs for localities.

Federal policies gave the initial push to the districting move, which Reeve pointed out already has been accomplished in 23 other states and is expected to be done in other states as well.

Preliminary Exam Set For Oshkosh Man In Attempted Murder

OSHKOSH — Preliminary examination of Larry Delfosse, 20, 710 Frederick St., charged with attempted murder and with robbery, was scheduled today for Friday at 10 a.m. by Judge James V. Sitter, county court branch 3.

Arrest of Delfosse followed a robbery of some $289 at Basler Mobile station early the morning of June 12. The station attendant, Dennis Salm was found badly beaten about the head, apparently from auto generators and starters.

Salm has been unconscious since that time.

NOTICE TO APPLETON WATER CONSUMERS

The Appleton Water Commission requests that all water users make every effort to conserve water on July 3, 1970. Beginning at 5:00 A.M., our contractors will be making some additional connections to the new plant which will restrict the ability of the plant to produce water. This work will continue throughout the day.

These connections are required so that construction of the new plant can continue. Your complete cooperation in the past under similar circumstances has been extremely gratifying and helpful and we are sure that we can continue to count on your aid as we work together towards supplying Appleton with an abundant water supply.

Police & Fire Beat

KIMBERLY — Volunteer firemen were called to the Earl Wendt residence, 1033 E. Kimberly Ave., about 10:30 a.m. Monday when a power mower which had just been filled with gasoline burst into flames as the son of the owner attempted to start the machine.

The mower was in the garage and Mrs. Wendt pulled it outside before any damage to the garage resulted. Neighbors had doused the fire with water

KAUKAUNA — Firemen answered a false alarm about 10 a.m. Monday when an unknown phone caller reported a fire at 1311 Hillcrest Drive. Firemen found there was no such address when they arrived at Hillcrest Drive

SEYMOUR — Henry J. Calmes, 21, route 1, Kaukauna, was taken to St. Mary Hospital in Green Bay early Monday after the car he was driving hit a tree about 2 miles north of here on State 55. Outagamie County traffic officers said Calmes swerved to avoid a deer when the mishap occurred. He sustained a left elbow cut. The 1968 auto he was driving west was demolished.

In another accident about 6 miles northeast of here just after midnight, two persons were injured when the auto they were in went out of control and landed in a ditch. Gary R. Olson, 19, route 3, Pulaski, suffered a possible broken nose and a right elbow when the car he was driving left Shady Road. A passenger, Pat Hudson, 18, route 2, Oconto Falls, suffered a minor head bump. Property damage totaled $600.

SHIOCTON — An accident 6 miles west of here on State 76 early Sunday sent John R. Garcia, 19, route 1, to New London Community Hospital with cuts to the face, chest, left knee and right elbow. Outagamie County traffic officers said Garcia was eastbound on State 76 when his car crossed the center line, went out of control and struck a tree. He told authorities that he was blinded by oncoming lights.

Senators Ask Draftees Stay Out of Conflict

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sens. William Proxmire and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin joined Harold Hughes (D-Iowa) today in introducing an amendment to the fiscal 1971 Military Authorization bill that would prevent spending funds to send draftees to Southeast Asia.

"We are introducing this amendment because the time has come when it is possible to stop sending draftees to fight against their will in Southeast Asia. With the President's announced withdrawal of troops, it is no longer necessary," Proxmire told the Senate.

Draftees in South Vietnam now comprise less than 4 per cent of the 3.1 million men in the armed forces, Proxmire said.

"To stop sending draftees to South Asia not only is feasible but it is right. Not only is this an undeclared war but the draftee has borne an unfair proportion of the fighting burden," Proxmire said.

About one-fourth of all American troops in Southeast Asia and 40 per cent of the Army noncomissioned personnel are draftees. Almost half of Army combat deaths in South Vietnam have been draftees.

"The probability of a draftee being assigned to a combat infantry company is increased by the fact that the regular soldier has first choice for available support assignments," he stated. "Because of that and because about 10 men outside the fighting zones are needed to support one soldier in action, a high proportion of the draftees end up in combat units.

Kiwanis to View Slides On Sanitary Landfill

KIMBERLY — Director of Public Works Patrick Flanagan will present 70 slides on sanitary landfill operations at a Kiwanis Club dinner meeting at 6:15 p.m. Wednesday at the Darboy Club.

Plans will be discussed for a steak fry to which wives will be invited, scheduled July 29 at Sunset Point Park. Board of directors will meet after the dinner to discuss civic projects.

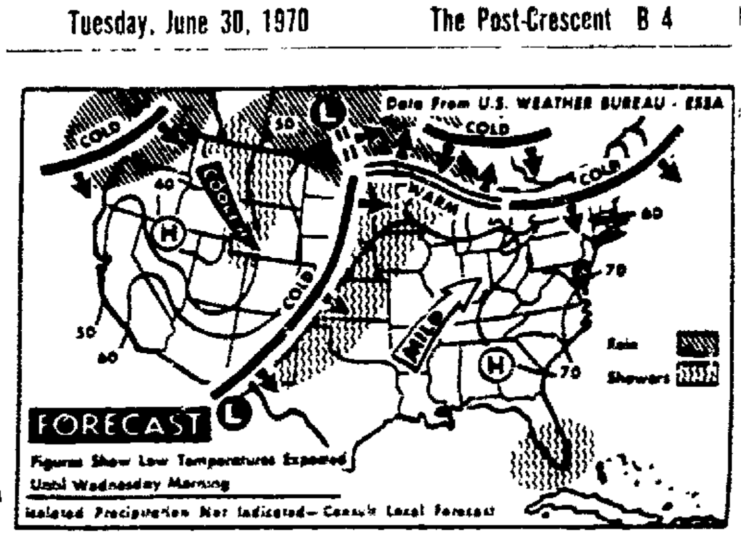
Deadline Set for Candidates Filing For Precinct Jobs

Party precinct committeemen are reminded they also must file nomination papers with the county clerk by July 14 to have their names on the September primary ballot.

A precinct committeeman candidate must have between 20 and 40 signatures of electors from his precinct. Each party can have a committeeman from each precinct.

Charles Wussow, acting chairman of the Outagamie County Republican Party Statutory Committee, reminded potential candidates that write-in votes are no longer allowed for committeeman.

If the ballot is blank for a district, the post is filled by the party by appointment.



Showers Are Forecast tonight for Florida, the Midwest and the northern Great Plains states. Rain is predicted for the Northwest. There will be cooler weather in the Rocky Mountains and mild weather in the Midwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Way Seen to Cut Education Costs

Program Audits May Eliminate Low Enrollment College Courses

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — What could become a powerful tool in curbing costs in higher education has been handed without ceremony to the Coordinating Council for Higher Education

A thick staff report prepared by L Joseph Lins of the agency's staff details enrollment and production of every educational department in Wisconsin's public and private universities

Coupled with a law passed with little notice by the 1969 Legislature, the report could be the first step in cutting back on high cost and low enrollment programs — or duplicating efforts among the state's public and privately - supported colleges.

That law explicitly gave the CCHE power to end courses as well as to approve the creation of new ones.

Program Audits

The combination of the Lins report and the law could lead to "program audits" of the effectiveness of specialized course work.

Audits could "mean the discontinuance of some programs that are marginal, that are high cost when figured on a per-student basis," says CCHE Associate Director William White.

"We are all concerned with small classes and small enrollments that make excessive demands on a cost per-student basis," White says

Lins acknowledged that there are at present no clear measures which can be applied to mark achievement in such programs.

Educational officials throughout the nation are working on such guidelines, however, he said. Other guidelines for educational measurement have been applied in the past by the CCHE in such areas as space needed for various aspects of university work

The report, says Lins, "can identify disciplines with few degree outputs which, if further analysis reveals low enrollment-high cost patterns, should be questioned with a view toward consolidation, elimination or continuance only if approved."

CCHE Support

The report and its implications have drawn the support of CCHE members.

Thomas Cheeks, Milwaukee, told the program committee of the agency that such work should have been the responsibility of university officials in the past

"I think that it should be the responsibility of a dean of a school to make sure that this is being done," he said of the audit concept.

Retiring University of Wisconsin Regent Pres. James Nellen of DePere agreed, saying that the responsibility is one of the "continuing" functions of those appointed to administer a school

Lins said that it will be difficult to develop the guidelines for the variety of course-work offered in Wisconsin schools, but the standards are needed and will be useful, he said.

"The Council might wish to consider a policy which would deny new program development in the disciplines not achieving established guidelines," he suggested as one result of the study.

Police Look for Red GTO Possibly Involved in Crash

Appleton police are searching for a red, 1966 Pontiac GTO which may have figured in an accident late Sunday night at Wisconsin Avenue and Meade Street which injured seven persons and demolished two cars

Statements from several witnesses indicate that one of the cars involved in the crash driven by Shane P. Mullers, 26 926 W. Packard St., was drag racing with the GTO prior to the mishap and may have been traveling over 70 m.p.h. at the time of impact with the other car

Witnesses described the driver of the GTO which sported travel stickers on the right rear window, as between 35 and 40 years old, with a woman and child in the car at the time of the alleged race

The auto was last observed leaving the accident scene and heading north on Meade Street

Narcotics Squad Idea 'A Long-Needed Start'

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Some lawmen active in the drug control fight like Outagamie County Dist Atty James Long's idea of a countywide narcotics squad

Like Long, they feel that while not the whole answer to the drug problem, "it's a long-needed start

Long, on June 17, revealed to the Outagamie County Board's Courts and Justice Committee, plans to seek a well-trained, three man team that would work out of his office on nothing but narcotics investigations

In making his proposal, Long cited the ineffectiveness of present law enforcement efforts to curb a runaway drug problem in Appleton and Outagamie County

Although at this point Long is talking of a three-year "pilot project," he envisions the narcotics squad becoming a permanent fixture in the county's law enforcement machinery. "I don't think the drug problem is going to diminish," he said

Long said he would like to see his proposal go to the County Board no later than next month Meanwhile, he said he will continue to look into federal funding for the program which he estimated would cost about $50,000 a year Salaries for each of the three drug investigators would be between $10,000 and $12,000 a year under Long's proposa.

Long indicated impatience at what he believes is the lack of concern on the part of most of the public toward the drug problem "I hope we don't have to wait until someone meets a violent death attributable to drugs before action is taken" he said

He sees his narcotics squad proposal as a way of telling Outagamie County "all right, community, you give us the money and we'll attack the problem Or don't give us the money and the problem will remain"

Long, citing the fact that only three narcotics arrests have been made in Outagamie County this year, sees an increase in arrests if the narcotics squad is formed. "At least they (the drug violators) will know we're on their backs," he said

An Appleton detective, critical of the way his department has gone about attacking the drug problem, hailed Long's narcotics squad proposal as "something that was needed a long time ago

"We need a drug unit where the men will set their own hours If the job requires them to work 60 to 80 hours a week, then let them work that many. If we're serious about attacking the drug problem, we're not going to do it working a straight 40-hour week"

He added, "We're not kidding ourselves into thinking this (the squad) will eliminate the problem But if we are effective, maybe we can at least price this stuff (narcotics) out of reach of the kids.

Anti-drug Program

What other vitamins are needed to strengthen the weakening drug battle? The following are some of the proposals put forth by policemen close to the problem —Establish better methods of communication between drug investigators on various area police departments. Police agree there is need for a much more extensive exchange of information if investigations are to be strengthened and unduplicated.

—Allow for more flexibility of working hours for drug investigators — "so we can work when they (the drug peddlers) are working"

—Pay police informants instead of expecting them to work "undercover" for nothing. Some policemen feel that part of the reason the supply of informants has become nearly exhausted is because the informants are not paid for their services. "You can't expect people to just come along and say, 'I'll work for you'," a detective remarked He noted that informants working for federal investigation agencies often are paid.

Continue Drug Education

—Let the schools, churches, doctors, lawyers and special groups carry on the drug education efforts and let police handle the law enforcement end of the drug problem. Appleton police give about 30 drug talks a month at schools, clubs and organizations. Some policemen think the time involved could better be used to investigate drug complaints. Some of the same men who give the talks question their effectiveness.

"I'm beginning to wonder if it does any good," Sheriff Calvin L. Spice said.

—Allow for multi-county deputization of investigators from various police agencies. This, some policemen feel, would permit them to work entire areas on an investigation without regard for municipal boundry lines — lines where police must now stop because of limited jurisdiction.

In the words of a policeman who deals with drug cases every working day:

"We've got to attack the problem head on. It will mean some new approaches to law enforcement. There will have to be some changes.

"If we don't do this, we're not serious about the drug problem. We're just talking a good game."

Extravagence Charge Hits BOGO, Regents

BY TIM WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — University regents and usually conservative lawmakers have been 'umped together for criticism for "princely" pay raises they have approved in recent weeks by the Public Expenditure Survey of Wisconsin.

The tax-study group has attacked the regents of Wisconsin's two university systems for "big money" pay hikes approved in the last month, and tacked onto the blast a shaft aimed at the Board on Government Operations

That agency is the interim emergency funding arm of the legislature, and has been dominated for the past year by strong conservatives who have kept a tight grip on the purse strings the 1969 session left in their hands when it recessed.

Terming BOGO members "culprits," the tax group in a recent publication said:

"This month that group changed the pay scales of 36 state agency heads so that the top maximum moves from $27,876 a year to $30,568.

"Taxpayers find growing concern over the accelerating numbers and pay of public employes," warned the survey newsletter

It attacked the regents of the University of Wisconsin for handing out "princely high echelon pay boosts in the UW administration"

The state university system regents did the same, said the survey

"True, the regents are not spending beyond the over-all level authorized by the state legislature, but the budget was authorized in an entirely different economic atmosphere than we have today," said the newsletter

"The over-all general purpose budget total was 36 per cent higher than actual spending of the 1967-68 biennium and the legislature wasn't concerned about declining business. It was sure the sugar bowl would be continually replenished by a rising economy," it continued.

"The outlook is entirely different today," warned the survey.

"As men of wisdom and accomplishment in many fields the regents could have recognized this without feeling compelled to act as though our tax-supported higher education system must be given the red-carpet treatment regardless of what happens in the rest of the world," it stated.

The UW regents handed out pay increases to virtually all top administrators except UW Pres. Fred Harrington, who retires Oct. 1.

The state university system did the same for its staffers.

State Bar Fee Hike Request Is Cut By Supreme Court

MADISON—The State Bar of Wisconsin has been turned down in an attempt to set maximum membership fees at $50 a year.

Lawyers in the state should not have to pay more than $40 a year for their required membership in the bar, said the State Supreme Court in approving a $10 hike in the fee structure.

The bar had asked for a $20 boost.

The high court said that in a situation involving an integrated bar, to which all attorneys must belong, fees should not be set at a level higher than can be justified by current proper expenditures of the organization.

Judicial and inactive members of the bar pay half of the normal maximum fee

Chief of Staff Named For Air National Guard

MADISON (AP)— Brig Gen. Oliver S. Ryerson of McFarland was Tuesday appointed by Gov. Warren P. Knowles as chief of staff of the Wisconsin Air National Guard.

Knowles said Col. Arlie M. Mucks Jr, now deputy chief of staff, has been appointed assistant adjutant general for the air guard.

The post was created during the last Wisconsin legislative the last session.

Problem for Parents

College Attendance, Cost Soar in Valley

This Fall, a greater proportion of Outagamie County's young people than ever before will be heading for college. The same is true for Calumet, Waupaca and Winnebago Counties.

And, for the parents of most of them, it presents a bigger financial problem than before because college costs have been zooming skyward.

The result is that funds they had set aside for the purpose are no longer adequate. Added to this is the fact that bank loans are harder to get, interest rates are high and Federal aid to needy students has been reduced.

Hardest Hit

Hardest hit by the mounting costs and the tight money conditions are those families that have more than one child going to college at the same time. They have to dig even deeper.

Based upon the number of Outagamie County students heading for college and upon the new tuition rates, their families will be carrying a $10,871,000 load for the coming academic year, it is estimated.

Data on college enrollments for the coming semester and on the costs involved were compiled by the U.S. Office of Education, the Census Bureau and others.

Outagamie Total

Their figures indicate that 1,840,000 youths will be starting college this year, bringing the total enrollment to a record 7,700,000.

Outagamie County's contingent will total 4,230, it is estimated. This compares with 1,590 in the local area who were going to college in 1960.

How much they will have to pay will depend upon where they are going. The range is broad.

At state colleges and other publicly-supported institutions the average outlay will be about $1,250 for tuition, fees, room and board. That is the price for those living in the state. For non-residents it is higher.

Year's Cost

Private colleges also vary widely in cost, the average being about $2,720, the Office of Education states.

But that's not all. Then comes the cost of transportation, books, clothing, recreation and miscellaneous items.

Taking everything into consideration, the total cost of a year in a public college at this time is around $1,750 and, in a private college, $3,400.

The $10,871,000 price tag for Outagamie County parents is on the presumption that the local students will divide equally between public and private colleges.

Attendance Soars

The increase in college attendance in Valley counties has more than doubled in the 10 year period from 1960 to 1970.

In Calumet County, it is estimated that 350 students attended college in 1960. The 1970 figure is 890 and the cost this year is expected to total about $2.3 million.

Waupaca County had 550 students enrolled in 1960. This year the estimate is 1,240 and the total cost will be approximately $3.2 million.

The cost of a college education for Winnebago County's estimated 4,380 students in 1970 will be more than $11.2 million. In 1960, 1,680 Winnebago County students were enroiled in colleges and universities.

Forgery Case Bound Over in Circuit Court

The case of Kenneth C. Gloudemans, 24, formerly of Kaukauna, was bound over to the Circuit Court Monday afternoon after a preliminary hearing in Outagamie County Court Branch 2.

He is charged by Appleton police with issuing two forged checks at the Appleton State Bank May 21 totaling $240. Gloudemans is being held in the county jail under $1,500 bond. No date was set for further proceedings.

Chief state's witness to testify Monday was Ronald Pitt, Combined Locks, whose name was signed on the checks which Gloudemans issued.

Under direct examination by Assistant Dist. Atty. R. Thomas Cane, Pitt said he once lived directly across the hall from Gloudemans when the two lived above a Kaukauna tavern. Pitt was unable to lock the door to his room, he said, because he had misplaced the key.

Pitt was unaware any checks were missing from his checkbook, he said, until being notified by detectives who explained the May 21 incident.

Cane also called two tellers from the Appleton State Bank to testify, both of whom identified Gloudemans as the one who produced the checks in question on May 21.

Gloudemans was taken into custody last Wednesday afternoon by federal agents in Appleton. The checks were drawn on the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Kaukauna.

The Law and You

Single Incident Can Involve You in Two Legal Situations

BY THE WISCONSIN BAR

When two cars crash, for instance, two kinds of law may sometimes go into play. One is criminal law and the other, civil law.

Under criminal law, the police and district attorney look into the accident and may decide that one or both parties broke a traffic law.

In a criminal action, the prosecutor must prove beyond all reasonable doubt that the driver broke a certain law. It is no defense for you that the other driver also broke the law. If the court finds that the prosector did not prove the crime beyond a reasonable doubt then the state will lose its case. The accused will go free. "Contributory negligence" is no defense to a criminal action.

The second kind of action which may grow out of an auto accident in a civil action. Anyone hurt in the crash may sue the driver or owner of the other car, asking for money damages. In a civil action you have merely to show by a "preponderance" of the evidence, that the other party caused the accident. You as "plaintiff" do not have to prove your case beyond all reasonable doubt. But you must retain your own attorney and bring suit to collect damages.

Moreover, in a civil case, unlike the criminal case, other legal doctrines such as comparative negligence or assumption of the risk may reduce or remove all liability.

So a person may be held criminally liable and yet defeat a civil suit where the proper defense is available to him. Likewise, one may be held liable in a civil action and yet found not guilty in a criminal action. This can be because of the greater burden of proof needed for a criminal conviction, or because not every case giving rise to liability in a civil action is made a crime.

Student Group to Hear Pollution Complaints

Students Opposed to Pollution (STOP), a group working with the state attorney general's office, will hear complaints on air and water pollution July 6-8 in Green Bay.

The sessions will be held at the Deckner Avenue campus of the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay from 1 to 5 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. People with complaints against any individuals or industries can present them to the group.

Attic's 'Pulled it Off' With Difficult Opener

Saroyan's 'Time of Your Life' Challenges Stage Crew as Much as Actors, Director

BY DAVID F. WAGNER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life" is one of the great American plays. For several reasons, it is also one of the toughest to do well. Attic Theatre opened its 21st season with it Saturday night. With several minor qualifications, Attic pulled it off.

Saroyan doesn't make it easy for the participants. He challenges not only actors and the director but also the properties. At a couple of points, for instance, mechanical toys are supposed to run down. One, which no stage manager can do right after night, came the opening night. Attic overcame the potential problem by modifying such scenes.

The challenge to actors, however, cannot be avoided or modified. Among the eight or nine major characters, Saroyan demands a variety of acting skills that few amateurs possess. Even the sizable group of minor characters play pivotal roles which can make or break an act.

Schuman's Work Shows

In Joe, the heavy-drinking Philosopher in Residence of Nick's Pacific Street Saloon in San Francisco, the author has created a character of subtlety and far more depth than most actors can give him. Several years ago, I saw a remarkable actor named Steven Garesch create a Joe that was incredibly good. So Chuck Schuman, who plays Joe here, had formidable competition (at least for me) before he began. Even so, Schumann did well for himself. If he lacked the depth that a professional like Garesch possesses, he made up for it in a masterful craftsmanship and thorough preparation that has been his trademark in many Attic productions.

Joe's young friend and, to a degree, patsy, Tom, was given a satisfying reading by Dave Erickson, who neither overplayed nor underplayed the uneducated Tom who falls in love with a two-dollar-prostitute, Kitty Duval. Miss Duval, who has or had many big dreams, is projected capably by Judy Jones, a veteran of academic productions whose training makes her stand out.

Kit Carson the Prize

The real prize role of the play, and the surprise hit of Attic's production, was Kit Carson, given an outstanding reading by Urban Van Susteren an Attic vet who's never been unifying role very well, and Robert Kohl as Dudley, a young man very much in love with Elsie Linda Moeller adds timely comic relief as counterpoint to some of the heavier problems of people like Kitty.

Gordon Case as Harry, an [illegible] comedian, and also [illegible] Greg Garvey as Wesley, an [illegible] pianist as well-cast. Wesley originally was supposed to be black, but Garvey is believable as a long-haired white man [illegible] the hair's [illegible] for 1939.

Neither-Nor

Where Saroyan's play is improper [illegible]. No reference is made to 1939 on the program and several mentions of it in the play are deleted or changed. A mention of Hitler is changed to Mao Tse-Tung. Yet at the end of the play a strong reference is made to 1939 which must have been confusing for some. Dr. Edmund Roney, Attic's new director, has not exactly updated the play, nor has he made it timeless. The time setting just has been confused a bit.

Although his lines are few, Len Krueger has a tough role as the Arab. He must sit on stage, brooding, nearly the entire time better — at least since I first saw Attic plays in 1962. Van Susteren does a modified W. C. Fields' characterization, which is perfect for the salty old Indian fighter whose tales run taller than truth.

As Nick, Chuck Kolb plays a Holding a character that long is difficult.

Other minor, but pivotal performances are very polished were turned in by Peter Vollmer as the Drunkard, Marilyn Auer as Mary L., Jim Auer as Krupp the cop, Peter Rothe as McCarthy, Lillian Mackesy and John C. Hanchett as a society couple and John Burkhardt as a newsboy. Also appearing were Gary Simpson as Willie, Le Brun Frye as Lorene, Harris Liechty as Black Bernice Marshall as Nick's ma, Larry Frye as a sailor, Daphne Siegert and Sue Mullen as street walkers and Scott Dykema and David Marks as cops.

Maury Johnson's set was appropriately Thirty-ish. Other technical values, including costumes, were carefully considered and effectively executed.

"The Time of Your Life" continues its run at 8:15 tonight and and again July 1-3, 5 and 7-11. Sunday night curtain is 7:15.

CBS Reports On Military

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 Channel 2 — Where We Stand In Indochina is the title of a CBS news special report assessing the accomplishments and costs of the U.S. military incursion into Cambodia. Chief Foreign Correspondent Charles Collingwood will anchor the broadcast, with reporters Morley Safer and Bert Quint in South Vietnam, Bernard Kalb in Cambodia, Bill McLaughlin in Laos and Dan Rather and Roger Mudd in Washington, D.C.

6:30-8:30 Channels 2-7 — Lancer and The Red Skelton Show disappear from television forever. Red will reappear next September on NBC and in a shortened format as a new movie series premieres. The Tuesday Night Movies. Mostly the films will be repeats, but the first one hasn't been telecast before. It's "Five Weeks in a Balloon" and it's sort of a low-budget "Around the World in 80 Days." It's a comedy based on a Jules Verne novel and it stars Red Buttons, Barbara Eden, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Peter Lorre, Fabian, Richard Haydn and Barbara Luna. A 1962 release which is amusing light viewing for a warm summer's evening.

6:30-7 Channel 5 — The marriage between Jeannie and her astronaut is getting close enough for them to go to the license bureau where, among other things, they must take a blood test. (R)

6:30-7:30 Channels 11-9 — Carolyn Jones has an actress' dream role on The Mod Squad and she makes the most of it. She's a recent widow, whose husband has committed suicide. Her erratic behavior seems to stem from that fact coupled with an unexpected attempt on her life. (R)

7:30-9 Channels 11-9 — The Movie of the Week gives you a chance to see Ken Berry in something other than his Mayberry R.F.D. role. Here he plays an accident-prone American officer who winds up unintentionally parachuting into Germany during the closing days of World War II. He falls into the hands and arms of Eva Gabor, a wealthy baroness who decided to keep this new toy. So when the war ends, she hires people to pretend it's not over. Werner Klemperer, Hans Conried, Alan Hewitt, Jim Backus and Danielle De Metz are among the good clowns in the cast. (R)

7:30-8 Channel 5 — Turns out Julia and Dr. Chegley spend time on Saturdays working at a children's medical clinic. That's where she wants the parents of a small Mexican boy who needs treatment to take the lad. (R)

8:30-9 Channels 2-7 — Michael Ansara plays a South American dictator on The Governor and J.J. He's also an old college chum of the gov's and the dictator's visit to the capitol causes all kinds of problems. (R)

10-11 Channel 11 — Marcus Welby, M.D. is very good with young Belinda Montgomery and Richard Thomas giving fine performances as a young couple expecting their first baby. However, she had earlier been indiscreet and had had an abortion, a fact which complicates this pregnancy and her relations with her unknowing husband. (R)

Police & Fire Beat

Archie R. Wedde, 28, 1932 W. Second St., complained of head pain Saturday afternoon when the auto he was driving went out of control on a curve on W. Second Street near Perkins Street and came to rest in the ditch after uprooting two trees. He was taken to Theda Clark Hospital, according to Outagamie County traffic officers.

CLINTONVILLE — William E. Ernst, 18, route 1, Marion, remained hospitalized Sunday night at Clintonville Community Hospital with severe cuts to his head and face after an accident at 9:50 p.m. Friday on County Trunk OO, a mile east of County Trunk E.

Ernst was traveling west on E when his right front tire blew, according to Lyle McCully of the Waupaca County traffic patrol who investigated the one-car accident.

Ernst lost control, ran into a ditch, broke off a telephone pole and a tree and rolled over. The car landed on its top and Ernst was pinned inside.

The driver was taken to the hospital in the Reuer Sievers and McFarren ambulance. The 1963 model car was a total loss.

Police said Wedde was driving about 12:30 a.m. Sunday on St. John's Street.

Steve Yeager, 1511 S. Pearl St., sustained head injuries and was taken to Theda Clark Memorial Hospital, Neenah. Maurice Geiger, 402 E. Cook St., was treated for chest and shoulder injuries and face cuts. Tom Hobbs, 19, 1837 Pershing Road, the driver of the auto, was treated for lacerations, chest injuries and cuts and bruises. Both were taken to New London Community.

Hobbs told authorities his auto [illegible] Street and left the road when he was southbound on St. John's Street and left the road when he apparently fell asleep.

The vehicle was a total loss.

HILBERT — A fire of undetermined origin Saturday destroyed a 40 by 60 foot barn, a [illegible] house and shed owned by Gilbert Hebrner, route 1.

The Hebrners were visiting at their daughter's home nearby when the blaze was noticed around 1 p.m.

Damage to the structures was estimated at $12,000. Hay and [illegible] stored in the barn were destroyed. The property was partially covered by insurance.

The Chilton Fire Department answered the call.

KAUKAUNA — The theft of between $2 and $9 from coin boxes on vigil light stands at Holy Cross Church was reported to police Saturday morning.

Locks on the coin boxes were forced. Police could find no sign of forced entry into the church.

KAUKAUNA — A single-car mishap early this morning about 3½ miles north of here on State 55 brought right leg cuts and bruises to Donald D. Reader, 22, route 1, Outagamie County traffic officials said. Reader was northbound on State 55 when he was forced off the road by an oncoming vehicle, crossed over to the left side of the road and flipped over in the ditch.

There was $1,500 damage to the car.

The second regular monthly meeting of the Appleton Board of Education was held in the Board of Education Conference Room on Monday, May 25, 1970. The meeting was called to order by the President, Kenneth Sager, at 7:15 P.M.

The following Board members were present: Messrs. Sager, Schneider, Stevens, Becker and Mrs. McClanahan. Absent: Messrs. Buchanan and Sumnicht.

Mr. Becker moved approval of the minutes of the May 11, 1970, meeting with a correction to the first paragraph of page 11 to include "Second by Mr. Buchanan and carried on roll call vote." Second by Mr. Schneider and carried.

Mrs. McClanahan moved approval of the minutes of the May 18, 1970 special meeting as circulated. Second by Mr. Schneider and carried.

Communications were read.

Hearing of delegations was called for with Mrs. David Patterson responding to request the Board's participation in the drug, alcohol, tobacco conference sponsored by CESA No. 8 whereby fifty teachers from the Appleton Public School System would be paid $100 for a one-week training program to be held in August. Following a 90 minute discussion, Mr. Becker moved that the administration be instructed to select fifty teachers to attend this conference. Second by Mr. Stevens.

With the permission of the seconder, Mr. Stevens, Mr. Becker changed his motion to instruct the administration to select fifty teachers to participate in the CESA No. 8 drug conference if funding is provided by the Fiscal Control Board. Second by Mr. Stevens. Roll call vote resulting in five ayes and three no votes. Motion lost.

Mr. Stevens moved that a committee be appointed immediately at the President's discretion to include a member of the Fiscal Control Board, Common Council, School Administration, Social Worker and whomever else he saw fit and by our next regular meeting have a total report and recommendation so that if money is available from the Fiscal Control Board we can set forth a program. Second by Mr. Schneider and carried.

Mr. Schneider moved acceptance of the low combined bid of Badger Paving Company, Appleton, Wisconsin in the amount of $31,772.70 for the publication of the Appleton High School West yearbook, CLARION, for 1,300 copies and Appleton High School East yearbook, LANTERN, for 1,400 copies. Second by Mrs. McClanahan and carried on roll call vote.

Mrs. McClanahan moved acceptance of the low bid from Delong Subscription Service, Lafayette, Indiana for magazine subscriptions for the Appleton Public School System for the 1970-71 school year in the amount of $7,140.26. Second by Mr. Schneider and carried on roll call vote.

Mr. Schneider moved acceptance of the following fuel bids:

Anthracite egg coal — $24.00 per ton from J. P. Laux & Son Fuel Co., Appleton, Wisconsin.

No. 5 fuel oil — $.1028 per gallon from Gustafson Oil Co., Green Bay, Wisconsin.

No. 2 fuel oil — $.1185 less 1% per gallon, from Atlantic Refining Company, Appleton, Wisconsin.

Second by Mr. Becker and carried on roll call vote.

Mrs. McClanahan moved approval of the following new contracts and leave of absence for the 1970-71 school year:

Leonard F. Nagler IV-5	9,457.33
Celeste R. Sharer I-1	7,433.33
Gregory J. Tate I-1	7,433.33
Resource — Class-Step	Salary
Mrs. W. Larson IV-9	$10,722.97
Jeanne A. Tubesing I-1	7,433.33

Leave of Absence for 1970-71

Mrs. Phyllis Krueger — Elementary

Second by Mr. Schneider and carried on roll call vote.

Mr. James Westphal, Elementary Director, presented a recommendation for a time schedule change as a pilot program in the following elementary schools, Wisconsin, and for determination and Franklin, Huntley, Johnston and McKinley for the 1970-71 school year. The schedule will be as follows:

8:00-9:00 A.M. Teacher Planning Time
9:00-12:00 Noon Pupil Classes
12:00-1:00 P.M. Noon Hour
1:00-3:40 P.M. Pupil Classes

Teachers remain until 4:00 P.M.

Miss Helga Eggener, Elementary Consultant, presented a report and recommendation for a pilot program in the Appleton Public School System under the Wisconsin Design for Reading Skill Development Program. Following discussion, Mrs. McClanahan moved that the Board postpone action on the two aforegoing recommendations until the next Board meeting. Second by Mr. Schneider. Roll call vote showed four ayes votes and one no vote. Carried.

With regard to earlier business on the drug problem conference, Mr. Stevens requested that there be a special Board of Education meeting to hear the recommendations of the appointed committee prior to the Fiscal Control Board meeting on June 9, 1970.

Old Business

The matter of review of construction costs as related to the bid opening for Appleton High School West on May 4 was discussed at this time. Mr. Sager pointed out the Board's alternatives as follows: (1) Rebid entire project reducing the gymnasium; (2) Not to rebid, but request additional money from the Fiscal Control Board; (3) Consider adding $500,000 to bonding request at the time the northside elementary school on the Memorial property is built. Following discussion and comments from the architects, James Zwaeck and Richard Peeples, the Appleton Public Schools Construction Coordinator, Mr. Dusseault, on alternate plans, pleas on legal ramifications of rebidding, Mrs. McClanahan moved to reject bids for the remodeling of and addition to Appleton High School West and rebid the project. Second by Mr. Becker and carried on roll call vote.

Mrs. McClanahan moved to request the architectural firm of Zwaeck and Peeples Ltd. to redesign the remodeling of and addition to Appleton High School West omitting the third floor H.M.C. including the gymnasium addition in the base bid and draw specifications for brick exterior as a base bid with precast concrete as an alternate. Second by Mr. Schneider and carried on roll call vote.

Mr. Stevens moved that the Zwaeck and Peeples architectural firm be instructed to move as quickly as possible to readvertise for bidding the redesign of Appleton High School West, a date not to exceed 60 days. Second by Mrs. McClanahan and carried.

Mr. Schneider moved that the specifications for the exterior of the Addition to Appleton High School West be continued as originally drawn using precast concrete as the base bid with brick as an alternate. Second by Mr. Stevens and carried on roll call vote.

New Business

Mr. Schneider moved that the Board request permission from the Fiscal Control Board to employ an architect to begin plans for an elementary school on recently acquired Memorial property. Second by Mr. Stevens and carried.

Adjournment was moved by Mr. Schneider, seconded by Mrs. McClanahan and carried.

AMVETS Give Americanos $200 for Trip

The Appleton Amvets Post 30 has donated $200 to the Americanos Drum and Bugle Corps' fund for its West Coats trip, Aug 17 to Sept. 3.

The Amvets' donation is the largest the Americanos have received to date. The fund still is $3,000 short of the $15,000 goal

According to Corps Director William Schultz, bus transportation to and from the West Coast will cost $12,500 and meals and miscellaneous expenses $2,500 Corps members have raised $6,000 and provided another $6,000 themselves.

The Americanos, recent second place winners in the state VFW Drum and Bugle Corps Contest, we invited to Lakewood, a Los Angelos suburb, by a local corps. They will march and give personal appearances there for a week and then go to Portland, Ore., to compete in the National Drum and Bugle Corps Contest.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Display Fresh Flowers With a Paper Cup Vase

BY CAPPY DICK

Fresh-cut flowers with stems of moderate length can be displayed in a vase a boy or girl can make from two identical paper cups as in figure 2.

Tall cups should be used. Carefully cut the bottom out of each one, then fasten the cups together by taping with transparent tape. This will produce a combination open from top to bottom.

The next step is to color the cups with poster paints or, if preferred, with bands of colored mending tape, to make them appear as a single unit.

Select a water glass that will fit inside the cups as in figure 1.

Fill the glass with water, place the cups over it, and put fresh flowers in the vase so the stems rest in the water.

To change the water from day to day simply lift the flowers and the cups away from the glass.

45 Special stunts and games in Cappy's booklet.

Mothers and fathers! If you want new ideas to entertain your children and their guests at birthday parties, you'll find 45 of them in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin plus a self-addressed, stamped envelope to CAPPY DICK BOOKLETS, P. O. Box 42077, Evergreen Park, Illinois 60642.

Tomorrow: A new device to run a double-gyro racer set!

Alomar Fools Brewers, Leads A's to 10-3 Win

Slaps 4 Hits in Romp; Harper Stars in Loss

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sandy Alomar never hits to right field. That fable spells delight or disaster, depending on whether you're Lefty Phillips or Dave Bristol.

The Milwaukee Brewers, having calculated Alomar to be a short-distance hitter, pulled their outfielders in close to the infield to snare his swats.

He responded with two triples, a double and a single to pace the California Angels to a 10-3 victory in what he called "the best day I've had in the majors."

"I guess we sold him a little short," Brewer manager Bristol said. "I've never seen him pull the ball to right before."

Angel manager Phillips affirmed. "He never hits to right. I'd bet he'd hit four balls that way all season."

"They always play me like that," Alomar said about the snug outfield. "But tonight I was waiting long for my pitch."

Resumes Streak

The recently hot hitter, whose 22-game hitting streak was interrupted Sunday, resumed Monday in the opening inning when he smacked loser Marty Pattin's initial pitch through a gap to the right-center field wall for a triple. Roger Repoz followed with a homer, his eighth.

In the third, the switch hitter —batting left-handed throughout the game—hit a run-scoring double to right field off the glove of Brewer Tommy Harper, who had been switched to the outfield from the infield because of a wrist injury.

Alomar reached base in the fifth when hit by a pitched ball to set off a four-run rally. He tripled in the sixth off the right field wall.

Scoring was concluded after seven innings, but Alomar was still at it, hitting a single in the eighth to raise his batting average to .279.

Foxes Down Clinton, 5-2, Lead Second-Round Race

Quincy Will Play Here Tonight

BY JOHN L. PALSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

The defending champion Appleton Foxes continued to show they mean business in the League season as they unleashed a burst of mid-game power to whip Clinton 5-2 here Monday night.

Tonight, the Foxes (2-0), who lead the second round race after finishing fourth in the first-half, challenge Quincy's first-round champion Cubs in the opener of a vital 2-game series at Goodland Field.

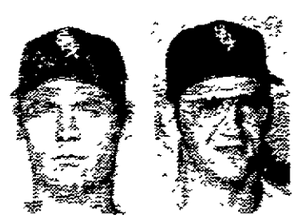
Ken Hottman and Jim Redmon last night duplicated some of their familiar heroics of the 1963 pennant drive. With the score tied, 2-2, in the bottom of the fifth, Redmon laced a 1-out triple to right center. Hottman blasted a home run to put the Foxes ahead for good.

Redmon led off the seventh with a single and scurried home on Hottman's long double to left center, as insurance was added.

Hottman, tabbed by Coach Jim Mahoney as "the best outfielder in the league right now," is coming on even stronger than last year when he hit averaged .264 and hit eight homers in a partial season here.

At .405 Pace

The sturdy (5-11, 190) Hottman has whistled the ball at a .405 clip in the last 10 games to boost his season's average to .299. After hitting only two home runs in his first 34 games,



Hottman Redmon

Ken has socked four in the last 10 outings.

Redomon, who has played just two games since returning from Mobile, of the Southern League, has three hits in eight trips and is fielding just as flashily as he did last season.

Southpaw Dennis Deck pitched six innings to pick up win No. 6 in his last seven decisions. Since Deck had already thrown 102 pitches on a hot, humid night, Manager Ira Hutchinson decided to entrust the final three frames to his bullpen.

Len Massaro, a 6-4 righthander, mopped up in high style to preserve the victory. Massaro was especially sharp in the ninth after the Pilots had put men on second and third with only one out. Len struck out Darrell Porter, the highly-touted bonus catcher of the Milwaukee Brewers and induced Jerry Martz to ground out to Redmon.

Five of the Foxes, including Hottman and Redmon, produced two hits apiece. The others were Deck, Gary Isakson and Stu Singleton. One of Deck's hit's drive in a run.

Waupaca's Giles, Stratton Win Channel 11-Miller Test

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

GREEN BAY — Veteran Waupaca Country Club pro Gene Giles rammed home a 35-foot putt for an eagle 3 on the first extra hole of a sudden death playoff, lifting him and amateur teammate John Stratton to victory in the first WLUK-TV-Miller High Life Best-Ball Golf Tournament here Monday.

It was an unexpected early finish to the meet, which moments before had ended in a 4-way deadlock among 2-man teams from the Oshkosh, Rhinelander and Wisconsin Rapids Bull's Eye Country Clubs in addition to Waupaca after the regulation 18 holes.

The Oneida Golf and Riding Club's 18th hole was played over again as the sudden death site in deference to Channel 11 television cameras, and the exciting climax brought smiles to tournament officials and participants alike.

Giles opened the par 5, 490-yard 18th with a solid drive of about 280 yards that cut the middle of the fairway but still trailed Oshkosh pro Bob Below, who belted his tee shot in the neighborhood of 320 yards.

Unshaken by Below's prodigious drive, Giles then smacked a fine 4-wood shot that put him on the left side of the green and in position for the eagle. Below, meanwhile, also hit the green with an iron shot but then rolled into the frogpair at the top about 50 feet away.

The other six players in the interim were unable to reach the green with their second shots, and thus interest now centered on the only two white specks that dotted the green.

Below, the farther away, struck his putt first but was strong and rolled three feet past the cup. Giles then sent his ball toward the hole, and seemingly at the last turn, the shot dropped into the cup.

"It went straight in," beamed the 47-year old pro afterwards afterwards. "The greens here today were absolutely beautiful."

Giles, now in his second year at the Waupaca Country Club (he was also pro there from 1957 through 1959), was making his second spectacular shot of the day when he sank the final

Mets Rally in 9th To Edge Pirates as Clendenon Stars

BY DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Donn Clendenon thinks Pittsburgh is the team to beat in the National League . . . and it seems he's determined to do it all by himself.

Clendenon drove in the winning run with a pinch hit sacrifice fly Monday night as the New York Mets rallied in the ninth inning to nip the Pirates 3-2 in a first place showdown between East Division contenders.

It was the Mets' second victory in five meetings with Pittsburgh this season . . . and ex-Pirate Clendenon has provided the margin each time in the pinch.

The part-time first baseman hero of the Mets' World Series triumph over Baltimore last October, shook up his teammates and Manager Gil Hodges on the eve of the season opener at Pittsburgh by picking the Pirates to take the pennant. The next day his two-run pinch single in the 11th gave New York a 5-5 victory.

Capped Comeback

His sacrifice fly in the ninth Monday night capped a two-run comeback, nailed Tom Seaver's 12th victory of the season, snapped the Pirates' winning streak at seven and gave the Mets a one-game edge in the division race.

Pinch hitters also supplied the punch as the St. Louis Cardinals struck for four runs in the eighth to down Chicago 8-6 and move past the skidding Cubs into third place in the East, 3½.

Phil, Herb Talk but Fail To Agree

GREEN BAY — Packer Coach Phil Bengtson and estranged Packer cornerback Herb Adderley discussed their differences by telephone Monday but Bengtson reported nothing happened . . . although we're going to have another discussion."

Bengtson said that Adderley had called him last Friday but that he was not in his office at the time. The coach returned the call Monday and referred to the conversation as a "nice visit."

Bengtson said that he hoped his next discussion with Adderley could be in person but that it would depend on the schedules of both parties and might have to be held by telephone again.

'Hank' Bruder, Former Packer Back, Dies

MATTOON, Ill. (AP) — Henry "Hank" Bruder, 62, who starred as a halfback at Northwestern University from 1926 through 1930 and then went on to a nine-year career with the Green Bay Packers, died Monday.

Bruder retired as an employe for Commonwealth Edison Co. in Chicago three years ago. He was hospitalized earlier this month for treatment of bone cancer.

He was captain of the 1930 Northwestern team which was unbeaten in Big Ten competition and tied for the conference title with Michigan.

Bruder, a native of Pekin, was a halfback and linebacker with the National Football League Packers. While he was with Green Bay, the Packers won seven divisional titles and two league championships.

Survivors include his widow, Omega.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Financial Troubles

Bruhn to be Shifted From UW Sports Post

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Milt Bruhn, former Wisconsin football coach, will be dropped as assistant director of the financially troubled University of Wisconsin athletic department, a university official confirmed Monday.

Bruhn, who directed the Badgers to two Rose Bowl games during his 11 years as head coach, has been assistant athletic director since 1966. He will be reassigned to another department, it was disclosed.

Neither Athletic Director Elroy Hirsch nor Bruhn could be reached for comment. Bruhn's $21,000-a-year salary is second in the athletic department only to Hirsch's $31,000.

Disclosure of Bruhn's transfer to another post on the faculty came five days after a state audit report criticized the athletic department for being overstaffed and for not properly maintaining its physical plant.

Also scheduled to be transferred is Fred Marsh, an assistant football coach since he came to Wisconsin under Ivan Williamson in 1959. Marsh draws $14,000.

Jobs Not Set

"The question of exact jobs for these people has not been settled," said Vice Chancellor Robert Atwell. "We're trying to work that out."

After the audit report was issued last week, Hirsch said he agreed with many of its criticisms.

Since his appointment as athletic director in February 1969, he has campaigned for funds to refurbish athletic department facilities.

One of the reasons for the department's financial woes is slumping attendance at Wisconsin football games. The Badgers have suffered through six straight losing campaigns.

Bruhn, 58, racked up a winning record of 52-45-6 as head coach, including trips to the Rose Bowl in 1959 and 1962.

His departure as coach in 1966 came after three losing seasons. His replacement, former Badger quarterback John Coatta, compiled a dismal record of 3-26-1 and was fired.

Coatta's successor, former UCLA Assistant Coach John Jardine, has hired seven new assistants, retaining only Stan Kemp from the Coatta regime.

Bengtson Spells Out 2 'ifs' for 1970

BY LEN WAGNER
Post Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — Packers Coach Phil Bengtson promised the members of the Green Bay Downtown Kiwanis Club Monday that the Packers will be "up there on top if . . ."

And he spelled out two "ifs."

"If our defensive team has an exceptional year and if our quarterback has an exceptional year."

These are the two factors that make a championship team, Bengtson declared while outlining the latest prospects for the rapidly approaching 1970 campaign.

But he did not dwell on quarterback, apparently confident that the position, in the hands of Bart Starr and Don Horn, speaks for itself.

The defense was something else, however. And the general manager coach cited rookie Mike McCoy as a huge plus and Veteran Herb Adderley as a question mark.

Secret is Front Four

"The successful pro football teams are the ones with the fine defensive teams and while this includes the front line, the linebackers and the secondary, the secret seems to be the front four," he said. "They are the ones who must rush the passer and have the best opportunity to nullify a passing attack. And you must beat the teams that throw the ball real well. The Packers were outstanding in this department in their championship years."

With this as a background Bengtson went on to emphasize that "We feel better all the time about our decision" to trade Elijah Pitts, Bob Hyland and LeeRoy Caffey for the chance to draft McCoy.

Bengtson seemed to take particular pleasure in discussing the probability of having McCoy, at about 260 pounds, and Rich Moore, at about 285 pounds, in the middle of the front line. He called them "a fine set of tackles" and noted that middle linebacker Ray Nitschke was also looking forward to playing behind all that poundage.

Underscoring this probability the coach stated, "We will not hesitate to play a rookie just because he's a rookie, though we may restrict his number of assignments."

Noting that McCoy had been timed at 4.73 for his 10th 440 of the day in a recent workout, Bengtson pronounced the massive Notre Dame All-American in good football shape. Referring to McCoy's performance in the Coaches All-American game Saturday night, Bengtson point-walked Porter forced Colucci at second, with Howard taking third. Howard scored as Martz was being thrown out on a slow hopper to third.

Foxes Win to Take Lead in Second Round

Clinton made [illegible] in the fourth, and only good pitching by Deck prevented the Foxes' defeat from becoming worse. Martz led off with a single to center. Norman Thomas reached base on Dana Ryan's bobble. Steve McCartney walloped a double off the right-center field wall, scoring Martz. Deck tightened up and got Bob Hansen on a short fly to right. He walked "Whitney" Adams intentionally but fanned pitcher Clint Burr and got Howard to hit into a force play.

Hoffman [illegible] launched Appleton's game-tying rally. After one out, Wayne Franzen [illegible] singled to center. Stu Singleton singled to right, filling the bases. Ross Sapp's sacrifice fly to center scored one run and Deck's single to right tied the score.

In the Foxes sixth Reamon clouted his triple to the wide open spaces in right center. Burr got over a couple of quick strikes on Hoffman. Then after a waste pitch Burr came up with one Hoffman liked, and the Californian slammed it over the left field fence for his first Good and Field homer of the campaign.

Another Reamon-Hoffman collaboration closed the scoring in the seventh.

FOX TALES — Center fielder Gary Isakson made the defensive play of the night in the sixth inning as he left his feet to spear a drive by Clinton's Bob Hansen. He rolled over and held the ball. ... Foxes home attendance has climbed to 34,086, an average of 1,175 per date. ... Two members of the 1940 Appleton Papermaker team took in the game. They are Swede Erickson, now of Fond du Lac, and Ray Malewski, of Chicago.

JIM MURRAY

Carlos May Fine Example Of Courage

(It was a hot night in Sherman, Texas. On the mound for the local team was a lanky, poker-faced pitcher who was to win 18 games that season and to win that night, 3-2, with a winning hit in the eighth inning. Which was remarkable. Because, nine years before, he had blown his right leg off eight inches above the knee in a hunting accident. "I shot the wrong rabbit," he told his wife as she came upon him that day. In the stands that night at Sherman was the screenwriter, Douglas Morrow. And thus was the Academy Award-winning picture "The Monty Stratton Story," born.)

(The Allied Army was toiling up the boot of Italy. The Germans were making the U.S. 88th Infantry pay heavily for every inch of real estate. On the night of December 7, 1944, a German shell wiped out all but one of a 12-man patrol. Corporal Lou Brissie was spared. If you can call having two shattered legs being spared. He lay for six hours half-in and half-out of a mountain creek. When they carried him to the evacuation hospital, the doctor briskly suggested amputation. Lou Brissie shook his head "No." he said. "I'm a baseball player, a pitcher. Without my legs, I'm nothin'." Lou Brissie reported to the Philadelphia Athletics on crutches but he was to win 14 games for them in 1947 and 16 in 1948.)

Firing Range

(It was August 11, 1969. The sun was searing the hot coastal plain of the firing range as the Marine reservists moved in for mortar practice. "Swab 'em out!" came the command. A young Marine dutifully reached in with a ramrod. There was an explosion. Swab, mortar round, ramrod — and Carlos May's right thumb — were all blown toward the Pacific Ocean. Carlos May had a stump of a right hand. What was left of his thumb was imbedded in his wrist and bones, blood, nerves and tendons leaked over his hand. Two days before, Carlos May had been batting .281 with 18 homers and 18 doubles for the Chicago White Sox and was well on his way to becoming rookie of the year. "Maybe you better forget baseball," the doctor said dubiously as he began a long series of skin grafts at the Long Beach Naval Hospital. "Get me a box of balls for when I get home," Carlos May instructed his wife.)

Courage Indivisible

"Courage," someone once said, "is not divisible." It is an absolute work like "unique," or "perfect." You can't amputate it, graft it, bottle it, package it, buy it or sell it. Those who have it are stuck with it.

Carlos May sat in a locker room the other night and held out his right hand that looked like a badly-sewn mitten. Part of his stomach made a mound between his index finger and thumb knuckle.

If you were born with a deformity, it would be a miracle to be able to grip a bat and throw a ball with it. To have had it only eight months and to batting .291 against major league pitching— well, I guess, "incredible" is an absolute word, too.

"I sent home and I got my wife to start rolling the ball to me on the ground," the 21-year-old outfielder recalled. "I wanted to get the feel of picking a ball up. She rolled it to me by the hour. She's got a lot of guts. She's a great lady."

That night, in Anaheim Stadium, the Angels' fastest baserunner was on third with the bases loaded and one out in a scoreless tie when the batter hit a long fly to left. Sandy Alomar tagged up because it was a tough throw even for a guy with thumbs. Sandy Alomar was out at the plate on a throw on the fly from Carlos May and the inning — and the Angels — were finished. It was the second guy in a week Carlos May had thrown out at the plate.

Rips Thumb Open

It wasn't always that easy. When Carlos May reported to spring training. He ripped his thumb open with his first swing. Tough men with tobacco-chaws in their teeth turned away lest they get sick.

"I was not concerned. I knew it would heal," Carlos said.

"When I first went to the hopsital. I felt sorry for myself. Then I looked around I saw guys with no eyes, guys with no leks, guys with half a head, guys who couldn't talk, walk, hear, guys with no mind or half a mind. I began to think 'What am I griping about?' "

Some guys go through a 20-years old and has already two eyes, legs, 10 fingers, toes, all their teeth and ears and get 100 grand a year and complain through every inning of it. Carlos May is only 21 years old and has laready learned the luckiest lesson any of us can learn: it doesn't have to be this good. He made a rookie-of-the year in a much more major league than the American, in my book.

consecutive games, with Harper confined to pinch-hit duty because of his wrist trouble.

Had Three Hits

He collected three of Milwaukee's 11 hits Monday, however, including two doubles to boost his league-leading total to 25.

He led off for Milwaukee in the first with his 13th homer of the season, and had a ground-rule double in the third.

With California ahead 8-1 in the fifth, Max Alvis hit his second homer of the season for Milwaukee and Harper followed with a double, then scored on Roberto Pena's single.

Southpaw Clyde Wright went seven innings for the Angels to pick up his 11th victory against five losses. Reliever Eddie Fisher allowed three hits, but no more runs.

Milwaukee picked Lew Krausse (5-10) to face Rudy May (4-4) tonight in the second of the Brewer-Angel four-game series.

Gets Super Bowl Ring

Jake Skall Feted for 50 Years of Packer Support

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

The best present Jake Skall received on his 70th birthday Monday was a ring.

This was no ordinary ring. It represented the Green Bay Packers' victory in the first Super Bowl game (1967). Prior to yesterday, the diamond ring belonged to Fred (Fuzzy) Thurston, famed left guard of the Packers' latest championship era.

With more than 100 friends gathering at Skall's Colonial Wonder Bar, Thurston presented the ring to the veteran restauranteur and avid sports fan as the feature of the anniversary fete.

Great Friend

Thurston said Skall symbolizes state fans who have uniquely backed the Packers through the years. It wouldn't have been possible for the Packers to have a great tradition (more titles than any other NFL team), great coaches and great players without great fans, he pointed out.

"He has been a great friend of the Packers for 50 years and a great man for 70 years," said Thurston of Skall.

"He's suffered with us and laughed with us," said Fuzzy. "Jake has always been there to welcome us to his restaurant and help us in defeat or celebrate a victory."

Skall said, "I promise you I'll take good care of it," when Thurston presented him the ring. Fuzzy organized the celebration.

One of the ways in which Skall has supported the Packers has been in the purchase of season tickets. He started by buying 25 at the old Packer stadium. Then, when the club had some financial problems, Skall boosted his order to 50 season tickets.

He added 50 more to his order when the current stadium (Lambeau Field) was built. Skall now uses the tickets in package deals (food and transportation) for Packer games.

Redlegs Defeat Indians, 10-2 in Exhibition Game

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tony Perez hit a home run in the first inning Monday night to spark the Cincinnati Reds to a 10-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians in an exhibition game.

Proceeds of the game went to the Cleveland Baseball Federation for promotion of sandlot programs for some 20,000 Greater Cleveland youngsters.

Perez' homer came off Indians' starter Phil Hennigan. The Reds got three more runs in the third inning and one in the fourth off Hennigan, who left after five innings with the Indians trailing 5-2.

Jimmy Hall Acquired by The Braves

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Atlanta Braves have purchased Jimmy Hall, a former American League All-Star outfielder, from the Chicago Cubs for an undisclosed amount of cash.

The Braves announced the purchase Monday and said Hall should join the team today in Cincinnati.

Hall, 32, a left-handed batter, set an American League record of 33 home runs during his rookie season with the Minnesota Twins in 1963. He also was named to the American League All-Star team in 1964 and 1965.

Hall has a career batting average of .257 in the major leagues. However, he has collected only three hits in 32 trips this year for a .094 average.

In addition to the Twins and Cubs, Hall also has played with the California Angels, Cleveland Indians and New York Yankees.

Nebraska Grad Tom Scantlebury In Bucks' Fold

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks have signed free agent Tom Scantlebury of Nebraska to a National Basketball Association contract, it was announced Monday.

Scantlebury's signing came at the conclusion of the Bucks' four-day rookie training camp. Scantlebury was one of five free agent guards attending the camp, along with six draft choices who already had signed with the Bucks.

The 6-foot-3½ Scantlebury was the fourth highest scorer in University of Nebraska history with a career total of 969 points for a 12.9 careed average. He averaged 14.4 last season.

Al Sampson Hospitalized In Green Bay

GREEN BAY — Channel 11 sportscaster Al Sampson entered St. Vincent's Hospital Monday in preparation for an operation to have polyps scraped from near his vocal chords at noon today.

Sampsn, bothered by hoarseness recently, will likely go on complete "voice rest" for about two weeks, according to his wife.

Jim Gerhard Hits Sub-Par Round In FVGC League

KAUKAUNA — Jim Gerhard fired a 1-under-par 35 to pace the fourth week of action in the Fox Valley Golf Club Twilight League Earl Schuler, Wayne Hull and Mike Derus scored par 36s for runnerup honors

Hietpas Inc. downed General Electric, 16-4, to take over the lead in the First Flight division, while E-Z Glide remained in first in the Acushnet division after downing Hank and Connie's Bar, 15-5

Giles and Stratton Win Golf Tourney

putt Earlier, on the 345-yard seventh hole, he also made an eagle when he hit a wedge shot 50 yeards into the cup for a deuce

Stratton, a 35-year old Cormican insurance agent and the Waupaca club champion, helped his partner to 2-under 34s on both nines. Perhaps his best moment came at No. 14 when he 2-putted for a birdie on the 511-yard hole.

Below an amateur Tom Hoffmaster socked a 35 on the front nine and had a nifty 33 on the back. They counted five birdies along the way.

It had to be a satisfying round for Below, who was hospitalized recently for therapy to a disc in his neck and lay in traction.

Rhinelander's pro-am combination of John Leonard and Mickey McDonald were the best duo through the front nine with a 3-under 33 but setiled for 35 on the back, while the Bull's Eye pair of pro Gib Kizer and amateur Dick Feih had the best back nine with 32 (including four straight birdies) following their 36 on the front.

Among Fox Valley competitors, Fond du Lac South Hills' Bob Ellis and amateur Wally Tack finished with 69 for fifth place, and Manitowoc Branch River's Bob Swift and Paul Jagemann had 70.

Kaukauna Fox Valley's Don Erdmann and Pete Benson hit 71, as Benson turned in two birdies and an eagle during the round. Benson's eagle came on a 45-foot putt at No. 14.

Menasha North Shore's George Nackel and John Manier posted a 72. Appleton Reid's Mitch Joannes and Pat Malloy a 73, and Combined Locks Oakwood Hills' Lou Glaser and Tom Bongers carved out 79.

For winning, Giles took home a check for $250 while the pros tying for second, third, and fourth — Rhinelander's John Leonard, Bull's Eye's Gib Kizer, and Below — each received $133.33. Fond du Lac pro Bob Ellis won $55 for fifth place.

Stratton won $200 in merchandise for the top amateur prize, while Rhinelander's Mickey McDonald, Bull's Eye's Dick Feih, and Oshkosh's Tom Hoffmaster each won $133.33 in merchandise. South Hills amateur Wally Tack took $55 for his fifth place.

Feih also won a golf bag, Hoffmaster a carry-all, and McDonald two sets of head covers.

2 No-Hitters Pitched in ARD Cub League Action

Tom Barndt hurled a 2-hitter romp over Tusler Motors later as the Pirates blanked the Dodgers, 11-0, in the Appleton Recreation Department's Minor League at Einstein.

In other Minor League games, the Cardinals whipped the Cubs, 10-7, and the Giants slapped the Reds, 13-10.

A pair of no-hitters highlighted action in the Cub League last week. Gari Tate paced UCT over Valley Ready Mix, 6-0, at Erb Park No. 1. Ed Schwalbach and Tim Gerrity combined for a no-hitter as McClone's downed Damrow's, 9-3, at Linwood.

Brian Schwartz hurled a 1-hitter at Hoover as Damrow's beat Toms Drive-in, 9-0. Keith Otte allowed only one hit as Catholic Knights topped Schabo, 4-1, in another Hoover game.

Eric Larsen won two games for the Police Dept., to highlight play in the Cadet League. He pitched a no-hitter in beating Badger Highway, 13-0, and then stopped Fox Valley Tire, 14-0.

Gary Van Berkle slugged two home runs and drove in seven as Valley Dry Wall blanked Damrows, 11-0, at Wilson. Doug Mielke hurled a no-hitter and cracked a grand slam homer to lead Valley Dry Wall to a 23-7 romp over Tusler Motors later in the week.

Mike Mowry struck out 14 batters in Sindahls' 15-1 win over Appleton Oil at Franklin No. 2. Rick Gladfelter pitched a 1-hit, 8-0, win for Hallman Paint at Hoover in defeating Karras.

Liston Wins On a TKO

Former Champ Wants Another Try for Crown

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Sonny Liston a winner again, sat in his dressing room and said he'd like another try at the heavyweight boxing championship

In the next room Chuck Wepner soaked his feet in ice water and made a few unkind remarks about referee Barney Felix who halted Monday night's fight against Liston after the ninth round with Wepner's face a bloody mask

Liston, now 38, said earlier the fight could have meant the end of the road for him. But he made the oddsmakers look good winning every round but the fifth and sixth and drawing the third.

Wepner, supported by a large contingent of hometown fans from neighboring Bayonne, had hoped a victory would lead him into big-money boxing and a fight against the contender Jerry Quarry.

"Now if either man fights Quarry, it will be Liston. A Jersey City syndicate has put up $40,000 for that bout which could be held in Atlantic City later this summer.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

by John Behnke

Among the thousands of big league baseball games over the years, only one ever wound up with both teams getting — amazingly — exactly the same number of runs, hits, errors, walks and strikeouts . . . This unusual tie game took place Aug. 13, 1910 between the Pirates and Dodgers . . . It was called because of darkness at the end of 9 innings . . . At that time, each team had 8 runs, 13 hits, 2 errors, 2 walks and 5 strikeouts! . . . That's a million-to-one shot . . . There's never been another big league game like it, and there may never be another one.

How do you figure this one . . . Only about 10% of the U.S. population is left-handed, yet almost 30% of major league baseball players are left-handed!

Here's an oddity . . . The Montreal Expos actually won more games on the road last season than they did at home — and you don't see that very often in any sport . . . At home Montreal won 24 and lost 57 for a percentage of .296 . . On the road they won 28 and lost 53 for a percentage of .346.

I bet you didn't know . . . the new Norfolk style sport coats are here — in blue, light green and beige tan.

games off the pace. Vic Davalillo and Jose Cardenal came off the Cards' bench to deliver two runs apiece in the eighth, sending the Cubs spinning to their 11th consecutive loss.

Houston whipped Los Angeles 10-5 in the only other NL action. Philadelphia's scheduled game at Montreal was rained out.

The Mets trailed 2-1 when rookie Ken Singleton singled to open the bottom of the ninth. He took third on Art Shamsky's single and scored the tying run when Dave Marshall bounced a single through the Pirates' drawn-in infield.

Force at Plate

Joe Gibbon replaced Pittsburgh starter Steve Blass and hit Ken Boswell with his first pitch, filling the bases with none out. Orlando Pena came out of the bullpen and got pinch hitter Cleon Jones to tap into a force at the plate. But Clendenon, swinging for Jerry Grote, sent Marshall across with a fly to deep right, breaking the knot.

Seaver, 12-5, had a two-hitter until the top of the ninth, when he was cuffed for singles by Richie Hebner, Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell, giving the Pirates a one-run edge.

Clendenon had no predictions to make after the Mets' seventh win in nine games.

The Cards overran the Cubs with a four-run eighth after Ernie Banks, who drove in five Chicago runs, broke a 4-4 tie in the top of the inning with his second two-run homer off Steve Carlton.

Pinch Double

A walk, Joe Torre's single and a bunt single by Jim Beauchamp filled the bases with none out in the bottom half and Davalillo's pinch double off Phil Regan retied it before Cardenal stroked the deciding two-run single.

Bob Watson cracked single, double and homer, driving in five runs, as the Astros pummeled Bill Singer and ended the Dodgers' winning streak at six games. Joe Pepitone also homered for Houston.

Hoks Aces No. 9 At Bridgewood

Emmett Hoks, assistant principal at Appleton West High School, sank a hole-in-one on the 205-yard No. 9 hole at the Bridgewood Golf Course Sunday.

While playing partners Hal Kaeser, Phil Schwenzer and Wayne Fetters looked on, Hoks used a 5-wood to accomplish the feat.

ed out that he was double teamed on every pass play.

Moore, who played regularly as a rookie last season, was given a "real pleased" tag by Bengtson, who added "We see no reason why he can't be one of the real good ones."

Lionel Aldridge and Bob Brown are the apparent ends for the front four right now and Bengtson said he feels Aldridge "can approach Willie Davis standards."

Carr Possibility

Fred Carr remains a possibility for defensive end, however "He has to get in the lineup somewhere," Bengtson said. Just where will depend on how Jim Flanigan develops at linebacker. And the defensive backfield will be determined by the Adderley situation, the coach said.

Offensively, Bengtson volunteered that he feels the line has "made the transition." He cited tackles Francis Peay and Dick Himes as having "progressed very well" and spoke of having "high hopes" for Bill Hayhoe, 6-8, 270, at that spot.

Forrest Gregg, he confirmed, wants to be just a coach as much as the staff wants him to be just a coach . . . "but I told him facetiously the other day to stay in shape."

Bengtson lumped guard Bill Lueck with the new tackles and said that in his opinion Gale Gillingham is "as good as there is in the league." And Ken Bowman is a veteran in the middle.

Caught by Surprise

Boyd Dowler's retirement caught the Pack by surprise, Bengtson acknowledged. "If we had any idea of this last year, we might have kept four wide receivers instead of three," he said, "but that's why we were happy to get Jack Clancy." The tight end position is up for grabs since Marv Fleming played out his option and signed with Miami.

Bengtson also felt the team has made the transition in the backfield from Hornung and Taylor to "Williams (Travis) and Hampton (Dave), two outstanding running backs."

He said Williams has now adjusted to the minor changes involved in playing fullback. Donny Anderson will also be at halfback and Bengtson said the Pack is "looking for big things" from Perry Williams.

"Our biggest headache for the past two years," is how the coach described the kicking game. He recalled that he thought the problem was solved during the exhibition games last year when Mike Mercer was slightly sensational only to have "the roof cave in ... it was horrible" ... when the regular season began.

Pointing out that "frame of mind is so important" for a kicker, the Packer strategist said he is keeping his fingers crossed for Booth Lusteg, a late season addition in 1969. But also cited hope for rookie Skip Butler, who has "a terrific leg and seems to have the temperament."

Don Rislov Raps Ace on Initial Shot of Tourney

Don Rislov knows how to make his first shot count.

Rislov, playing in a 4-man best-ball team at the Butte des Morts Country Club Sunday, was the first man to tee off in his group at the 123-yard 17th hole.

As the tournament opened with a shotgun start, Rislov promptly socked his 7-iron shot into the cup. Witnesses were playing partners Harold Chew, Dr. Jeff Warren, and Dr. Keith Buchanan.

Twins Edge Royals, 5-4

Late-Inning Rally By Senators Sinks Orioles Again, 5-3

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore's aging Orioles are getting quite good at snatching defeat from the jaws of victory after three straight doses of Washington's newest medicine—late-inning lightning.

The Birds came out of the short end of a 5-3 decision Monday night—the third straight game in which Washington came from behind in its final at bat to win the game.

Saturday night it was Wayne Comer's bases-loaded eighth inning double that did the damage. Then Sunday, Rick Reichardt rifled a pinch two-run homer to turn the game around in the 12th. And on Monday night it was a three-run homer by Aurelio Rodriguez that wiped out a Baltimore lead.

Elsewhere in the light American League scheduled Monday night, Minnesota tripped Kansas City 5-4 and California battered Milwaukee 10-3.

East Lead Cut

The Orioles' American League East lead was trimmed to two games over idle New York as they lost their fifth game in the last seven starts.

Frank Howard had poled an early two-run homer for the Senators but Baltimore battled back, tying the score in the fourth on a walk, Frank Robinson's infield hit and RBI-singles by Boog Powell and Paul Blair.

Then the Birds went ahead in the seventh—a fatal mistake—on singles by Brooks Robinson and Ellie Hendricks and a sacrifice fly by Mark Belanger.

Washington bounced right back when Ed Brinkman opened the eighth with a single and Howard walked with one out. Reichardt, Sunday's hero, bounced out but Rodriguez followed with his 12th homer of the year to win the game.

Hot-hitting Cesar Tovar cracked four straight hits including a game-winning triple as Minnesota overcame a four-run Kansas City lead to beat the Royals.

Triple in Sixth

Tovar's sixth inning triple drove in winning pitcher Jim Perry, who was credited with a double when his fly ball fell between KC outfielders Amos Otis and Pat Kelly.

Tovar, who has raised his average 30 points and moved past .300 in the last five games, keyed Minnesota's comeback after the Royals tagged Perry for four runs in the first, two of them on Ed Kirkpatrick's double.

Perry allowed only two hits after the third inning and mowed down 14 in a row over one stretch. Ron Perranoski came on to get the final out.

Freedom	6	1	Nichols	2	5
Kaukauna	5	2	Black Creek	1	6

Three home runs helped Freedom power its way to a 9-6 Dairyland League baseball win over Nichols Sunday.

Freedom scored two runs in each of the first three innings and added two in the seventh and one in the eighth. Winning pitcher Terry Muenster homered in the third with one on, while Glen Bowers had a solo blast in the seventh and Dick Van Wettering slammed a homer with none on in the eighth.

In other games, Bonduel slugged Hofa Park, 11-2; Navarino whipped Bear Creek, 6-5; Cecil crushed Shiocton, 17-5 and unbeaten Oneida topped Black Creek, 11-8. In a Thursday night contest, Kaukauna beat Seymour, 9-7.

Bonduel tallied seven runs in the first inning in the rout of Hofa Park and continued on top in the Northern Division with a 6-1 mark.

Cecil totaled 11 hits against Shiocton. The winners scored four runs in the first, two in the second and third, one in the fourth, four in the sixth and four more in the eighth.

Ron Raasch came in the game in relief of Ray Yager in the fifth and picked up the win. Bob Clausen hurled only two innings and was charged with the loss.

Briton Roger Taylor Faces Graebner

BY GEOFFREY MILLER

LONDON (AP) — Roger Taylor has become a figure of delirious hero worship among British tennis fans.

They hope to see the 28-year-old English left-hander, who upset defending champion Rod Laver last Saturday, become the first Briton to win the Wimbledon tennis championship since Fred Perry in 1937.

Only Taylor, who today faced Clark Graebner, the last American hope for the prestigious title, is urging caution.

"This is only the quarter-finals," he said. "Clark Graebner's big service could cause me more trouble than Rod Laver did.

"I don't want the crowd to expect too much and then feel let down if I lose."

Graebner, 26, of New York, has a reputation as the biggest server among the eight men left in contention.

Optimistic Fan

At least one American fan is convinced Graebner will overcome Taylor and go on to win the title. That's his wife Carole, who played in the women's singles here but was eliminated in her first match.

The bookies today made John Newcombe of Australia, champion in 1967, favorite for the title at 9-4 odds.

Tony Roche of Australia was made second favorite at 3-1, and then came Graebner at 6-1. Two more Australians, Roy Emerson and Ken Rosewall, were 7-1.

British fans were taken by surprise when Taylor, a contracted professional for the last three years, demolished Laver in four sets.

But Mike Davies, director of the American National Tennis League which has Taylor under contract, said: "I wasn't all that surprised. Roger is a rugged, strong guy, and very fit. He thrives on hard work, and he's not the kind of player who needs a rest after a tough match such as he played against Laver."

Taylor has never defeated Graebner. The American has an extra burden to bear since Arthur Ashe, who was rated the top American hope for the title, has also been eliminated.

Today's quarter-final line-up:

Taylor vs Graebner.

Roche vs. Rosewall.

Bob Carmichael, Australia vs Andres Gimeno, Spain.

Emerson vs. Newcombe.

The two top seeds in women's singles each suffered early shocks and lost a set before advancing to the semifinals Monday.

Mrs. Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., Wimbledon champ in 1966, 1967 and 1968 came from behind to defeat Karen Krantzcke of Australia 3-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. Margaret Court of Australia, who took the title in 1963 and 1965, conquered Helga Niessen of West Germany 6-8 6-0 6-0.

Mrs. Court next faces Rosemary Casals of San Francisco, who hit top form in demolishing the last British hope, Winnie Shaw, 6-2 6-0.

Mrs. King's semifinal opponent will be Francoise Durr of France, who defeated Cecilia Martinez, of San Francisco 6-0 6-4.

Mrs. King is a strong favorite to go into the final.

Women's semifinals are scheduled Wednesday.

I. Bahcall won its 10th and 11th straight Little League games the past week in the Kiwanis Division. The division leaders, 11-0, crushed Hennes Trucking, 15-2, and then whipped Fox River Paper, 9-4.

In the only other Kiwanis game played, Hennes remained in a tie for second, defeating Appleton Coated, 6-2. Paul Gehardt and Greg Plamann each had two doubles and a single for the winners.

Northwest Supply remained atop the McKinley Division with a pair of wins over C. W. Transport, 1-0 and 14-2. Tom Rogers struck out 14 batters in the first victory.

Post-Crescent held on to the second spot, beating the Police Dept., twice, 7-6 and 7-4. In the final McKinley contest, SSAC downed Badger Highway, 7-5.

Miller Electric and Fox Sox split a pair of games and remained tied for the lead in the Erb Park Division with 8-3 records. Fox Sox won the opener, 7-2, before dropping a 3-6 decision in the second meeting.

Northside Advancement whipped Berggren's two times, 3-0 and 8-4.

In the Linwood Division, Jenkel Oil held on to a half-game lead over VFW after the two teams split in their two contests. Jenkel won the first, 8-7, but lost the second game, 3-2.

Baur Truck moved into contention with a sweep over Teamsters, 7-0 and 4-3. Tim Murphy hurled a 4-hitter in the first game.

Murder Verdict Upheld by Court

MADISON (AP)—The murder conviction of August K Bergenthal, a Fox Point investor sentenced to life in prison for shooting a member of the family, was upheld Friday by the State Supreme Court.

Bergenthal, also given a penal term for wounding the victim's wife, was convicted of having slain Russell Wirth board chairman of Universal Foods Co during an argument in Wirth's fashionable Milwaukee home in September, 1968

Bergenthal was sentenced in April, 1969, to Waupun State Prison, and subsequently appealed

Big Changes Being Planned In Spacecraft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Extensive changes costing $10 million to $15 million will be made to future Apollo spacecraft before men can be launched to the moon again, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today.

As one result, Apollo 14 will be launched no earlier than next Jan. 31, NASA Administrator Thomas O. Paine told the Senate space committee.

This marks a further delay of nearly two months for the Apollo 14 flight scheduled to land three men on the highlands of Fra Mauro. The flight, first was scheduled for October, then was postponed to Dec. 3

Paine said the Apollo command service module systems will be modified to eliminate potential combustion hazards that caused the explosion on Apollo 13 in April, canceled the moon landing, and endangered the lives of three astronauts.

Third Tank

The major changes will be the addition of a third oxygen tank in the service module; removing unsealed fan motors from the tanks; and limiting electrical wiring within high pressure oxygen systems to stainless steel wire.

In addition, Paine said, "teflon, aluminum and other potentially reactive materials in the presence of high pressure oxygen will be used as little as possible and kept away from possible ignition sources."

He said warning systems on board the spacecraft and additional controls will be modified to provide more immediate and visible warnings of system breakdowns

Also testifying before the committee today were Rocco Petrone, director of the Apollo program office, and Dr. Edgar M Cortright who headed the Apollo 13 review board.

Paine said that the design changes were in line with recommendations by the review board.

"Reasonable time required for the design, fabrication and qualification testing of the modifications to the Apollo system." Paine said, "will permit us to launch Apollo 14 to the Fra Mauro region of the moon at the Jan. 31, 1971 launch opportunity."

He said this will also delay the planned launch date for Apollo 15 by several months to July or August, maintaining the six-month interval between launches on which the Apollo program now is based.

There had been speculation that the Apollo 15 mission would be scrapped entirely and that the equipment would be used during the skylab program in 1972.

On Schedule

However Paine's statement indicated that, for the present at least, Apollo 15 is still on the flight schedule.

Paine said a review is now under way of the contract with North American-Rockwell and Grumman, the builders of the command and service module, and the Lunar module, respectively.

"We have under way a review of the incentive provisions in their contracts to determine what steps should be taken by NASA in light of the accidents."

He said the failure of the oxygen system in the Apollo 13 service module will be taken into account in the case of North American-Rockwell in determining the amount of 1970 award fees to be paid.

"That fee will be determined in view of all activities during 1970," Paine said, "and thus will be based not only on the Apollo 13 accident but also on the effectiveness of the redesign and rebuilding activities in preparation for Apollo 14."

In the case of the Grumman lunar module, Paine said the contract provides only for fees in terms of performance during an actual lunar landing mission. There was no moon landing on the April mission of Apollo 13.

If There's another way to keep cool when the temperature soars above 90, the Witthuhn brothers of 228 S. Alicia Drive, Appleton, would try that, too. Nixon Vows New Effort To End War

Cambodian Venture 'Success'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon, reporting on the end of all U S ground operations in Cambodia, pledged today that "we shall renew our efforts" to end the war in all of Indochina

Without elaborating, the President said he seeks "genuine negotiations both in Paris and for all of Indochina." The Paris talks involve only the Vietnam segment of the conflict and Nixon did not indicate what further steps he might take to seek an expanded settlement that would also embrace Cambodia and Laos.

The occasion for Nixon's pronouncement was passage of the deadline for the exit of all American troops from Cambodia.

Arguing that the controversial venture was a military success, Nixon declared that "we still face substantial problems, but the Cambodian operations will enable us to pursue our goals with greater confidence."

Looking ahead, he said in a 7,000-word statement: "With American ground operations in Cambodia ended, we shall move forward with our plan to end the war in Vietnam and to secure the just peace on which all Americans are united."

Nixon's lengthy explanation of his April 30 movement of what he said were 32,000 Americans into Cambodia contained no surprises. Instead, it was his most elaborate explanation to date of why he undertook the move even though, in his words, "we anticipated broad disagreement and dissent" on the home front.

Reporting that all U.S. ground forces and logistic and advisery personnel have been withdrawn, Nixon listed guidelines for "our future policy for Cambodia."

First of all, he said, "there will be no U.S. ground personnel in Cambodia except for the regular staff of our embassy in Phnom Penh." Also, he stated, there will be no American advisers with Cambodian units.

The President reported, too, that South Vietnamese forces remaining in Cambodia will conduct their operation without the assistance of U.S. advisers or American air or logistic support.

Air Action

In only one area did Nixon indicate continuing U.S. military involvement in Cambodia, saying: "We will conduct — with the approval of the Cambodian government — air interdiction missions against the enemy efforts to move supplies and personnel through Cambodia toward South Vietnam and to reestablish base areas relevant to the war in Vietnam. We do this to protect our forces in South Vietnam."

Nixon gave no specifics on how the United States would renew peace efforts but appealed to Hanoi "to join us at long last" in that effort.

"There is no military solution to this conflict," he stated. "Sooner or later peace must come. It can come now, through a negotiated settlement that is fair to both sides and humiliates neither. Or it can come months or years from now, with both sides having paid the further price of protracted struggle.

Cost of War

"We would hope that Hanoi would ponder seriously its choice, considering both the promise of an honorable peace and the cost of continued war."

Nixon said that "we have not raised the terms of a settlement as a result of our recent military successes." At the same time, he vowed that "we will not lower our minimum terms in response to enemy pressure."

Declaring that "all our pre-

Troops Withdrawn

Vacated Border Areas Bombarded

SAIGON (AP) — U.S planes and artillery today pounded Cambodian border areas vacated by American ground troops as the last American advisers were pulling back into South Vietnam.

Military sources said some advisers were still with the South Vietnamese forces who are remaining in the neighboring country, but "all of the Americans will be out of Cambodia by midnight tonight."

The aircraft and artillery attacks were aimed at suspected supply dumps and base camps which American ground forces did not have time to explore before the June 30 deadline set by President Nixon for them to withdraw.

Support Troops

It was not clear whether the bombing and artillery would continue after midnight. The U.S. Command refused to discuss the possibility that big guns installed in a series of firebases along the border would be used in support of South Vietnamese troops operating in Cambodia.

South Vietnamese officials announced the withdrawal of some 5,000 of their troops, leaving 34,000 South Vietnamese troops still inside Cambodia. The Saigon government said the 5,000 troops were withdrawn after completion of two operations in which they killed 1,149 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and captured more than 1,800 weapons and 58 tons of munitions.

The U.S. Command reported the death of one American and the wounding of another in a Cobra helicopter gunship shot down over Cambodia Monday in the final hours of the withdrawal of U S. combat troops.

Total of Casualties

Officials said this brought the total U S. casualties in Cambodia to 338 killed and 1,529 wounded. It was the 36th helicopter lost in Cambodia, the command said.

U.S. officials also issued a report claiming that the "average daily results" in Cambodia from May 1 to June 23 in terms of enemy casualties and weapons and munitions seized was 10 times greater than the daily average in South Vietnam in the previous 12 months, while the cost in U.S. and South Vietnamese killed was about one-twentieth.

It said 2½ times as many weapons and 15 times as much rice and ammunition were captured per day as in South Vietnam in the previous year. The ammunition was enough to supply all North Vietnamese and main force Viet Cong in three of South Vietnam's four military zones for about 16 months, it said.

Meanwhile, a military spokesman in Phnom Penh said Premier Lon Nol plans to try former chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk in absentia before a military court.

Charges Uncertain

The spokesman did not say what charges would be placed against Sihanouk, but presumably they will be similar to the accusations made publicly against him after Lon Nol's group deposed him March 18. He was accused then of allowing neutral Cambodia to fall under the domination of the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong and other misdeeds.

Sihanouk is in Peking and has established a government-in-exile there.

The battlefields were reported generally quiet in South Vietnam and Cambodia today.

In South Vietnam, a government infantry battalion entered a North Vietnamese base camp in the jungle 31 miles southwest of Da Nang and reported finding the bodies of 47 of the enemy, 115 rifles, 30 light machine guns and three 51 caliber antiaircraft machine guns.

U.S. Health Care Called 'Antiquated, Inaccessible'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A task force commissioned by the Nixon administration has found the nation's health care system antiquated, inefficient, largely inaccessible to the poor and ripe for change.

As a first step, the blue ribbon panel says the administration should scrap the $6 billion-a-year medicaid program and substitute 100 per cent federally financed health insurance for up to 40 million poor persons. The yearly cost would range between $10 billion and $18 billion.

The task force also wants consumers to have greater voice in operating health institutions with the federal government more involved in developing a new medical care system.

The chairman of the advisory committee, Blue Cross President Walter McNerney, endorsed some form of universal national health insurance. But the panel suggested a second committee to consider possible national insurance legislation that could be introduced in 1971.

The administration already has incorporated some of the panel's recommendations in its own legislative proposals, notably, government support of prepaid group practice and a small-scale trial of federal health insurance for welfare recipients.

The President's plan unveiled three weeks ago substitutes contributory, federal insurance for medicaid assistance to the estimated 6 million families that would be eligible under the pending family assistance welfare reform proposal.

The McNerney panel, however, wants all poor people—married or single, with or without children—to have paid-up insurance.

The administration says its proposal would cover 20 million people for the same price as the federal share of the medicaid program operated by all 50 states and two territories—$2.8 billion.

The committee's proposal could double the number of eligible persons and multiply the cost more than six fold.

The task force concluded medicaid has failed its promise of financial aid for all the poor who need medical care because of stinginess by the states in setting eligibility requirements.

"Only about one-third of the 30 to 40 million of indigent and medically indigent who could potentially be covered . . . will in fact receive services," the report said of medicaid.

The task force said consumers are now effectively shut out of policy making in hospitals, medical insurance companies and government health units.

Americans of Italian Descent Stage Protest

Giant Gathering Claims It's Being Harassed by FBI

NEW YORK (AP) — Legions of Italian-Americans have rallied in Columbus Circle to protest alleged FBI harassment of their numbers.

The mostly peaceful demonstration Monday was marred when two policemen on crowd-control duty outside FBI headquarters were stabbed with ice-picks. No charges have been filed.

The officers were hospitalized in satisfactory condition.

For two and a half hours the crowd waved small Italian and American flags as it listened to a stream of speakers assail the practice of equating Italians with criminals.

The most tumultuous applause came for Joseph Columbo, listed by the Justice Department as leader of one of six Mafia families in the city.

Scene of Picketing

After the rally ended, about 10,000 from the demonstration marched to FBI headquarters, scene of nightly picketing for the last two months by the Italian-American Civil Rights League.

Police barriers were knocked over and tempers ignited.

The crowd dispersed after one of Columbo's four sons, Anthony, mounted a police soundtruck and asked them to go home

The elder Colombo and his son, along with 30 friends, organized the first protests outside FBI headquarters following the arrest of another son, Joseph Jr., on a conspiracy charge

The league, which also sponsored Monday's rally, estimated 620,000 took part in the Columbus Circle demonstration Police put the figure at 40,000.

Piers Idle

Most piers in New York harbor appeared idle and predominantly Italian neighborhoods in Brooklyn and Manhattan looked vacant as longshoremen and small businessmen left work to attend the rally, officially billed as Italian-American Unity Day.

The line of speakers generally supported the protest.

Rep Mario Biaggi, D-Bronx, said of 22 million Italian-Americans in the country, only 5,000 were involved in organized crime.

Pat Nixon Ends Quake Area Tour

LIMA, Peru (AP) Pat Nixon returns home today with a first-hand picture of the devastation left by the Peruvian earthquake and warm words of praise from a military government that has been feuding with her husband

President Juan Velasco said Mrs Nixon's two-day visit went by "too fast." He said he would have liked her to stay longer to see what his country is doing and to get a better idea of "what we feel for your nation."

Velasco's secretary, Gustavo Silva, said the president was "very deeply touched by the gesture of President Nixon in sending his wife.

Means Much

"If he could have sent the whole U.S. Air Force," he added, "it would not have meant as much as sending his wife."

Going into the heart of the "valley of death" Monday for a helicopter view, to walk in the rubble, meet the refugees and the rescuers, Mrs. Nixon won thanks and good will.

"The destruction was worse than we read about," she said after her five-hour visit to 86-mile-long Huaylas canyon, the area of worst devastation

Mrs Nixon hugged youngsters and talked to monks and missionaries, pilots and nurses, young and old

"Brave and courageous," she called the people of the ill-fated valley She said what she saw "makes me sad," but she reassured the inhabitants, "You'll have good times again."

First Trip

Peru's First Lady, Consuelo Velasco, went along as head of her country's national relief organization It was her first trip to the area since the earthquake May 31.

Mrs Nixon brought a new spirit to the people who have received her with much happiness," she said.

The U.S. Proposal on the Middle East

The initiative taken by the United States in proposing a cease-fire in the Middle East while extensive new efforts are made through the United Nations mediator, Gunnar Jarring, to find a way to peace is highly commendable. But the outcome still depends upon the willingness of the Israelis and Arabs to cooperate. If one side or the other really prefers the current instability, there is little chance of success, and Egyptian President Nasser already has given the American effort a preliminary brush-off.

Secretary of State William Rogers declined to give details about the proposals, but apparently they are along the lines of the United Nations resolution adopted more than two years ago. Essentially, they would require the recognition of secure borders of all nations in the Middle East which really means the acceptance by the Arabs of the state of Israel. They would also demand the withdrawal of all Israeli troops from the lands they took in the 1967 six-day war.

These two points are required for peace, but so far neither side has shown evidence of accepting them. The Arabs, particularly members of the various commando groups, thrive on the unrest among the Palestinian refugees who multiply and who have not been assimilated by other Arab nations on purpose. Their existence as refugees keeps the wounds open.

Several Arab governments, most particularly Jordan and to a somewhat lesser extent Lebanon, have shown their inability to control the guerrillas. After the years of ever-increasing passions, it does not seem likely that emotions can simply be turned off even within the 90-day period of the proposed cease-fire. In fact, it seems unlikely that the guerrillas will observe any such cease-fire.

Similarly, Israel is not likely to withdraw from some sections of the conquered territory which it deems essential to its own protection, such as the Golan Heights, the Sinai and the West Bank of the Jordan River, unless there are clear-cut assurances of protection against attack. The Golan Heights in particular will not be ceded to the Arabs although there may be a possibility that another United Nations force could keep a neutral zone in the area as it did for years in the Gaza Strip.

The United States move is also a clear invitation to the Soviet Union to cooperate in finding a way to end the hostilities. But, again, the intentions of the other side must be taken into consideration. Russia has considerably increased its influence in the Middle East, in part because the United States was for so long occupied with its problems in Southeast Asia. The question, then, is whether the Soviets really want peace and a settlement in the Middle East.

Nevertheless, the United States moves in an effort to get the situation off dead center. We must hope that it is successful against the great odds.

AMA Changes Its Mind on Abortion

The change in attitude toward abortion in the nation was reflected at the American Medical Association's meeting in Chicago last week.

Previously the AMA, usually described as conservative but showing some interesting liberal signs this year, had endorsed abortion only if the continuation of pregnancy threatened the life or health of the mother, if the child was likely to be abnormal or if the pregnancy resulted from rape or incest and would be a threat to the physical or mental health of the mother. This is similar to some of the earlier liberalized laws passed in a few states.

Now, however, the AMA policy states that "abortion is a medical procedure and should be performed only by a duly licensed physician and a surgeon in an accredited hospital acting only in conformance with standards of good medical practice and after consultation with two other physicians chosen for their professional competence and within the Medical Practice Act of his state." The statement also emphasizes that no one could be compelled to "perform any act which violates his good medical judgment" and a somewhat ambiguous phrase that no one involved should be required to do anything which violates his own moral principles "so long as the withdrawal is consistent with good medical practice."

However, a statement by the president-elect of the AMA, Dr. Wesley Hall, is confusing. He commented that the adopted policy would probably be temporary and might be changed if doctors found themselves faced with a large number of requests to perform abortions. If, as the AMA statement put it, abortion is a medical procedure, decisions to perform abortions can no more depend upon the traffic than can decisions on tonsillectomies or appendectomies.

There has really been no consistency in the refusal to permit legal abortions unless the life of the mother was in peril. If abortion is permitted in any case, it should be permitted in others and the determination should be a matter only between the mother, in some cases the father, and the physician.

To Study Campus Violence

President Nixon's appointment of a commission to study the causes of violence on the nation's campuses and to suggest ways in which such tragic events can be avoided can hardly be criticized. It may be a stalling technique as such appointments often are and there is obviously a suspicion in the President's mind or among his major advisors that there is a conspiracy involved. But what is really necessary after such a study is that the recommendations be implemented.

As Mayor John Lindsay pointed out at the United States Conference of Mayors in Denver, the recommendations of other presidential commissions — especially the one created by former President Lyndon Johnson to study the violence in our cities — have been largely ignored. There have been few changes in the inner core areas since the study was made and little real effort to get away from the polarization of the races which the commission warned was getting worse all the time.

Furthermore the causes of campus unrest are pretty well known. Mr. Nixon sent a group of Congressmen to the campuses only a few weeks ago and they reported back to him the overwhelming opposition to the Cambodian move, the lack of trust in government, at the national level and often within the university, the disillusion with military decisions, fears of little help for domestic problems such as the urban needs and the vast problems of pollution. It is no secret that some elements of the New Left believe that only violent revolution can solve the nation's problems. We agree with some points made by Dr. Nathan Pusey of Harvard on extremists, although it isn't the whole story. The lack of response to requests for changes through the proper channels have brought frustration and no one has been more guilty of such lack of response to students until recently than President Nixon.

The commission now appointed is varied. It has four black members, representatives of university administrations, faculty and students, police officials, a newspaper editor and a former president of the National Bar Association. Its work should be thorough but we have a hunch it isn't going to discover much that we don't already know. The really big problem is to find ways to keep dissent nonviolent while reforms are slowly made.

This Man's Main Job Is Building State's New Highway System

BY W. R. REDMOND

MADISON — Not so long ago, a reporter whose paper was against a proposed highway improvement, asked: "Now, how do you like your job?" I don't know if the newsman was "needling" or sympathizing, but the needle didn't stick and the sympathy (if that's what it was) was wasted. The fact is, I like my job very much.

Redmond

I like it because it offers a great opportunity to be of service to the people of Wisconsin, even though the challenges are complex and perplexing.

It used to be that plans for a new highway were opposed mainly because of location. Today, the complex opposition comes in a broader range.

Improvements are opposed because of alleged infringement on environment, natural balance or contribution to pollution — the ecological factors. There is also opposition because of alleged tax base removal, undesirable esthetics, suspected disturbance of neighborhoods, school districts or similar life patterns, or simply that the new road is an unnecessary expense.

Many of these complaints are perplexing because of Wisconsin's traditional efforts to fit highways to the land, destroying the least possible natural beauty and even, quite often, enhancing it.

It is difficult to accept any general claims that the highways organization lacks feelings for the individual after we so strongly and successfully advocated the recently adopted legislation which liberalizes relocation assistance.

Adding to the perplexity is the fact that the concern of the Highway Commission for so many of these sociological factors actually preceded — in some cases by many years — the recent public expressions.

We try hard to understand and empathize. This is the most difficult task of all, because we have the equally demanding duty of weighing local opinion with the general interest of the necessarily "silent majority" of highway users.

Many Answers Possible

There are many answers to the claims of opponents of highways which would take a series of columns to set forth. But let us recognize, at least, these facts:

— The automobile, according to every survey for which results are now available, is the prime favorite transportation. Action, showing the love of the American for his vehicle, speaks louder than words. Vehicles increase on the nation's highways at the rate of 10,000 more each day.

— The needs in other modes include a tripling of airline passenger miles predicted by the end of this decade; an upsurge of 15 million ton miles every day on our nation's railroads . . . all in addition to automobiles.

— Need for improved mass transportation, in Wisconsin, at least, is tied to movement on highways for now and the foreseeable future.

We must move forward on every transportation front. The choice is not highways or "something else" or nothing. The choice is highways and other, complementary modes.

The Wisconsin Highway Commission has been given the responsibility by the state legislature to serve as much of the demonstrated demand for highways as we can with the financial means available. My job is to build facilities for automobiles and other rubber-tired traffic — not to seek artificial means of curtailing their use.

My job, too, is to build highways that are beautiful, that assist in the reduction of pollution (which they do by moving traffic more efficiently with less opportunity for harmful emissions) and which require the removal of as few people as possible while assisting those who relocate as liberally as possible.

If we move forward with the highways program as aggressively as we can — and, at the same time, move forward with balance in mass transportation and other available modes — we may be lucky enough to adequately serve the needs of the future. If we fail, in any of the modes, we may well fail in all.

William Redmond is chairman of the State Highway Commission, and responds today to an invitation to write a state affairs guest column for vacationing John Wyngaard.

Kraft Writes

U.S. Proposal on Middle East Much Less Than Meets the Eye

BY JOSEPH KRAFT

WASHINGTON — There turns out to be much less than originally met the eye in the latest American initiative in the Near East. And there is almost no chance the proposals will be accepted.

The most likely outcome is that they will serve as a kind of soothing backdrop for modest supplies of American planes to Israel. But that leaves unmet the truly serious problem of Soviet penetration in the area.

The first reports of the proposal made it look like a fullblown peace plan replete with provisions for a United Nations presence and an automatic Israeli withdrawal. But these reports were put out by French diplomats seeking to make Israel yield to the Arabs. In fact, the new initiative which has been put to Egypt, Jordan, and Israel rests on two very general features.

First, there would be, for at least 90 days, a ceasefire along the Suez Canal and a stand-off of forces which would prevent any country involved from taking military advantage. Secondly, the countries involved would resume discussions with a United Nations roving ambassador on a joint understanding of Arab willingness to "make peace with Israel" and Israeli willingness to withdraw from the territories seized during the six-day war.

The weakness of these proposals is obvious. Each side is asked to make costly political concessions at the outset with only the dim possibility of solid gains in the end.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, after having already been driven from the Sinai Peninsula, is asked to step back further under the ceasefire provision. That backward step is a big concession given his boast of liberation by force. But even if he does step back, there is no certainty that he will get the Israeli withdrawal he really wants.

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir buys certain trouble with her coalition government by accepting the principle of withdrawal. But the ceasefire she gets in return does not protect Israel against commando forces operating from Jordan, Syria, and Lebanon. It contains no good machinery for preventing the Egyptians from using the ceasefire period to install the latest Soviet surface-to-air missiles they have been trying to place in the canal zone for months. Nor is there any certainty that the talks, once begun, would yield what she most wants — Arab acceptance of Israel.

Russian Attitude Key

In this situation the odds are that the initiative will not lead to any progress in peacemaking. The one thing that could change the outlook is a cooperative Soviet attitude.

The Russian interjection of pilots into the area has instilled deep misgivings in Israel. Any chance of Soviet endorsement for a settlement would induce important concessions from Jerusalem. On the Arab side, Col. Nasser and King Hussein of Jordan understand that failure to get a settlement will lead to a steady loss of their influence. A Soviet effort to push towards a settlement, accordingly, would certainly take Egypt and Jordan in tow.

But so far there has been no indication the Russians truly want a settlement in the Near East. On the contrary, Moscow's tactic has been to whip up or to keep up tension and bitterness. And Soviet reaction to the latest American initiative has been distinctly reserved.

Even without Russian support the initiative may not be a total loss. For having made the effort towards peace, the United States will at least be in an easier position to begin responding to the request for additional fighter planes put to President Nixon by Mrs. Meir last September. The decision to sell small numbers of planes quietly has already been made. The Israelis are not dissatisfied. And perhaps the latest peace offer will soften the hostile Arab reaction.

But of course that is a long way from meeting the true threat posed by the Soviet penetration of the Near East. And the most that can be said at this time is that the modest American proposal is in keeping with the modest possibilities presented by the circumstances.

Remember All These Famed Journalists?

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

At impressive formal ceremonies in the East Wing of the White House, President Nixon recently awarded the A. K. Medal of Liberty to a half-dozen distinguished journalists who have fought for freedom in their long careers.

Included among them was Random Q. Forensic, 89, an editorial battler for human rights in the 1930s, when he vigorously opposed Social Security, Federal Bank Deposit Insurance, the Civilian Conservation Corps, the National Housing Act, the establishment of the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Communications Commission, and free milk to indigent children in the public schools.

Standing side by side with this gallant defender of freedom was Hector Proudfoot, 91, long-time Washington columnist, who is noted as the man who alerted the American public to the fact that Hitler was no menace to the Western world, and indeed served as a bulwark against the inroads of atheistic communism. He also predicted that if we allow the Nazis to have Poland and Czechoslovakia, Europe would achieve "stability" in our time.

A third winner of this coveted Presidential award was Lamont Miasma III, recently deceased, who was given a posthumous prize for his patriotic advocacy of the Soanish-American War.

As publisher of a chain of newspapers in the Rio Grande Valley at that time, Miasma urged us to help the Cubans throw off the yoke of Spanish oppression (hotly denying that he had an interest in American investments there), and assuring us that the Cuban people would thus forever remain friends with the United States.

By no means ignoring the glorious distaff side of journalism, the President also pinned a medal on Amy Woodford Framfram, 82, for her long and celebrated career in covering some of the most momentous events in contemporary American history.

Who can forget her graphic and poignant "ringside" stories at the trials of the Spokane Strangler, the Pittsburgh Poisoner, the Kansas City Kidnapper, the Baltimore Butcher, and her gripping interview with a possible suspect in the Minneapolis Wife-Killer case? I, for one, can.

And, of course, no observance of merit in journalism would be complete without recognition of Turbid J. Sopworth, 84, editor of the weekly news journal, "U. S. Nostalgia and World Regret," whose smashing editorials in favor of slavery, child labor, unemployment, capital punishment for strikers, and dropping the bomb on the Kremlin, have been so widely reprinted throughout South Africa and other friendly nations.

Preliminary Tests

Most Waters May Contain Mercury, DNR Official Says

By ARTHUR L. SRB
Associated Press Writer

MADISON (AP) — Preliminary tests indicate most wisconsin waters may contain some degree of mercury, a spokesman for the State Department of Natural Resources (DNR) said Monday.

Oliver Williams, assistant to the administrator of environmental protection, said the department has been taking samples of water bodies since a recent clampdown on the Wyandotte Chemicals Corp. for mercury pollution of the Wisconsin River at Port Edwards.

Williams said results of the test will be disclosed within the next two weeks.

Preliminary results of samples studied with new equipment indicate mercury is more prevalent than previously thought, he indicated.

Fracas Found

A sampling of water from Boom Lake north of Rhinelander, apparently far removed from any source of industrial pollution, turned up traces of mercury as high as .5 parts per million.

A stretch of the Wisconsin River south of Port Edwards was ordered closed to fishing for a time in May because of mercury in fish as high as 1.5 parts per million.

The Wisconsin River has been reopened to fishing and the Wyandotte Corp. "has reduced its mercury pollution by about 100 per cent," Williams said.

He added that mercury can be found in almost all waters because "it's in virtually everything we eat."

"The hangup is if you can set a low maximum," he continued. "Is adding a pound of mercury per day to a large river really enough to cause concern?"

Discovery Expected

Williams said the discovery of mercury traces in Wisconsin waters "isn't anything that we didn't expect to find."

"There's no reason for alarm," he added. "The important thing is that we discover what the normal levels are."

Since the reopening of the Wisconsin River to fishing, a number of political candidates have called for a full disclosure of the mercury pollution problem.

Thomas Fox of Chilton, candidate for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, criticized the department today for reopening the river "without explanation."

Williams said some candidates have suggested "there's a deep, dark secret" surrounding mercury content in rivers. "This isn't true," he said. "We're just about getting to the point where we have accurate data."

Task Force Shrugs Off Bubolz's Attack

Three Districts Proposed for Northeast

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MARINETTE -- Members of the Reeve Task Force on regionalism shrugged off an attempt by Gordon A. Bubolz of Appleton to sidetrack them Monday and headed for a wind-up of their project in about two weeks.

The task force advisory committee also ignored a bitter attack in project leaders by Bubolz, chairman of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission and adamant foe of Gov. Warren Knowles' plan to divide the state into administrative districts.

Task Force chairman John P. Reeve, Appleton industrialist, and Dr. Raymond Vlasin, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay vice chancellor and task force vice chairman, said they hope to deliver the final report to Knowles about July 13.

Three Districts

Based on executive committee recommendations unveiled to advisory committeemen Monday, the report will suggest three administrative districts in northeastern and east central Wisconsin.

The Lake Winnebago area, including Outagamie, Calumet, Fond du Lac, Winnebago, Waupaca, Waushara and Green Lake counties;

The Lake Michigan area, including Brown, Kewaunee, Door, Marinette, Oconto, Menominee and Shawano counties.

The Northwest area, including Vilas, Oneida, Lincoln, Langlade, Forest and Marathon counties.

In addition, two "swing" areas were found, with Florence County have equally close ties with the Northwest and Lake Michigan areas, and Manitowoc and Sheboygan counties which were found more closely related to each other than to counties either to the west or north.

Go Together

The pair could join the Winnebago or Lake Michigan districts, the committee technical advisory found, but they recommended that whichever way one went, the other should also go.

Bubolz, who has described the task force as a scheme to tear apart his planning commission, tried in vain to convince other public officials on the advisory committee that the administrative districting plan will mean "substantial new costs to the taxpayer."

He proposed turning the project over to the Legislature's Interim Committee on Local Government for a cost analysis and recommendations.

The committee turned down the proposal on a 19-5 show of hands on whether to mail copies of the resolution to all members of the advisory committee for reactions.

Bubolz also claimed the technical study committee had "misrepresented" statements of local preference by omitting mention of his planning commission in summaries of local responses, and said Northeastern had been "by-passed in many ways" during the study.

Reeve disagreed with the cost predictions, saying flatly "I say it is" going to save tax dollars.

Reeve replied, though he began by saying "I heartily dislike this aspect" of the assignment, he told Bubolz he was "sorry we didn't give you the credit that you wanted given you" in summarizing the statements by local officials, and added thdat Northeastern was represented on the project by its technical

The Reeve Task Force on Regionalism unveiled this map Monday showing in part the allignment of counties for state administrative purposes that probably will be recommended by Gov. Warren Knowles in about two weeks. Florence County and Manitowoc-Sheboygan County are shown as "swing" areas that could join either of two administrative districts. The southern boundary of Marathon County would probably be the North West district's south edge.

Dayton, Farmington

Landfill Dump Is 'Showcase' Project

KING — The new Town of Dayton and Town of Farmington sanitary landfill site was opened to discussion at a meeting Friday, and while it may be a little inconvenient for some because of its location, it is considered by the men who planned it as a "showcase operation."

"Just having a landfill site like the one we are going to open is an achievement," Walter Ciura, chairman of the Town of Dayton, said. "We have made a thorough search of the two towns and we were lucky to find a location not too close to a river or stream, not too close to houses, and some property that the owner didn't want and was willing to let us use for this purpose."

The 35-acre landfill site is located in the Town of Farmington, south of County Trunk K and west of East Road.

Cell System

The landfill will be in total compliance with state code, using the cell system. Garbage will be deposited in cells, 15 feet deep, 20 feet wide and 300 feet long and covered with a minimum of two and one-half feet of dirt at the close of each day the site is open. There will be a poison hole for deposit of all poisons.

Brush will be deposited in a separate 10-acre area and will be burned during the winter, probably January, when the snow is on the ground.

There will be a fence, with a locked gate, and specific days will be set for the landfill to be open to the residents. The west half of the Town of Lind residents will use the site and it has been opened to the Grand Army Home for Veterans.

All necessary soil tests have been made on the site and the water level meets standards, according to Ciura. There is a well on the site.

Lease Specifications

Located on the property of Allan Krueger, route 2, the lease calls for an annual rent of $800, with the option to renew every five years. Any sale of the property is subject to the lease and the lease contains an option to purchase.

The lease also stipulates the method of land fill, the right to build a road way and the right to sublease to other municipalities. If any gravel is taken from the site, the towns are to pay the going price of gravel paid by the County Highway Department.

Ciura asked the 36 residents attending the meeting for their views and suggestions.

Of primary concern to those living near the site was the control of rats. "The daily fill will help some and it is our intention to have professionals bait the area at regular intervals," Ciura said.

Landfill Hours

What days will the landfill be open? At present it is proposed that there be specific hours on Saturday and Sunday and one day during the week, with more if needed. During the summer months the population in the area doubles to 9,000 with the lake residents.

"No one wants to live next to the dump, call it what you will," one resident observed. "We know that it has to be somewhere, but we'd rather it wasn't near us."

Rules for the landfill users will clearly spell out the use of proper containers for the garbage (bags or boxes so the contents will not fall, leak or spill out). Ciura told the group. All papers will have to be in containers or tied.

"What's wrong with the present dump?" asked one resident.

"It has been operating for 23 years on the two-acre site, it is being operated without a license because the state won't give us one, it is filled up, it is uncontrollably rat-infested and it is polluting the area," enumerated Ciura.

Present Dump Costs

The cost of operating the present dump for the two towns is $6,621. It is open seven days a week, 24 hours a day, and the blowing paper and smoke from fires have irritated the nearby residents.

People living in the north and west parts of the Town of Farmington have complained to Fred Jensen, town chairman.

Steiger 'Grateful' For Plaudits of GOP

FOND DU LAC -- William Steiger was "somewhat embarrassed, and nervous and terribly grateful" for the tribute paid to him Sunday night by 425 GOPers, including top state and national office holders.

But he didn't seem terribly concerned yet about the upcoming campaign to get elected to his 6th District Congressional seat for the third consecutive time.

The Oshkosh congressman recognized that "it is not going to be an easy campaign" for Republicans in 1970, but when a statement by his opponent was quoted at a pre-event news conference, he said, "Is that right? I hadn't noticed."

His Democratic opponent will be Franklin Utech, an Oshkosh State University art professor with no previous experience in running for political office.

"An evening with Bill Steiger and Friends," held at the Town and Country here, featured appearances by the GOP governor-lieutenant governor ticket for 1970, Jack Olson and David Martin.

Also there was GOP U.S. Senate candidate John Erickson, state Atty. Gen. Robert Warren, Treasurer Harold Clemens and the new Secretary of Labor, James Hodgson.

President Nixon also sent his regards in a telegram, praising Steiger for his "integrity, commitment and superb legislative skill."

County Action

"I was very pleased with the action of the county board" in approving a $1.8 million bond issue for the bridge, Martin said.

"There's no question now that the Ninth Street bridge will be the first priority," he said.

Martin said he was "not so pessimistic" to think that it will take another 20 years to get the north bridge, but that it "will take commitments from the local units of government involved."

Clintonville Golf Duo Wins Sectional Trophy At Minocqua Tourney

CLINTONVILLE — Mrs. John Buehrens and Mrs. K. M. Monroe of Clintonville won the Wisconsin-Upper Michigan Oaks special pair trophies Friday at the 1970 Minocqua Lakeland Bridge tournament at the Minocquo Country Club.

They were overall pairs sectional winners in the afternoon and tied for second and third place in the evening session.

Mrs. Buehrens, Mrs. Monroe, Mrs. Harvey Schroeder and Lela Holtz were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Walch, former Clintonville residents, at Lake Minocqua during the tournamen..

Shiocton Girl To End Reign On August 30

SHIOCTON — The two months before Aug. 30 are a busy time for Susan Helser, reigning Harvest Queen.

Before she relinquishes her crown to her successor at pageant ceremonies on that date, she will participate in numerous area celebrations, ride in parades and publicize the village's Harvest Festival.

Miss Helser recently appeared in the Black Creek Homecoming parade and plans to attend the New London and Manawa celebrations. Currently, she is assisting the committee in seeking candidates for her crown.

Any girl between 14 and 17 years of age, who lives in the Shiocton School District and is interested in promoting the village may run for Harvest Queen. Candidates will have from July 15 to noon on July 29 to obtain votes by selling tickets for the festival.

The Businessmen's League is offering larger prizes and more opportunities for the Queen and the runners up than in previous years. At a "kick-off" pizza party July 15, contestants will receive instructions and tickets to sell. Entries for Harvest Queen must be in by July 11.

Mrs. Charles Conradt and Mrs. Thom Van Straten have further information.

8 Illinois Cyclists Arraigned After Rock Fest Violence

STEVENS POINT — Eight person, including a 20-year-old woman, were arraigned Monday afternoon in Portage County Court on an array of charges stemming from incidents at the weekend rock fest near Iola where three persons were shot Sunday morning.

The eight, all from Illinois and apparently members of one or more motorcycle gangs, appeared before Judge Robert Jenkins on charges presented jointly by the district attorneys of Waupaca and Portage counties. The fest was held on the counties' borders.

Five persons, including a Chicago man charged with using a knife against a person for the purpose of stealing, were bound over to Circuit Court. Two pleaded innocent and were released on bails while one pleaded guilty.

Investigation Continues

Lt. Raymond Potocki, in charge of investigation for the Portage Sheriff's Department, said that investigation is continuing and that further charges may be pressed against some of these persons and others who were released for jail earlier this week. Twenty-six persons had been arrested.

The rock fest, hampered by poor sound systems, a lack of drinking water and poor swimming facilities and an influx of cycle gangs who intimidated the rock fans, reportedly drew about 50,000 fans but most had left Sunday following the confrontation between cycle gang members and fans about 7 a.m. Sunday. Three persons were shot, but are in satisfactory condition, and cycles were burned during the melee.

Potocki said that a few stragglers still were on the 200-acre scene northeast of Iola today.

Facing the most serious charge is Thomas J. Bell, Chicago, who is being held in lieu of a $20,000 bond for using the knife for stealing purposes. He also was charged with burglary, and armed robbery. The police report lists him as 25 years old, but Potocki estimated he is several years older.

Five Bound Over

Bell and four others were bound over to Circuit Court for preliminary examinations. The others are Paul Dees, 21, Rockford, Ill., charged with carrying a concealed weapon and possessing $750 worth of stolen property; Michael James, 24, Rockford, and Thomas Puckett, 18, Loves Park, Ill., each with endangering the safety of others by conduct regardless of life; Edward Walters, 29, Bensonville, Ill., possession of a dangerous drug; Paul MacDonald, 33, Roscoe, Ill., and Mrs. Laura Schoenher, 20, Justice, Ill., each with possession of marijuana.

Diver Recovers Body

Illinois Man Drowns In Waupaca Accident

WAUPACA — A Rockford, Ill. man drowned about noon Monday in Manomin Lake, the middle lake in the Upper Chain O' Lakes.

Alexander Cook Jr., 23, was visiting at the Robert Steuerwald cottage with two other men and three women. They had attended the rock festival at Iola, they told Waupaca County authorities.

Cook's companions told Capt. John Penney, county traffic officer, that Cook went down to the dock and dived into the water. When he started thrashing around they were unable to help him. They called the sheriff's department about 12:15 p.m.

Skin diver Padraic Meighan, 19, Appleton, recovered the body from 30 feet of water within an hour.

Assisting in the rescue were Sgt. John Bonnell, Waupaca County traffic; Arthur Krueger, Chain O' Lakes patrolman, and the Waupaca and King fire departments.

Dr. Sam Salan, coroner, pronounced Cook dead from accidental drowning. The body was taken to the Holly Funeral Home.

Construction Halt of Nuclear Plants Sought

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Three conservation organizations have proposed amending Atomic Energy Commission regulations to halt construction of all nuclear plants in the nation, including two planned to serve the Fox Valley, until they conduct environmental studies required by the National Policy Act of 1970.

Involved are two nuclear plants at Point Beach near Two Rivers which the Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. is planning to use in serving this area.

Also included in the petition are 50 other nuclear power plants now in various stages of construction across the country.

Leading the list is the Calvert Cliffs nuclear power plant, currently under construction on Chesapeake Bay.

The Calvert Cliffs Coordinating Committee (a coalition of Maryland organizations), the National Wildlife Federation and the Sierra Club asked the AEC Monday to apply the act to the Baltimore Gas & Electric Co.'s plant and all others under construction.

Conservationists term the controversial Calvert Cliffs plant a classic example of how the electric power industry uses the nation's waterways to dispose of its hot water and radioactive discharges without using available techniques to prevent environmental degradation.

Prior to passage of the act, the AEC consistently maintained it was responsible only for the health, safety and national security aspects of nuclear power plants, stating specifically that it had no responsibility for possible environmental impact of the plants.

According to AEC statistics recently released, 16 nuclear power plants now are operating in the United States, 52 are under construction, 37 are planned with reactors already ordered and another seven are planned but have yet to order reactors.

As currently planned, the majority of these plants, including Calvert Cliffs, will not utilize existing techniques to minimize thermal and radioactive pollution.

The Westinghouse Corp. recently announced development of techniques that will virtually eliminate radioactive pollution from nuclear power plants. The Federal Water Quality Administration long has held that virtual elimination of thermal pollution is desirable and technologically and economically feasible.

Up-to-Date Techniques

Conservationists have been consistently thwarted in attempts to get industry to use the most up-to-date techniques to minimize thermal and radioactive pollution from nuclear power plants. These failures were usually linked to the industry's claims that no one could prove how much damage there would be and the AEC's supporting claim that it could not consider environmental problems associated with the nuclear power plants it licenses.

The petitioners claim the National Environmental Policy Act now requires detailed environmental studies be conducted by the AEC prior to issuing construction and operating permits and all feasible alternatives to the proposed action be explored.

Also involved besides the 497,000-kilowatt capacity plants at Point Beach, one of which is expected to be ready this year and another in two years, is the Kewaunee Nuclear Power Plant at Carlton, a 527,000-kilowatt capacity project of the Wisconsin Public Service Corp.

Waupaca Dispute

Teachers in WEA To Get Mediation

WAUPACA — Eighty-three teachers in the Waupaca Education Association have resorted to legal means provided by state law to settle an impasse in contract negotiations

Mediation will be made by the Wisconsin Employment Relations Commission of Madison, the WEA and the Waupaca Board of Education were notified Friday.

Negotiations have been underway since January The stalemate was disclosed about 10 days ago, with both groups making their final offers.

The commission will send in a mediator who will listen to both sides of the issue, including offers and counter-offers The mediator will not be able to hear the case for four weeks because of the heavy WERC schedule in Madison

If the mediator is not successful in spelling out a settlement, negotiations will go into fact-finding

This process costs $100 a day, which is shared equally by the teachers and the board

The WEA had requested three times for joint mediation, according to Brig Konecke, president of the group and a member of the teachers negotiating team

"Our only recourse was to contact WERC and request fact-finding," he said The negotiating team of the board of education could not be reached for comment

A Mailbagful

Work for Government Nearly 3 Hours Daily

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Do you sometimes feel you're working more for the government than for yourself? The fact is, acording to the Tax Foundation, that taxes now take from 35 to 37 per cent of the total national income.

The average American now works two hours and 43 minutes a day to pay his taxes, 59 minutes for his food, 57 minutes for his housing, and 18 minutes for his recreation. In the past five years government taxes have grown 1½ times as fast as the nation's gross national product.

Diamonds, which can now be made in the laboratory but at prohibitive cost, are reputed able to cure diseases and fend off evil. Until the 15th century in Europe they were worn only by men. They were thought also to have the power to make the wearer invisible. But the more diamonds a guy gives a girl today, the more likely he is to see more of her

If she didn't keep her babies in her pouch, a near-sighted mother opossum would have trouble keeping track of them. They are so tiny at birth that 50 of them could be held in a human hand.

Tip for working girls: Are your laundry bills getting out of laundry bills getting out of hand? Then you might follow the example of Hetty Green, the "Witch of Wall Street." This miserly and crotchety old millionaire saved money by having only the lower half of her petticoats washed.

Bad Mixture: Alcohol and gasoline don't mix well, but they are particularly dangerous when another ingredient is added—youth. A Minnesota survey found that 43 per cent of drinking drivers killed in accidents were between 16 and 24 years old, although only 24 per cent of the state's licensed drivers were in that age bracket.

The big dough: Film producers today complain of the salary demands made by top stars. But they always did come high. In the heyday of silent movies—even before 1920—stars such as Charlie Chaplin and Mary Pickford asked and got yearly salaries of more than $500,000. Most of it was "take home" money then, as Uncle Sam was content with a smaller share.

The occupational diseases of popular after-dinner speakers are ulcers and obesity—the result of too much bad or rich food. The solution, says Dr. Tom Haggi, a leading Baptist minister who makes hundreds of talks each year, is: "never drink—and never eat anything but the main course."

Unknown Twain Manuscript Sold To Public Library

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Public Library has purchased a hitherto unknown 400-page manuscript by Mark Twain for more than $25,000.

The manuscript, in the form of a letter to novelist William Dean Howells, describes how Twain had allegedly been swindled by a young Englishman and his secretary. It was written in 1909.

A library spokesman said Wednesday the manuscript was found in a shoebox among the papers of an associate of Edward E. Loomis, whose wife was a relative of Twain's wife.

The curator of the library's Berg Collection said it was possibly the last major piece Twain wrote and commented, "It seems highly unlikely that another Mark Twain manuscript of this importance will come to light again."

Two Volunteers At Army Home Awarded Insignia

KING — Two members of the Shiocton American Legion Auxiliary received caps for volunteer service Friday, in ceremonies at the Grand Army Home.

Miss Diana Nichols earned her cap with volunteer insignia for 50 hours of work. She was sponsored by Mrs. Allen Gunderson. Mrs. Raymond Muskavitch, who served at the Veterans Hospital in Madison, was sponsored by Mrs. Paul Winterfeldt Mrs Adela Beyer received her 500-hour insignia.

Volunteers at the Army Home assist regular personnel with programs, write letters for some patients, deliver groceries, and perform other service tasks.

The program was conducted by the King Legion Auxiliary, assisted by the 8th District President, Mrs. Jerome Kranig of Stevens Point.

Also addressing the group were personnel of the Grand Army Home who thanked the Volunteers for the hours of service given.

Five Directors Of Development Group Revealed

CLINTONVILLE — Names of the five directors elected Wednesday night at an organizational meeting of the Clintonville Industrial Development Corporation were released Monday, following confirmation of their acceptance to serve

The five are Walter Gleason, A. C. Torborg, Robert Ellis, Owen J. Tilleson and Kenneth Spearbraker.

The directors will meet to elect officers.

The purpose of the nonprofit, nonstock corporation is to administer a city-owned industrial park comprised of 40 acres of land in the northeastern section of the city, recently purchased from Clarence Rohrer.

Waupaca to Have Free Polio Clinics

WAUPACA — Two free polio clinics for all children between the ages of three months and six years, including the children of migrant workers, will be held simultaneously at three locations in Waupaca County.

The first will be held from 6 to 8 p.m. July 10 and the second on Aug 28 at Clintonville, New London and Waupaca.

The Clintonville clinic will be at the junior high school cafeteria; the New London clinic at the high school commons room, and the Waupaca clinic at the Central School multipurpose room.

It is necessary that each child participate in both clinics to be fully immunized against polio.

The program has been approved by the Waupaca County Medical Society and the clinic dates have been advanced several months due to outbreaks of paralytic polio in several sections of the country

Infants and children presently on an immunization program with the family physician should not participate in the free clinics.

The free immunization program is being conducted by the Waupaca County Health Service and parents may call Mrs DuWayne Tanner, R.N., for further information

Shiocton Gets New Principal

Norbert Kalinosky First Administrator At High School July 1

SHIOCTON — Norbert Kalinosky will become the principal of the high school Wednesday.

The office is newly created because of expanding enrollment and increased work loads. Robert McCoy, district superintendent, formerly served as principal in addition to his other duties.

Kalinosky increases the schools' administrative staff to three. Mrs. Carmen Kroner is principal of the elementary school.

The new principal has had a broad educational experience. He was director of a Title II Remedial Reading Project for the Cooperative Education Services Act 8 in Appleton in 1968-69; superintendent of schools at Bear Creek in 1966-68, and previously held administrative and teaching positions in the Green Bay area.

Kalinosky is married and has six children. The family will live in Shiocton.

During Construction

No-left-turn signs on College Avenue and intersectiong downtown streets are being removed to ease traffic entanglements resulting from street construction in the area, according to City Engineer Thomas Harp

Harp said the signs may remain down after the construction is over, however, depending on how well allowing left turns onto and off of the avenue works.

The signs have been made up for a number of years, but have come under periodic criticism

Harp made the announcement in connection with his weekly report on progress of summer street and utility construction projects and their effects on traffic in the city. Main downtown projects include reconstruction of Washington Street from Durkee to Division Street and of Sperior Street from College Avenue to Lawrence Street.

Harp gave the following status report:

Washington Street, Durkee to Division: Excavation to remove old pavement scheduled to begin next Tuesday, beginning at Durkee and moving west.

Superior Street, College to Lawrence: Pouring of concrete to begin next week

Fairfield Court, Pershing Street to Longview Drive: Majority of concrete poured, curing.

Mc Donald Street, Longview to Northland Avenue Service Road: New concrete curing.

Northland Avenue service road, Oakwood Court to Mc Donald: new concrete curbing.

Glendale Avenue, Douglas Street to Birchwood Avenue: Pouring of concrete being completed, first half of roadway.

Newberry Street, Lynn Drive to Marcella Street: excavating old pavement and preparing new base, starting from Lynn Drive and moving east

Midpark Drive, Forest Street to Lourdes Drive, first half of new concrete being poured, curing

Sewer Construction

Sewer construction projects under way include:

Winnebago Street, Linwood Avenue area sanitary sewer replacement continuing, traffic interrupted in immediate area of progress.

Mc Donald Street, Pershing to Glendale: surface replacement being completed following underground work

Long Haired Lads Don Caps

If you're a fellow and you like to swim, and you have "long" hair, you'd better bring an extra dime along to Appleton's municipal swimming pools, or borrow your sister's bathing cap

An Appleton Health Department decree issued to the pools states that any male with a long haircut must wear a bathing cap just like the girls, and "quite a few" long-haired swimmers at Mead Pool have had their locks covered, according to Lewis Precourt, pool manager.

A state law requires that all females wear caps over their hair to prevent clogging the lint strainer of the pool, Precourt said, and now the city has expanded it to cover the boys. How long hair has to be before it is too long is decided by the pool managers, and Precourt said that about four inches or longer was too long.

Green Bay Packing Plants Defended

Post-Crescent Farm Editor

Rats, mice, peeling paint and metal saw shavings listed in a General Accounting Office report of packing plants do not exist in Green Bay packing houses.

Dr. C. H. Glotfelty, Wisconsin's coordinator of federal meat inspection, said today that meat packing plants at Green Bay are producing, "good, sound, wholesome products."

Armour and Co.; Liebmann Packing Co., and Reimer Meat Products, Inc., all of Green Bay, were cited in a GAO report prepared last year and recently released.

Whitehall Packing Co., Whitehall, Wis., also was cited in the report.

After federal inspectors examined the Whitehall plant it was closed for a short time, but now is producing satisfactory products, said Glotfelty.

Clean, Wholesome

"We're quite confident that these plants that were cited in Wisconsin are producing clean, and wholesome products."

Glotfelty said today that he still has not seen the GAO report, but he believes all plants mentioned are producing satisfactory products. He was not contacted by GAO investigators who conducted the study. Dr. Paul Burkert, St. Paul, regional director, was contacted but also may lack a copy of the report.

At the present time an estimated 100 red meat and poultry plants are under federal inspection in Wisconsin. Federal inspection is required of any packing house engaged in interstate commerce.

Federal law passed in December, 1967, says plants not under federal inspection must meet state standards equal to federal requirements, said Glotfelty.

Wisconsin's meat inspection program, financed up to 50 per cent by federal funds, was launched in January, 1968.

Federal Inspection

When regulation became mandatory, many plants requested federal inspection to permit them to begin interstate commerce, Glotfelty said.

Dr. Edward Baker, Madison, is the administrator of the state program. Prior to the start of the joint program there was little inspection activity in Wisconsin.

"We really didn't have any law that required inspection of meat," said Baker, although packing plant inspection was required.

Although there were an estimated 450 plants under state inspection two years ago only 350 remain.

"We've had to close a few plants," said Baker. New standards may have also forced some packing plants to cease operation rather than to convert to new specifications and Joseph T. Graceffa, 19, Rockford, battery and theft.

At the present time plants in the state program are equal to federally inspected plants, said Baker.

Bonds ranged from $250 to $20,000.

MacDonald pleaded guilty Schoenher pleaded innocent Graceffa is free on bond, Potocki said.

Six women and 12 men were released.

Sunday Confrontation

Most of the charges stem from the confrontation Sunday morning between the large group of fans on a hill and bikers who rode up the hill toward them. The fans began pelting cyclers with rocks when they attacked a group of fans at the bottom of the hill by a barn.

The fest reportedly started out on a peaceful note Friday but became violent Saturday when several cycle gangs moved in There were reports of rapes, robberies and beatings.

Michael Gradford, 20 Evanston, Ill., who had been beaten with a chain, was reported in satisfactory condition today.

Several persons also were treated for severe drug reactions.

Man Fined for Theft of Parts From Speedway

Dennis Satorius, 22, 403 W. Eighth St., Appleton, was fined $40 and costs Friday in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 on a charge of theft.

Satorius pleaded guilty before acting Judge Gustave J. Keller. He was named in the theft complaint by a county investigator after he made off with a radiator, battery, carbureator, and two wheels and tires from Jerry's Outagamie Speedway Friday.

Satorius was arrested in Appleton by police shortly after the theft was reported to the sheriff's department director, Charles Hervey.

Reeve said Hervey was a member of the technical panel and in addition attended nearly every executive committee meeting.

Bubolz was not invited to serve on the executive committee, Reeve continued, because he made it apparent from th outset that he was "so much opposed" to the districting project — "you were so difficult to work with" — that the committee concluded it couldn't do its assigned job with Bubolz present.

Bubolz also stated that regional planning and state administration should be separated.

Dr James Murray, UW-Green Bay economics professor on the technical panel, added that among the proposed recommendations is one that existing alliances between counties and regional planning agencies be continued without regard for administrative boundaries

The Appleton Water Commission requests that all water users make every effort to conserve water on July 3, 1970. Beginning at 5:00 A.M., our contractors will be making some additional connections to the new plant which will restrict the ability of the plant to produce water. This work will continue throughout the day.

These connections are required so that construction of the new plant can continue. Your complete cooperation in the past under similar circumstances has been extremely gratifying and helpful and we are sure that we can continue to count on your aid as we work together towards supplying Appleton with an abundant water supply.

Nixon Talks Strategy With Egyptian Envoy

Unheralded Visit of Nasser's Troubleshooter Stresses Change in U.S. Middle East Policy

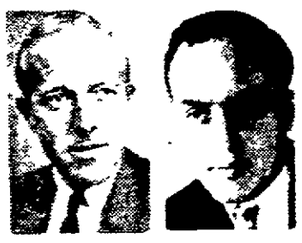
BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Mohammed Riad, a high-level troubleshooter in the Egyptian foreign office, slipped into town last Friday for secret talks with U.S. officials on President Nixon's new Middle East peace plan.

Not only was Riad's presence here not announced: it was the subject of unofficial denials. This secrecy of the Egyptian's visit underlines the drastic, almost revolutionary change of direction in the President's new approach to the volcanic Israeli-Arab dispute.

Aircraft Sale

The heart of that new approach is secret diplomacy. Until recently, the Israelis probably would have known of Riad's visit before the Egyptians themselves. Coupled with this secret diplomacy is a hard determination, in the words of one top Nixon strategist, "not to play the role of Israel's attorney." Thus, the new approach is filled with domestic political danger, considering the strength of Israel's allies here.



Evans Novak

In keeping with this new and secretive approach, there is reason to believe that not even the Israeli government itself knows for a fact what new aircraft, if any, Mr. Nixon may be prepared to sell Israel if his new peace plan flops. The matter of aircraft, which never should have publicly surfaced as a specific Israeli request in the first place, is being handled here as a potent bargaining card in the Nixon plan to get talks started between the two sides.

In the past, an Israeli request for military help from the U.S. was handled in Washington as though it had divine inspiration. Mr. Nixon has signalled the end of that highly special relationship for one reason: it was inexorably corroding U.S. influence among the Arab states and, as a consequence, elevating Soviet power and prestige at an alarming rate.

Thus, before the Middle East volcano erupts into a military showdown between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, Mr. Nixon has to prove what he has been claiming ever since he sent William Scranton on a pre-inauguration Middle East tour. His claim is that his new Administration really intends to fulfill Scranton's promise of an "evenhanded" policy between Israel and the Arab states.

Slender Chance

If he can do that, the President has a chance — admittedly, a slender chance — for a political solution that would starkly limit Soviet influence.

That chance is partly based on new diplomatic readings that Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser is himself deeply worried over his new and total dependence on Moscow. As we first reported from Cairo last winter: If true, Nasser may now be far more eager to start talks — direct or indirect — with Jerusalem than he is willing to admit.

Moreover, another and even more ominous political development in the Arab world is believed here to be pushing Nasser toward serious peace talks with Israel. That development is the steadily growing political and military power of the autonomous commando organizations composed of Arab refugees from what is now Israel and the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan.

Al Fatah and other more radical fedayeen organizations now threaten Nasser's pre-eminence as the most potent single voice in the Arab world, steadily undermining his power to play the leading role in peace talks with Israel.

If, for example, the Palestinian commandos had actually seized power from King Hussein in Jordan's war-within-a-war two weeks ago, Nasser's negotiating power would have been fatally diminished. That prospect is not only still open; it grows every day.

On the Israeli side, Mr. Nixon's Middle Eastern experts are hoping the shock effect of his new policy will make the government of Prime Minister Golda Meir more interested in withdrawing from Arab lands seized in the six-day war. The answer to that question is locked inside the divided Israeli cabinet, but President Nixon is hopeful for one reason: Israel would much prefer a political settlement based on a U.S. plan that on a joint U.S.-Soviet plan.

Despite these assets underwriting the President's courageous settlement efforts, however, the realistic prospect is somewhat less than one chance in ten. The plan could be torpedoed at any moment by Nasser, by the Israelis, or by the Palestinian commandos, who owe responsibility to no government at all.

The effort is still well worth making. If there is no political settlement, the continued expansion of Soviet influence is absolutely predictable, with a big power confrontation only marginally less certain.

Party Hold Diminishes as Voters Become More Knowledgeable, Active

BY SAMUEL LUBELL

Once one of the more sluggish and slow-changing of American habits, voting in recent years has become volatile and excitable.

The "happenings" of both 1968 and 1969 suggest that something akin to a voter revolution is brewing, with a sizable part of the electorate demanding a more direct political role than our parties have ever given the American people.

These pressures for a more activist and demanding politics have been coming from voters generally and not simply from youthful militants.

The basic factors are that party tradition and loyalty have become so much weaker than in the past and yet, simultaneously, people seem driven to make politics do much more than it ever has before.

One manifestation is the extent of political activity being pressed outside of the parties, not just at elections but all year round. Targets of protest have been as varied as rising rents, birth control pills and pollution. White citizens' councils and black militants have both defied the law, the police themselves have become activists, on the losing side for mayor in New York and Cleveland or the winning side in Detroit. Los Angeles, Minneapolis and Waterbury, Connecticut.

Party System Holds

Democratic strategists have drawn up schemes of "party-reform democracy" as the answer to voter restlessness. While "participation" may appease cravings for psychological intimacy at presidential conventions, it is not likely to remove the deeper frustrations with the party system shared by voters generally.

The "solution" toward which most voters appear to be moving is a double one — to continue activity outside of the party structure but also to use both parties much as a sheriff might wear two guns rather than just one.

A few statistics reveal the extent to which the hold of tradition and party loyalty has been crumbling.

A generation ago most voters felt they could protect their political interests best by sticking with one party. In the five presidential elections from 1932 through 1948, just over half — 51 per cent — of the counties in the country, including nearly all of the most populous cities and many of their suburbs, cast a majority of their vote for the same party's presidential candidate each time.

But in the five elections spanning 1952 through 1968, only a fifth — 22 per cent — of the counties stuck with the same party's nominees. During these years a decisive proportion of the electorate abandoned one-party regularity to protect themselves politically by using both parties.

No other period in American history has been marked by such wild trapeze swinging between the major parties. All five elections were either landslides — two for Eisenhower and one for Johnson — or cliffhangers, settled by less than 1 per cent of the vote. None of the five could be considered a "normal" party showing.

Seventh in a series of eight articles excerpted from "The Hidden Crisis in American Politics" by Samuel Lubell to be published by W. W. Norton & Co. Inc.

This trend toward the use of both parties has been fed by numerous changes in American life: better education; the weakening of hometown tradition as millions of families moved from one part of the country to another; the declining importance of religion in shaping people's vote; the growth of industry in so many sections of the country.

But my interviews since 1952 indicate that the most important single influence has been the steady expansion of government power.

Reject Some Leaders

As the impact of Big Brother government has grown more intimate, the voters have kicked free of one-party regularity. Through varied attention-getting stratagems they have used both parties to make certain they would not be taken for granted; to overreact against even moderate economic setbacks as during the 1958 recession; and to bolt from and defeat national leaders of their own party, as was done twice by Democrats with Adlai Stevenson and by water.

In short, the public's response to big government has been to make Big Brothers uncertain of where the voters stand and to give our party politicians a rough time.

This could prove a strange portent of the future. These ready-to-shift voters may refrain from giving either party a lasting majority until one of the parties manages to demonstrate that it can unite this sorely divided country.

The emergence of this new breed of voters may be a development of truly historic importance. Hectic change is revolutionizing American political life, realigning our parties, polarizing much of the country, leaving so much conflict unreconciled. Nowhere does one find much evidence of the ability of the managers of society to bring things into balance.

It is possible, though, that the voters themselves have become the most important single balancing force in the country, trying through their activism to accomplish what our institutions, political parties and the economy seem unable to do.

These voters vary widely in educational and economic status; they share no single viewpoint. The one characteristic they do share — their readiness to keep our politicians upset as long as the country is upset — does exert a constant pressure upon our leaders to become more responsive to changing political needs.

The ranks of these free-floating voters continue to be swelled by the kind of prosperity we have been having and the emergence of a new generation.

In Los Angeles, an accountant's wife, casting her first vote, recalled vaguely, "my father was a Democrat" but couldn't say why. In hopes of stirring a revealing memory, I asked, "Did your father ever talk of how hard a time he had during the depression?"

"When was that?" she replied.

Prosperity widens the range of personal choice open to the individual. Being more secure in one's job or being able to move freely to other work, to have two incomes in a family, to be able to buy more varied material possessions — all these things stimulate the individual's sense of self-worth and political independence.

Greater Mobility

In the rural South, the expansion of nonfarm employment has been giving people greater economic mobility and made them more free-footed politically. While farmers and their wives travel to nearby towns to work, car pools take their sons to factory jobs 200 miles or more from the farm.

Occupational influences are also weakening party loyalty among older as well as younger people.

Among the normally Democratic voters interviewed, nearly two-thirds replied "No."

The division of replies corresponded quite closely to a major change that has taken place in the nation's occupational structure, the decline in the proportion of factory workers compared with the expansion in steadier fields, such as state and local government or white-collar and service work.

Most of those who feared a Nixon victory were factory workers. In contrast, a policeman's wife in Pittsburgh said, "The way it looks, there will always be enough work for my husband. The Republicans may even be the better party for us. At least they like policemen better than some Democrats do.

"But," she added, "my father and father-in-law are union men. They're afraid."

To sum up, wherever one examines the impacts of rapid change, one also finds changes in the psychological attitudes of the voters. The overall effect has been to make Americans perhaps the most demanding people in all history. It is largely to be able to demand more of each other that we exaggerate our dissensions and difficulties.

Still, the ease and calculation with which they swing between the parties suggests that this new breed of voters may be able to turn the politics of polarization into a force for unifying the country, as will be seen tomorrow.

Lennon Art Show Made $84,000

LONDON (AP) — Beatle John Lennon made $84,000 out of his first art exhibit, thanks partly to police charges that the drawings about his sex life were indecent.

The exhibit consisted of 14 lithographs, eight showing Lennon and his Japanese wife, Yoko Ono, in love play.

Police accused the art gallery of exhibiting indecent prints, but the charge was dismissed by a magistrate Robert Harland, a director of the gallery, said sets of prints sold like hotcakes for $1,320 each after the unsuccessful intervention by the law.

"One could say the metropolitan police did us a great big favor," Harland remarked.

Will the Republicans Steal Christmas, Too?

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — The Democrats won't say it publicly, but they're not too happy about the Republicans stealing the Fourth of July.

While the "Honor America Day" celebration in Washington has been advertised as nonpartisan, any professional politician knows that when the American public sees Billy

Buchwald

Graham, Bob Hope and Lawrence Welk on the platform, the Nixon Administration will be the only ones enjoying the fireworks.

An official of the Democratic National Committee said, "I can't blame the Republicans for what they've done. The Fourth of July has been around for a long time, and we never thought to do anything with it. All we ever considered it was just a national holiday."

Why Join Committee?

"But if you believe the Republicans stole the Fourth of July, why did the Democrats join the celebration committee?"

"The Republicans sandbagged us. They invited us to join and had we refused, it would have looked as if we were spitting on Mom's apple pie. How can any politician in this country come out against the Fourth of July?"

"What makes you think the Republicans will try to cash in on the Fourth of July?"

"Nothing I can put my finger on, but the other day I was up at the Capitol for a Flag-raising ceremony and after the U. S. Marine Band played, 'The Star Spangled Banner,' I overheard Congressman Gerry Ford whisper to Sen. Hugh Scott, 'They're playing our song.'"

"It sounds like you did get sandbagged," I said.

"We can't do anything about the Fourth of July any more," he said sadly. "But what we're starting to worry about is Christmas."

"You don't think the Republicans would steal Christmas?" I said aghast.

"It's in the works already. Bing Crosby and Dr. Norman Vincent Peale have been asked to head the 'Keep Christmas in America' committee, which is supposed to bring Americans together on Christmas morning."

"But it's too cold to hold a rally on the Washington Mall on Christmas morning," I protested.

"This one will be on television. The plan is to have Martha Mitchell and Atty. Gen. Mitchell read from 'A Christmas Carol,' and David Eisenhower has agreed to play Tiny Tim. To make it bipartisan, they've asked the Democrats to supply someone to play Scrooge."

"I can't believe it."

Spiro in Rehearsal

"You can't, huh? Then why has Spiro Agnew been secretly rehearsing 'Silent Night' with the Mormon Tabernacle Choir?"

"I didn't know that."

"We also have confirmation that the Walt Disney people are building a huge manger at the winter White House in Key Biscayne, where the President is expected to speak."

"The way you describe it this could even be bigger than 'Honor America Day.'"

"If the Republicans grab both the Fourth of July and Christmas," my informant said, "it's going to be tough for the Democrats to ever come back."

"Isn't there some way you can get Republicans to give you equal time, if for no other reason than to preserve the two-party system?"

"They've offered us equal time. They said we could have New Year's Day . . . opposite the Rose Bowl Game."

Charles, Philip Take Spills in Polo Match

WINDSOR, England (AP) — Prince Charles and his father, Prince Philip, were spilled from their horses during a Sunday polo game near Windsor Castle.

With Queen Elizabeth looking on, her husband, Philip, hit the ground when his pony stumbled and fell. The prince went to a hospital for treatment of torn ligaments in his right shoulder.

Charles, the queen's son, then landed on his back when his pony stumbled. He lay stunned for about two minutes, but mounted another horse and finished the game.

Lutheran Body Admits Women To Ministry

LCA First of Major Synods to Provide For Female Pastors

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Delegates to the Lutheran Church in America convention have shattered tradition by moving to admit women to the ministry.

It was the first time a Lutheran church body in this country had decided to give women the right to be ordained on a par with men.

The LCA, with 3,259,000 baptized members, is the largest of three major Lutheran denominations.

After 25 minutes of brisk debate Monday night, during which delegates turned down a move to postpone action until 1972, a roar of "aye" votes approved the proposal, authored by a Commission on Doctrine of the Ministry.

There were a few, barely audible "no" votes in the spacious Minneapolis Auditorium.

"Person"

The convention action directs that church bylaws, and bylaws and constitutions of the 33 synods and 6,186 congregations, be changed so that the word "person" shall be substituted for "man" in outlining qualifications for ordination.

The study commission declared "The church in its thinking and its action has up to this point lagged seriously behind secular society ... the crux of the matter is justice."

Dr Robert J. Marshall of New York, president of the church, told a reporter later it "was a momentous decision, and wholly in accord with our church's understanding of scripture and with the status of women in our time."

Dr Fredrik Schiotz, president of the American Lutheran Church with headquarters in Minneapolis, said he was pleased with the decision and that he supports ordination of women in his church as well.

ALC Approvedy

The American Lutheran Church Council, its governing board between biennial conventions, has voted to recommend ordination for women when delegates meet in San Antonio, Tex., in October.

However, a demurrer came from Dr. Jacob A. O. Preus, president of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, with headquarters in St. Louis.

"I was amazed at the speed it went through and the size of the vote," he said. "I am rather sorry it was done because it will not help inter-Lutheran relations, and I think personally we should not do it.

Orders of Creation

"I just feel that the biblical orders of creation differ between men and women, which has been the chief argument against this."

The Missouri Synod only last year decided to admit women as delegates to its conventions.

Mrs Margaret Ermath, history professor at Wittenberg University, Springfield, Ohio, and one of three women on the Lutheran Church in America study commission, called the convention action "most encouraging."

She added, "I think it reflected a spirit of openness toward the future."

Blackmun Vote Looks Like Supreme Court Tie-Breaker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Freshman Justice Harry A. Blackmun's pivotal role looms even larger as the Supreme Court begins a three month summer recess today with many major legal problems unsolved.

Capital punishment, obscenity, the Vietnam war and the draft, and the pace of school integration are among the unsettled areas as the 1969-70 term ends.

Mum as the court is, the public is in the dark about what may be hanging the justices up. One safe guess, however, is that on some issues there is a 4-4 deadlock that only the new man can break.

For more than a year, the court has operated with eight justices, which leads to tie votes on many of the knotty problems the court must cope with.

Active Term

Blackmun's assumption of the long-open seat could be the key to a highly active, and important, 1970-71 term.

The positions he will take are still mostly unknown. But he indicated Monday he will line up with his old friend Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, and with John M. Harlan, another conservative, on obscenity cases. In his first opinion, Blackmun dissented from the summary reversal of the convictions of two St. Paul booksellers.

This suggests that Blackmun, like Burger and Harlan, would allow more room for the states to set their own obscenity standards. He also obviously believes the court should re-examine its generally liberal view of sexy literature.

Holdover Cases

All this will take on import next term when the justices reconsider two holdover cases. A ban in Boston on the popular Swedish film "I Am Curious (Yellow)" and suppression in Dallas of an underground newspaper.

What Blackmun thinks about the death penalty becomes vital when the court reconsiders the latitude available to juries in imposing the ultimate sentence. Cases from Ohio and California bring up questions unsettled this term.

The new justice's vote may be critical, too, when the court picks up where it left off on whether young men are entitled to exemptions if they have sincere scruples against the Vietnam conflict but do not claim to be opposed to warfare generally.

Dissenting Votes

Significantly, perhaps, Blackmun joined Burger and Justices Byron R. White and Potter Stewart in dissenting Monday as the Supreme Court upset a draft evasion conviction.

The ruling was an outgrowth of the 5-3 decision earlier this month that sincere opponents of warfare generally may be classified as conscientious objectors. Blackmun's dissent suggests he may take a hard line on future draft cases. As a new man he did not participate in the earlier decision.

Disputes over the pace of school desegregation evidently will continue to bedevil the justices. Monday the court swept one of the toughest from its doorstep temporarily by declining to rule immediately on the extent of busing and racial balances that may be required in Charlotte-Mecklenburg County, N.C.

New Session

After lower courts pass judgment on new desegregation plans for North Carolina's largest school district the case probably will come back to the justices—perhaps before the new session opens in early October.

Blackmun seems to hold the swing vote on whether it is constitutional to jail a defendant simply because he cannot afford to pay a fine.

The eight other justices were unanimous Monday in ruling that the answer is "no" when the jailing extends the man's prison term beyond the maximum set for the crime.

Four justices — William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall and White—wanted to go further and prohibit converting a fine to a sentence solely because the defendant cannot pay.

Four justices—the chief, Hugo L. Black, Harlan and Stewart—felt the court had gone far enough.

For next term the court accepted a case from Texas that challenges jail sentences for traffic violators who cannot pay their fines. How Blackmun feels may decide this important criminal law issue.

Navajos Given Credit for Land

Settlement on 30 Million Acres Will Aid Industry

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — A federal financial settlement for millions of acres of land claimed by the Navajo Indians may help solve the tribe's unemployment problems.

The Indian Claims Commission ruled in Washington Monday that the tribe occupied a much wider area of Arizona, New Mexico, Utah and Colorado than was included in an 8 million-acre reservation when a treaty was signed in 1868.

The reservation now covers about 16 million acres.

In the boundary lines laid down Monday, the Navajos are credited with what one commission official said could be about 30 million acres—about the size of Ohio. The ruling means the Indians should have been compensated in 1868 for that acreage.

The Indians won't get the additional land which is lightly populated and suitable only for grazing. But they may get a considerable dollar settlement when details are worked out to compensate them on the basis of 1868 land values.

Claims Commission

The tribe has valued the land at $1 an acre, but this would have to be decided by the Indian Claims Commission. Said Harold Mott, the tribe's general counsel:

"An appreciable part of the money will go for industrial development.

"Tribal Chairman Raymond Nakai is concerned about the high unemployment—about 30,000 of 125,000 workers are unemployed. It costs money to attract industry, and that's where some of it will go."

Plants on the reservation now make camera and missile components, tennis shoes, prefabricated housing and electrical products.

In a related ruling Monday the commission gave the Hopis exclusive title to nearly 2 million acres also claimed by the Navajos. The Hopis' 2.45-million acre reservation is completely surrounded by the Navajo reservation.

Joan Kennedy Backs Spouse On Accident

NEW YORK (AP) — "I believe everything Ted said," Joan Kennedy, wife of Massachusetts Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was speaking of the Chappaquiddick accident last year in which Mary Jo Kopechne drowned in Kennedy's car.

"I believe in giving him all the support I can," Mrs Kennedy, 33, said in an interview published in Ladies' Home Journal. "I don't believe in bugging him, in saying, 'Why did you say that?' Or, 'Why didn't you do this?' It was very unfortunate ... a tragic accident."

She said her husband probably should have notified police earlier, but added: "I think it was a miracle Ted managed to get out of that car at Chappaquiddick.

"I think anyone under the circumstances would be in a confused state. It was a very brave thing for him to do, to keep diving down to rescue Mary Jo," she said. "I'm lucky he came out of it alive at all."

Of the speculation that Miss Kopechne and her husband might have been headed for a midnight swim, Mrs Kennedy said "No, I'm sure they were not. Ted left the party early so he could get a good night's sleep and be ready for the next day's (sailing) race."

Charges by NAACP

Government Accused Of Hampering Blacks

CINCINNATI (AP) — The top official of the nation's largest black civil rights group says the Nixon administration is deliberately undercutting attempts by Negroes to improve their lot.

Now, for the first time since Woodrow Wilson, we have a national administration that can be rightly characterized as anti-Negro," declared Bishop Stephen Spottswood, board chairman of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Spottswood spoke Monday night to about 2,500 delegates to the NAACP's 61st national convention.

Calculated Policy

"This is the first time since 1920 that the national administration has made it a matter of calculated policy to work against the needs and aspirations of the largest minority of its citizens," the clergyman said.

Spottswood expressed the opinion that the situation in Southeast Asia had impeded progress in civil rights, asserting:

"If racial justice and civil rights had commanded just 10 per cent of the attention that white liberals have given the Vietnam war, we would not be in the position we are in today —and it is unlikely that we would have Nixon in the White House either!"

Spottswood said the administration had pulled back in school desegregation efforts and favored tax exemption for all-white private schools.

He also said that the nominations of Judge Clement Haynsworth and G. Harrold Carswell to the Supreme Court exhibited anti-Negro policy.

Bishop Spottswood said the NAACP's drives toward integration and desegregation have encountered "a tremendous white backlash."

Your Problems

Ann Is Not the Only One Who's Had It!

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR READERS: I swore I would not print another word about that bloomin' meat loaf recipe, but then along came a letter informing me that Ann Landers' meat loaf took first prize in a contest in

Landers

New Orleans. The news seemed too good not to share — especially after a reader in Michigan said my meat loaf was so lousy even the dog wouldn't eat it. So, I publicly pinned a rose on myself and while I was at it, decided to give credit to the person who had given me the recipe in the first place — my sister, Mrs. David Brodkey of Omaha.

Now Mrs. Brodkey isn't speaking to me. In fact, she isn't speaking to anybody. She is not answering her telephone.

I had sent out thousands of copies of the recipe and was sure that every housewife in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Puerto Rico, Tokyo and Bangkok who wanted it, had asked for it.

I was wrong. When Mrs. Brodkey's name appeared in the column she suddenly became the most popular woman in Omaha. No address was given, but that didn't discourage the meat loaf lovers. Her mailman is exhausted. He keeps asking, "When is this going to stop?" Letters have arrived addressed to Ann Landers' Sister. One letter was addressed: Meat Loaf, Omaha. Readers have sent her cash, checks and money orders. Along with hints on how to improve the recipe, she has received requests to publish a cookbook. "It would be a best seller," wrote Mrs. S. of Issaquah, Wash. You could call it "Ann Landers' Sister's Cookbook."

Almost everyone who wrote said, "I don't want to bother Ann Landers —." Letters requesting the meat loaf recipe have been sent to the Brodkey Jewelry Company. A relative in California whose maiden name was Brodkey called to say she has been asked for the recipe.

A Texas reader, Marvin Cox, sent a song called Ann Landers' Meat Loaf. It should be sung to the tune of "I Love Paris." Here it is:

I love meat loaf late at night.

I love meat loaf on a platter — doesn't matter —

I love meat loaf in the Navy, topped with gravy.

I love meat loaf stuffed with raisins

It tastes good with ice cream cones —

I love meat loaf —

Why do I love Annie's meat loaf?

Because it has no bones.

I hereby take an oath on Julia Child's head that you have heard the last of my meat loaf. If anyone wants the recipe, please get it from a friend. Do not write to Mrs. David Brodkey, or to the Brodkey Jewelry Company or to me. I have had it. — Ann Landers can your dry dog food say that?

Deadline for Beautification Entries July 1

Not a chance! New Trail Call is the one and only dry dog food sold in this area with real meat in every bite. Plus plenty of nutrients to help keep your little friend healthy and strong. Of course, Trail Call gives you all the benefits of ordinary dry food. It can be fed dry or moist. And there's no mixing, refrigerating or can opening. But that's where the similarity ends. Trail Call's a new breed! Comes in the shape of tasty little ribbons that look kind of like puffed meat. The ribbons absorb liquid faster than old fashion chunk style and send out a real meat aroma in the process. Lots of real meat taste, too. No question about it, New Trail Call is the finest dog food you can buy. Yet, it costs less and gives your dog more each feeding. What more can we say?

Attic's 'Angels' Preview Opening Play

The Experimental Theater at Lawrence's Music-Drama Center was the scene Friday evening of a preview of Attic Theatre's opening production of the 1970 season On hand to help open the little theatre's 21st consecutive year were enthusiastic 'angels' and longtime ticket holders who laughed and cried with the characters in William Saroyan's play 'The Time of Your Life."

Before the performance began, Mrs. James Auer, president of the board of governors, thanked those who have supported the grouped through the years and discussed some of the events that had taken place during the winter months She introduced director, Dr Edmund Roney, who is beginning his first season

Later, when the drama was over, members of the cast and those in attendance gathered in the lobby for a reception given by the board. Here while sampling sandwiches and cookies served with punch everyone chatted about the play It was a lovely evening that heightened the anticipation, of those who enjoy live theater, for the next production.

"The Time of Your Life" will run through July 11 with "Tiger at the Gates," "Twentieth Century" and "The Music Man" completing this season's bill.

Persons interested in obtaining tickets may do so at the box office in the lobby at the Center.

After the Play Was Over and everyone had gathered at the reception, the conversation turned to discussions of fine portrayals by the cast. Caught up in the spirit of the evening are Mrs. S. M. Edinger, Mrs. Ken Du Vall, Mr. Edinger and Mr. Du Vall. (Post-Crescent Photos by Ralph Acker)
